REDS RETREAT; FINNS ATTACK

HOUSE HAS PLAN TO DOUBLE SIZE OF BATTLESHIPS

Ask Navy to Figure Probable Cost.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The navy department has been called upon by the house naval appropriations subcommittee to prepare estimates on 65,000 ton battleships, gigantic floating fortresses which would dwarf by 20,000 tons any vessels of war afloat or planned for foreign navies.

Rep. Melvin J. Maas.

Such vessels would virtually double the size of the largest American battleship now afloat, the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, a 33,100 ton ship. They would also tower above the largest men of war afloat, Britain's H. M. S. Hood, 42,100 tons, and the 45,000 ton vessels which congress authorized early in the year.

At the same time Representative Melvin J. Maas [R., Minn.], a member of the subcommittee, went a step further than his colleagues and called for the building of battleships up to 80,000 tons, vessels almost twice the size of the largest men of war today built.

Would Have 20 Inch Guns.

The 80,000 ton battleships would mount 20 inch guns and cost up to 200 million dollars. Maas argued that his colossal ships would be cheaper in the long run than the 35,000 and 45,000 ton vessels now on the ways and make this country absolutely invincible on the high seas.

"I'm advocating that we forget 35,000 ton battleships and even 45,000 ton ships and go in for 60,000, 70,000, or even 80,000 ton ships," Maas said. "And I further advocate we forget the Panama canal; in other words, that we have two fleets, one in the Atlantic and the other in the Pacific.

"I'm satisfied that an 80,000 ton battleship could have seven or eight turrets and mount 20 inch guns. It is safe to say that 10 such super-battleships would be more effective than 15 35,000 tonners.

Wants Biggest and Best.

"If we had 12 of these ships in the Pacific and seven or eight in the Atlantic, it would make us absolutely invincible for our protection. No other nation could afford to follow suit.

"There is no sense in following a policy of matching naval developments of other powers. We should have the biggest and the best."

Representative Maas drew support from Representative Charles A. Plumley [R., Vt.], who said: "I'm sick and tired of just matching foreign navies. This matching game is absurd. I want a winning team."

The demand for estimate costs on 60,000 ton vessels was submitted to the navy department by Representative James G. Scrugham [D., Nev.], chairman of the subcommittee.

Navy Officers Surprised.

The navy department had no official comment on the request. However, officers confessed the request came as a surprise, because the width of the Panama canal has been regarded as the controlling factor in the size of ships and 60,000 ton vessels could not negotiate the locks. A proposal for new locks, which would cost 277 million dollars and permit larger ships, is before congress.

At present navy yards could not build 60,000 ton vessels. Considerable alterations are underway in two yards in preparation for the building of 45,000 ton vessels authorized at the last regular session of congress.

Officers also are not convinced that vessels of 60,000 tons would be sufficiently superior to those of 45,000 tons to make up for the additional cost. The question of the battleship versus the airplane has not been settled and its solution in the European war may alter all naval planning, officers said.

Eight Battleships Building.

The navy department is preparing to ask congress for two more 45,000 ton battleships and had given no thought to larger vessels. These would cost about 100 million dollars. Experts are of the opinion that it would be a mistake to revert to 35,000

FIVE CONVICTED FOR MAIL FRAUD IN NEW ORLEANS

$496,000 Fee Is Split by Politicians.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 22 [Special].—Abraham L. Shushan, top henchman of the late Huey P. Long, and four New Orleans business leaders were convicted tonight of mail frauds.

Abraham L. Shushan.

It was the second time the government has scored against high political heirs of the Long dictatorship. A mail fraud conviction was obtained last September against Seymour Weiss, hotel man who was a key figure in Louisiana politics in "Kingfish" Long's heyday just before he was shot to death in 1935.

Shushan, former president of the powerful New Orleans levee board, and his four co-defendants were convicted by a Federal court jury of using the mails in sharing an exorbitant fee of $496,000 for refinancing levee board bonds. The government contended the fee was fraudulently obtained.

Each Faces 35 Year Term.

Each of the convicted men faces a maximum penalty of 35 years in prison and total fines of $7,000 each. The jury found them guilty on seven of the eight counts on which they were indicted.

Two of the men convicted with Shushan are associated with Newman, Harris & Co., one of the largest investment firms in the south. They are Robert J. Newman and Norvin Trent Harris Jr. The other two men are Herbert W. Waguespack, former chairman of the levee board's finance committee, and Henry J. Miller, an accountant.

The courtroom was jammed with silent, interested spectators who had attended every day's session since the trial began 19 days ago, as the jury filed in after deliberating for nine hours.

Refund 5½ Million in Bonds.

The charge against the five men grew out of a contract between the levee board and the Newman-Harris firm thru which the investment company refunded about $5,500,000 of board bonds.

The defendants claimed the refunding saved the levee board about $2,000,000, but the government disagreed with them. Federal prosecutors contended the saving was much less, that it was wrongly computed, and that the $496,000 fee was exorbitant.

The deal to split the big fee allegedly was made shortly after Shushan retired in 1935 from the presidency of the levee board, to which Long had appointed him in 1929.

Freed of Income Tax Evasion.

Shushan's resignation followed acquittal the same year on an income tax evasion charge. His acquittal four years ago took place in the same court in which he was convicted tonight.

The legal machinery that overtook Shushan and his co-defendants was set in motion last July when an exposé of dishonesty in public office broke in Louisiana.

A series of developments followed rapidly. Dr. James Monroe Smith, Long sponsored head of Louisiana State university, resigned in a financial scandal at the school. Gov. Richard W. Leche resigned and his place was taken by Lieut. Gov. Earl K. Long.

Dr. Smith Flees to Canada.

Dr. Smith fled to Canada, was brought back, and finally sent to prison for defrauding L. S. U. of funds he was expected to protect.

Former Gov. Leche and Seymour Weiss, prominent in the Long machine, were indicted in "hot oil" deals and for allegedly using the mails to defraud.

Three politicians committed suicide in the midst of the uproar after the scandals broke. They were George Heidelberg, director of the Youth administration program at L. S. U.; Dr. J. A. Shaw, director of the minerals division of the department of conservation, and Lawrence A. Merrigan, tax expert prominent in politics.

THE GOOD BOY'S ADVICE

If Fido Rates a Gift It Will Be a Doghouse

Lloyd A. Dolton's wife, Edna, and his daughter, Elizabeth, a school teacher, went shopping in Evanston last night. Mr. Dolton and their brown water spaniel, Fido, went along. Elizabeth parked the car in front of Lord's department store at 1611 Orrington avenue.

Mr. Dolton is 60, a salesman of steel forgings. Weary from a day of buying Christmas presents, he told his folks he would wait for them in the car, with Fido.

"I'll leave the ignition on, so the heater will keep you warm," said Elizabeth. She also left the car in gear, it developed later. Dolton and the dog took a brief stroll, keeping an eye on the auto, and then got back into the front seat. Mr. Dolton gazed drowsily at the hundreds of shoppers milling about Fountain square.

Fido Feels Frisky.

Fido felt frisky. He frolicked on the floor, snapping at the brake and clutch pedals. Then he pushed his 25 pounds against the starter button.

Things happened. The motor started and the machine, parked at an angle, climbed the 6 inch curb like a tank and headed for the display windows.

Dolton, aroused, made frantic motions. The car rammed a corner of the entrance to an arcade leading into the store. The impact shattered the front window to the right, a side window, and a window on the arcade.

Dolton clutched wildly at the gear shift handle. Fido barked. The automobile, caroming off the corner, went straight down the corridor.

There was another crash, a clatter of shattered plate glass, and a fourth window at the end of the passageway was gone. The car stopped. A slight turn to the right was necessary to reach the store door, and it couldn't make it.

The Culprit Flees.

Dolton sat there, staring at the round top of the gear shift handle. It had come off in his hand.

Policeman Herman Cohen, former Northwestern football guard, plunged thru the quickly gathering crowd. He wrenched open the left front door. Fido scampered between the policeman's legs, and disappeared. Mrs. Dolton and Elizabeth came up.

"Why, father, we told you to wait for us!" they exclaimed accusingly. Dolton had no answer for that one. He was thinking of the forthcoming bill for damages to the windows and hoping his insurance covered it.

The Doltons drove in silence to their home at 4118 North Keystone avenue, Chicago. At the door Dolton turned on his wife and daughter. "If you got a Christmas present for Fido," he ordered, "take it right back."

Fido, at midnight, was still missing.

FISHERMAN HIKES FIVE DAYS IN BARE FEET TO AID SHIPWRECKED DAD

ZEBALLOS, British Columbia, Dec. 22 [Canadian Press].—For five days Hugh Skinner, young Vancouver fisherman, walked in his bare feet over the rocky shore of Quatsino sound to seek aid for his father after a fishing boat wreck.

The Great Northern V struck the rocks on the west coast of Vancouver Island. Ted Bernard, engineer, was washed overboard and apparently drowned. Skinner and his father, Capt. George Skinner, reached shore safely.

The older man became weak from exposure and hunger, and the son set out for aid. He was sighted by a plane pilot who sent a motor launch for him. A party left today in search of the father.

GERMANS SEIZE FAMOUS ALTAR IN CRACOW CHURCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—The famous 16th century altar of the historical Marienkirche in Cracow has been removed to Germany as a result of the conquest of Poland, it was disclosed today.

The altar, which was carved in wood by Veit Stoss, master of Nuremberg art, has three panels and is about 30 feet high. It depicts the life of Christ and is considered by experts to be one of the most beautiful works of art of its time.

It is understood the altar is in Berlin, but it has not yet been shown to the public. Germans declare its removal was justified because "Cracow is not in Germany proper but in the military district of Poland."

They point to the removal of the famous Ghent altar from the Berlin museum to Belgium by order of the Versailles treaty as an "example given by the allies which Germany now is following."

Husky Midshipmen Cuddle Dolls; It's All for Charity

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 22 (AP).—Virile midshipmen roamed the streets today cuddling dolls. All fall midshipmen have been collecting dolls from kid sisters back home and buying them from slender stipends. In observance of an annual tradition they chartered a fleet of taxicabs today, just before 2,100 went on Christmas leave, and took the collection to a Washington charity group.

Chef Whips Up a New Recipe for an Old Dish

Oscar Triana, an amateur weather forecaster of Elmwood Park, has gone out on a limb in Christmas cards to his friends with the following forecast:

Dec. 26 to 28—Colder, in the 20's.
Jan. 1 to 4—15 to 20 above.
Jan. 9 to 13—Zero or subzero.

Oscar is a Cuban born chef who works at 1032 Lake street and lives at 2312 North 72d court, Elmwood Park. His duties as chef interfere somewhat with his scientific work.

Phone's Always Ringing.

"People hardly let me work in the kitchen, so many call up about the weather," he said.

"How do you do it?" he was asked.

"It's a long story," said Triana. "I've been at it 23 years. I observe the stars and planets, the condition of the moon and sun, the humidity, and the changes in the atmosphere."

"Have you any instruments?"

"I have a weather vane and a thermometer in the garden and a few gadgets to test humidity. I have three empty cans telescoped together and fitted into a fruit jar.

Listen! The Wind!

"I study my instruments and then wait for the train whistle and put my ear to the cans. I can tell the condition of the atmosphere by the sound in the empty cans."

"Do you have good results?"

"Last year I made 22 forecasts and all but two were accurate. A sports reporter once wrote that it was going to be a fine day for a big football game in Soldiers' field last season. I wrote and told him it would rain on Friday and on Saturday and that the rain would turn to snow. It came out just as I said. I have a creamery company and a grocery on my list of weather clients now."

Oscar's wife is going to give him a new thermometer for Christmas.

"He has only a 65 cent thermometer," she said. "I am going to give him a minimum thermometer—one that goes down and stays there. Oscar is a good chef."

Barrier to Santa in Barrow; All Houses Quarantined

BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 22 (AP).—The jolly old gent with the whiskers and the reindeer will have to get past quarantine signs on Barrow homes this Christmas. Every house in this farthest north American village is quarantined for measles. All church and school programs were canceled. The population exceeds 300, but the number of measles cases was not announced.

TRIBUNE WRITER'S STORY OF RUSSIAN FIASCO IN ARCTIC

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROVANIEMI, Capital of Finnish Lapland, on the Arctic Circle, Dec. 22.—The story of how an arctic blizzard, coupled with temperatures of 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, helped put two divisions of the Red army to flight was learned here tonight.

The Finns, in turn, helped the weather to rout the Russians. During the southward advance of the invaders from Petsamo, on the Arctic ocean, they were constantly harried by small bodies of tireless, white robed, ghostlike Finnish troops on skis, armed with rifles, machine guns, and knives.

The Russians marched along the arctic highway, which runs for more than 300 miles from Petsamo to Rovaniemi over the high tundras and thru scraggy, low forests of pine and fir and thickets of birch.

How the Reds Met Disaster.

It was at the little town of Nautsi that the Reds met disaster. There the road curves and dips to cross a bridge. The Finns were waiting with a battery of artillery. As the Russians advanced the defenders set off mines, which destroyed five tanks. Hidden behind snow ramparts across the creek, the Finns fought the Russians to a standstill. Flanking skirmishes prevented the Reds from making camp. They were unable to repair the bridge.

The Red commander ordered a retreat, but the delay had allowed the water in the radiators of the tanks and armored cars to freeze and had turned their oil to glue. The tanks and armored cars had to be abandoned and soon the retreat became a rout.

Twelve miles back, at Hoyhenjarvi, the Russians attempted to make a stand. The Finnish soldiers, however, prevented them from cutting wood for fires to cook with or warm themselves. Moving swiftly on their skis thru the forest over knee deep snow, the Finns continued to attack and destroy.

Reds Become Panic Stricken.

The Russians, hungry, exhausted, and freezing, became panic stricken. Attempts of the officers to compel their soldiers to cover the retreat failed. The soldiers, insufficiently clothed and undernourished, were too busy fighting the blizzard to obey orders.

Reports arriving at staff headquarters here tonight said the blizzard killed more Russians than the Finnish troops did. Along the line of retreat are many big fires, around which Russian prisoners are grouped, guarded by Finnish soldiers. The first thing the prisoners did on being captured was to build a fire.

The panic which struck this division spread to Salmijarvi, where a second division was preparing to follow the first southward. The second division joined the retreat.

Finns Send Fresh Troops.

A fleet of trucks left Rovaniemi for the north this morning carrying fresh Finnish troops to the front and to bring back wounded men and prisoners. The Finns also suffered many fatalities in this battle, for a serious wound in the present weather means death from freezing.

The local general staff reports that several Finns captured by the Russians were stripped naked and allowed to freeze to death in front of the Russian troops. Hrja Kailija, a soldier now in a Rovaniemi hospital, was captured last Wednesday. He relates that he was stripped and then told by the political commissar commanding the troops that he would be given back his clothing if he disclosed the location of Finnish patrols.

Kailija says he led the Russians thru the woods until they encountered a patrol. During the engagement Kailija says he was shot in the shoulder from behind by the commissar. The Finns killed all the Russians. A military surgeon said Kailija would live, but that both of his feet would have to be amputated. They were badly frozen.

Alf M. Landon Injured in Fall from His Horse

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 22 (AP).—Alf M. Landon, 1936 presidential nominee, plans to take his outings in an automobile for the next few days. His horse stumbled yesterday during a brisk canter near his home. Landon fell off, suffering bruises and sprains.

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 23, Saturday (AP).—Finnish troops have started counter attacks against Russian invaders on the Karelian isthmus, it was reported from Helsingfors early today.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 22 (AP).—The Russian military machine was thrown into an accelerated reverse tonight on two Finnish fronts and fought to a full stop on a third.

In the frigid arctic Petsamo sector the Finns said officially that they had chased the invaders back into the nickel mining region and that fierce fighting was in progress around Salmijarvi, which the Russians had taken more than a week ago.

Success Continues in East.

The Finns declared "our success continues" in the Salla sector in middle eastern Finland, where a Russian rout has been in progress for three days. On that front, just above the arctic circle, the Russians had advanced, prior to the Finnish counterattack, almost halfway across the country.

The fighting was bitter on the strategic Karelian front in the extreme southeastern corner of the little republic. There, the Finnish high command reported, desperate attacks by the Russians had been repulsed with great losses to the invaders.

Seven Russian warplanes braved snow and arctic winds to bomb Helsingfors with between 20 and 30 missiles in the fourth successive day of air raids, but in the Finnish capital and numerous villages hereabouts, which also were bombed, there were no reports of casualties. Property damage was slight. One Russian plane was shot down over Helsingfors.

Finn Planes Take Offensive.

The Finnish air force itself took the offensive in the southeast, breaking up enemy columns and camps, destroying munitions dumps, and bombing the town of Terijoki, occupied by the Russians and seat of the Moscow sponsored people's government of Finland.

Recapitulating their action against the Russians, a Finnish source declared that during the invasion, which began Nov. 30, the Russians had used 1,000 tanks on the Karelian isthmus alone, and that to date the Finns have destroyed 250 tanks on all fronts.

In yesterday's extensive air raids, the Finnish communique estimated, 350 Russian warplanes flew over Finnish territory. It announced that the shooting down of 11 of them had been confirmed, and that five others were reported to have been brought down, but this was not confirmed.

Finns List 16 Dead.

Because of the good defense of antiaircraft artillery and fighter planes, the communique added, the destruction caused by their aerial armada was not great and casualties for the whole country were 16 dead and 43 wounded, including women and children.

The fighting in the north, the communique continued, was marked by severe explosions from the nickel mines. The Finns themselves had blown up these mines on Dec. 14 when they were withdrawing southward to the prepared defense positions of the Lapland Mannerheim line, from which they launched their counterattack.

In addition to the bombardment of a hospital in the capital yesterday, the Finns declared, three military hospitals, clearly displaying Red Cross signs, were attacked in the war area. A Danish vessel was bombed by the invaders at Turku [Abo].

Russian Losses Heavy.

No real military value resulted from yesterday's widespread air raids, the Finns insisted. They added that in the last three days 35 Russian planes have been brought down.

The Finns said a heavy attack on the eastern frontier at Kitela, just north of Lake Ladoga, was repulsed; that a fierce battle for possession of the village of Aglajarvi, on the Karelian isthmus, was in progress, and that attacks at Paitaeloji and between Lieksa and Repola on the eastern front were thrown back.

"Everywhere the enemy losses were heavy," the communique said.

The communique said Russian flyers attacked the Finnish batteries at the Baltic island of Koivosto and a detachment of Russian naval vessels bombarded the island fortress of Klipsiaari, nine miles off the port of Kotka.

Russian vessels on Lake Ladoga were shelled by Finnish coastal batteries.

The Finns complained officially of the air bombardment of a number of peaceful towns and observed: "In these attacks the enemy was by no means particular in the choice of targets."

The communique mentioned yesterday's attacks on two trains at the railway stations of Kargjaa and Inkoo and said they were machine gunned from the air.

Reds Flee Without Fight.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 22 (AP).—The Russian retreat in the barren north Petsamo region of Finland is continuing hastily and without fighting, reports from northern Norway said tonight.

From the Norwegian side a long line of Russian vans moving steadily northward toward Salmijarvi was plainly visible.

The region was strangely silent, these dispatches said, with none of the machinegun bursts and rifle fire that have been heard thruout the Arctic area for the last three weeks.

The Finns apparently were content to follow the retiring Russians and not to fight as long as the Red army troops kept moving briskly in retreat.

Report Railway Bombed.

One report current in Oslo, Norway, was that the houseless Russians became bogged down in the Arctic winter and were forced into a withdrawal by the bombing of the Murmansk railway by the Finnish air corps.

The line is the only avenue for munitions and supplies to reach Murmansk from the south, and consequently the only supply system of the Russian Arctic corps.

Without it, military observers said, the Russians engaged in the expedition soon would be facing starvation.

No southward movement of supply trucks had been noted for two days.

Soviet Ships Leave Petsamo.

North of Salmijarvi the arctic highway, which the Russians had followed in their invasion, swings east toward Kola, their Russian base, and the Red troops were reported moving in that direction instead of north toward Petsamo from where their invasion was launched.

Soviet transport ships, previously at Petsamo when the Russians started their southward push, had departed.

The weather remained clear, but extremely cold. The temperature has been 25 degrees below zero in recent days.

Inhabitants of the region said it was probable thousands of Russian troops in the open had frozen to death.

Dream Comes True in War; Learns Husband Is Alive

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Rose Kent, whose husband was aboard the armed British merchant cruiser Rawalpindi when it was sunk a month ago in a sea battle with the German pocket battleship Deutschland, dreamed that her husband was alive. Today she received a postcard saying he was safe, altho a prisoner of war, in Germany. It was estimated that 259 members of the Rawalpindi's crew lost their lives when the armed merchantman went down off Iceland on Nov. 25.

Major developments of yesterday in the Russian-Finnish war in the northern sector, as reported by both sides, are told in captions on map.

URUGUAY HOLDS UP INTERNMENT OF GERMAN SHIP

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 22 (AP).—Foreign Minister Alberto Guani late tonight postponed further action on the German merchantman Tacoma after her internment had been forecast earlier by sources close to the Uruguayan government.

Guani said no decision had been made as yet and gave no indication when a decision would be reached. The Tacoma was the supply ship for the scuttled German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

The foreign minister said he expected to leave the city tomorrow with President Alfredo Baldomir and might not return until after Christmas, leaving the fate of the Tacoma undecided.

Meantime the Tacoma remained "detained" in port with armed guards aboard her. Internment would keep her here for the duration of the European war.

King of England Receives Chief of Canada's Troops

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Andrew G. L. McNaughton, world war veteran and leader of the first contingent of Canadian active service troops to reach Britain, was received in audience today by King George VI. of England. The general came to London after a busy week at Aldershot arranging for the training of his men. The Canadian contingent landed Dec. 17.

Two Germans Beheaded, Increasing Total to 41

BERLIN, Dec. 22 (AP).—Two Germans lost their heads today for high treason, increasing to 41 the number beheaded during the year. They were Erich Scheer, postal official of Witten, charged with inciting the public against the German government, and Bruno Stanik of Beuthen, accused of providing the Polish intelligence department with secret reports.

CAPTURED GERMAN VESSEL TO BE SAILED THRU PANAMA CANAL

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Dec. 22.—A question of international law is expected to be presented to Panama Canal authorities when the 5,000 ton German merchantman Dusseldorf will seek to go thru the canal. The German vessel was captured a fortnight ago by the British cruiser Despatch off Chile's coast.

The Dusseldorf will be the first war prize to go thru the canal. The ship has its original German crew aboard under the command of a prize crew of British marines.

The Dusseldorf, with a cargo of food and petroleum, had sailed from Valparaiso, Chile, ostensibly for Germany via the Panama Canal, but evidently was heading for the Strait of Magellan when caught. The ship was taken into a Chilean port before starting its voyage to England to have its fate decided by a British prize court.

When the Dusseldorf reaches the canal it will fly the swastika flag below the British flag, in accordance with international usage.

CITY RED CROSS SENDS RELIEF GOODS TO POLAND

The Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday sent seven cases of war relief supplies to New York for shipment to Europe. James B. Forgan, chairman, said it was the eighth consignment from Chicago since the beginning of hostilities. The cases contained 90 men's sweaters, 25 mufflers, 140 women's dresses, 90 children's dresses, 24 layettes, 170 operating gowns, 410 boys' shirts, and 750 surgical dressings. The materials will be used for relief of Polish refugees. They were made by volunteer Red Cross workers of the Chicago chapter.

FINLAND LOOKING TO AMERICA FOR HER AMMUNITION

Can't Win Without It, Says General.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 [Special].—Lieut. Gen. Villio P. Nenonen, chief of Finnish artillery, made a surprise visit to Washington today to begin a visit of American arms plants and to negotiate for purchase of war supplies from the United States.

He said Finland was looking to the United States for a substantial part of the war supplies the Baltic republic needs if it is to hold off an expected new soviet Russian onslaught in the spring.

Leading Artillery Expert.

Gen. Nenonen is regarded as one of the world's leading artillery experts. He is the inventor of the Nenonen Formula for artillery fire, a mathematical system which is said to be revolutionary and to guarantee one hit in three shots. Its secret has been closely guarded by Finland for more than 10 years.

The general said he rated Finnish military skill and technical ability far above that of the Russians, but he pointed out that the vast Russian man power is a problem for Finland.

"The preponderance of Russians," he said, "is bound to have an eventual effect if we do not get artillery ammunition and ammunition for our rapid fire infantry guns in this country in order to conserve Finnish man power."

Other Sources Gone.

He asserted that, with England and France requiring most of their military production for war with Germany and with Sweden arming her own forces rapidly in the face of the soviet threat to the Scandinavian countries, "it is only in the United States that we can get adequate supplies." He denied that Germany is giving Finland any private military assistance.

Gen. Nononen arrived in New York yesterday aboard the Swedish ship Drottningholm and came immediately to Washington. War department officials have arranged for him to visit American arms plants.

Greatest Need: Ammunition.

"Our ability to keep going depends on whether we can obtain supplies," he declared. "In a long war, such as that taking shape on the western front, we face the Soviet ability to keep putting in new reserves. Our greatest need is for ammunition."

He declared that the first soviet air attacks on Finland, which he watched, "were dastardly but not too effective." The soviet aviators, he continued, "did not appear very good."

GERMANY SPURNS POPE'S PLEA FOR YULETIDE TRUCE

Scoffs at Report Duce Proposes Peace.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Mystery surrounds the visit to Rome of Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police forces. Messages from the Italian capital today said Himmler left there hurriedly after a conference with Premier Mussolini. It was reported that Il Duce tried to encourage the German government, thru Himmler, to study peace proposals on which Pope Pius XII. has been working with the approval of the Italian government.

The report was denied in Berlin, where it was asserted that "it is ridiculous to assume that at this point of the conflict Mussolini, ally of Germany, would be suggesting peace negotiations."

Catholic circles said the pope, in making suggestions for a "God's truce for Christmas" hoped that the lull could be used to further the cause of peace. The Germans, however, indicated they were opposed to a Christmas truce.

Celebrates "War Christmas."

BERLIN, Dec. 22 (AP).—Germany is going to celebrate a "war Christmas" and will think of peace only after defeating the world plutocracies which are "trying to strike down the social-minded reich," Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels said today.

A German victory is assured, he added, and when it comes it "will not be a victory of deception" such as 1918.

Goebbels spoke at a Christmas celebration in the propaganda ministry for 200 children removed from the Saar war zone and Memel.

In the first Christmas season utterance of any German leader, the propaganda minister said a "determined German people" were fighting capitalistic world leadership.

Calls It "People's War."

"But with us it is a people's war," he said. "The people are defending their lives against an enemy that has always stood opposite the Germans."

"Victory," Goebbels continued, "will be ours. We not only hope for it, we know it."

He said that Germany was "prosecuting a totalitarian war" and that the German people, "since the war, have united in real brothership."

Goebbels' speech came as Germany pressed a trade offensive aimed at assuring her a steady supply of vital commodities despite the French-British sea blockade.

In line with this program came announcement of conclusion of a pact with Latvia providing for the exchange of goods in 1940. Signing of a German-Danish trade agreement for 1940 and completion of trade discussions with the Netherlands were announced simultaneously.

The Germans also have concluded a trade agreement with Rumania.

DALADIER CALLS FOR AID TO FINNS, NOT JUST PRAISE

France's Casualties in War Are 1,434.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Premier Edouard Daladier today told the chamber of deputies that it was not enough to salute Finland for her resistance to Russia but that it was necessary to aid her. The chamber greeted this declaration with wild enthusiasm.

But whether that support would be confined to aid now being sent, such as ambulances, drivers, nurses, and hospital supplies, or would extend to the sending of troops, was not stated.

An Added Significance.

The premier received Harri Holma, the Finnish minister to Paris, immediately after leaving the chamber. Daladier's words on Finland, spoken during a successful debate on the budget, added significance to the statement of the semiofficial newspaper Le Temps, which tonight said that "Finland is in reality the advance guard of civilization facing the sweeping force of communism pushing westward."

Daladier for the first time revealed a French casualty list for the war. Up to Nov. 30 the deaths totaled 1,434—1,136 in the army, 256 in the navy, and 42 in aviation. The premier compared these casualties to the last war when, in December, 1914, France already had suffered 450,000 casualties on the battlefield.

Budget Passed Unanimously.

The combined civil and military budget amounting to 249,000,000,000 francs [about $5,577,600,000] was adopted unanimously by the chamber.

In defending such an enormous budget Daladier referred to what he said was rapid progress in aviation. He mentioned the priority accorded to antitank and antiaircraft guns.

He said also that construction of powerful 35,000 ton battleships was being accelerated in every possible manner. He praised, too, the work being done in regard to the personal equipment of the soldiers, saying that production of boots, underwear, and uniforms now was equal to the [illegible]

Expressions of Sympathy.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 22 (AP).—Several members of the league of nations filed replies tonight to Secretary General Joseph Avenol's recent inquiry concerning their intentions for aiding Finland, but the contents were not immediately disclosed. It was learned, however, that replies from certain small nations contained little more than expressions of sympathy for Finland.

172 DIE IN 2 GERMAN TRAIN WRECKS; BOTH BLAMED ON BLACKOUT

BERLIN, Dec. 22 (AP).—The collision of two express trains early today at Genthin—the worst of a series of 8 German railroad wrecks since the war began—caused the death of 132 persons and the injury of 109. It was probable the number of dead would increase, as many of the injured were in critical condition. Genthin is about 50 miles southwest of Berlin on the Magdeburg line.

Arrow shows where train wreck occurred.

40 Killed in Ninth Wreck.

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Dec. 23, Saturday (AP).—Forty persons today were reported killed and 40 injured in a collision near here between a freight train and a passenger train last night. It was the ninth of a series of German railroad wrecks since the war began.

Tho authorities made no comment on the series of railroad accidents since the outbreak of war, the blackout was generally regarded as responsible. In the nine accidents since war started there have been 255 deaths and more than 267 persons injured.

NORWAY NAMES STAFF OFFICER DEFENSE CHIEF

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 22 (AP).—Realistically concerned with its proximity to the war in Finland, Norway today chose an active general staff officer to head its ministry of defense.

The appointment of Col. Birger Ljungberg to succeed Christian Monsen as minister was preceded by rumors of dissatisfaction with Monsen because of his alleged friendliness with Russia.

The announcement today of the cabinet change, however, said Monsen was retiring because of illness.

Col. Ljungberg has been aide de camp to King Haakon for many years. He is 54 years old.

MOSCOW ADMITS REVERSES; SAYS IT'S A TOUGH WAR

Commander Is Reported Fired from Job.

MOSCOW, Dec. 23, Saturday (AP).—Soviet Russia admitted that most serious difficulties had been encountered in Finland's natural and artificial fortifications today, but denied that the Finnish invasion was not progressing according to schedule.

Declaring that the Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus was equal to Germany's Siegfried line, a Red army communique said its commanders had been cognizant of the difficulties before the campaign started, and that only ignorance or overt hostility toward the Red army could lead foreign observers to expect annihilation of the Finns by one lightning blow.

Report Red Commander Fired.

For the third successive day, the communique failed to report any important new gains, lending credence among foreign observers to Finnish reports of important reverses to the soviet military machine.

Among the more sensational reports circulating in Moscow was one that Gen. K. A. Meretskov, chief of staff of the Leningrad military district, had been retired from his post. Gen. Meretskov has been in charge of the Finnish campaign.

Although not confirmed officially, it was reported that he was summoned to the Kremlin two days ago and asked for an explanation of the army's failure to score decisive successes on the various fronts. Among things for which he was blamed, it was reported, was an inadequate preparation for a quick victory.

Hint Stalin Aid Is in Bad.

Noted by foreign observers was the absence of publication of any congratulatory messages to Dictator Stalin on the occasion of his 60th birthday anniversary yesterday from two persons intimately connected with the Finnish campaign.

One of these was Andre Zhdanov, generally believed to have been slated to become Stalin's successor as boss of the communist party. The other was Otto Kuusinen, head of the People's government of Finland sponsored by Moscow recently.

Zhdanov has been largely responsible for Russia's recent policy toward Finland. As secretary of the communist party in Leningrad, he is boss in that second largest Russian city near the Finnish border. He also is chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the supreme soviet.

There was speculation that perhaps Zhdanov was being made the scapegoat for the Finnish campaign, which, from some points of view in Russia, was turning into a debacle.

Kuusinen Believed in Kremlin.

Kuusinen, who for many years was an exile here from Finland, was generally believed to be residing now in the Kremlin instead of in the Russian-occupied section of Finnish territory.

The Red army's communique issued early today as a summary of the three weeks' war said "one should admit that soviet troops have scored important successes during this period."

On the contrery, it said:

"The territory of Finland presents most serious difficulties for the movements of troops. Lack of roads, rugged terrain, impassable forests, innumerable lakes divided by innumerable isthmuses spanned by several lines of defenses consisting of concrete gun and machine-gun emplacements with concrete refuges for troops—these are the conditions hindering the rapid advance of troops on Finland's territory."

Reds Knew It All the Time.

Declaring the system of fortifications on the Karelian isthmus was equal to Germany's Siegfried line against which it said Britain and France had been fumbling for four months, the communique said the Red army knew of these difficulties and never expected to annihilate the Finnish troops by one lightning blow. It derided the failure of the British and French armies to make a single gain against the Germans.

Finnish losses in the war to date, the communique said, were 2,200 killed on territory taken by the Red army, and Finnish wounded were estimated at over 10,000. The Russians, it was said, have captured 1,302 Finnish soldiers and 123 officers.

Against these losses, the Red army command said, the Russian forces had lost 1,823 killed and 7,000 wounded.

In the three weeks of war the important successes claimed by the Reds included occupation of the arctic port of Petsamo and an advance of about 81 miles into Finnish territory; an advance of 92 miles in the central Finland drive to cut the country in two; an advance of 50 miles in the Serdobol area of the Karelian isthmus, and an advance of 40 miles in the Viipuri sector of the Karelian isthmus.

Actress in Chicago

Ann Rutherford as she appeared during pause in Chicago yesterday.

Ann Rutherford, the Polly Benedict of Andy's affections in the motion picture series of the Judge Hardy family, arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Twentieth Century from New York. She left last night on the Santa Fe Super Chief to be home in Hollywood on Christmas Eve.

She and Alan Curtis, a young Chicago actor home for the holidays, were guests at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio Christmas party in the afternoon. Interviewed earlier on W-G-N's "Man on the Street" broadcast, Miss Rutherford said she is 19 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 109 pounds—and heaven help any one who would try to take the Polly part in the Hardy pictures away from her.

BRITISH RULERS REACH NORFOLK FOR CHRISTMAS

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England and their two daughters arrived at Sandringham house in Norfolk today to spend Christmas. Queen Mother Mary will pass the holiday with the duke and duchess of Kent and their children in the west of England. King George approved the appointment of Queen Mary as colonel in chief of the antitank Oxfordshire yeomanry. Many British regiments have members of the royal family as honorary commanders.

BRITISH LOSE TWO PLANES, GERMANS ONE IN AIR FIGHT

R.A.F. Casualties for War Climb to 512.

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—The air ministry announced tonight two British planes and one German Messerschmitt fighter were shot down in a western front aerial fight today. The announcement said four Messerschmitt fighters dived out of a cloud onto a British fighter patrol of three aircraft.

A second German plane was driven down "but was not seen to crash," the ministry said.

The royal air force has suffered 512 casualties—including 380 known dead—since the outbreak of war, according to the latest air ministry figures. This compilation does not include casualties of the navy air arm, which operates separately. No record of plane losses was available.

The casualty communique issued today was the 15th since the start of war and announced 24 killed, 7 of the deaths being on active service; 11 missing and believed killed, and 3 others missing.

French Report Activity in Air.

PARIS, Dec. 22 (AP).—The French military communique tonight reported aerial activity by both French and German flyers. It said "On the whole a quiet day along the land front. Fairly strong activity in the air on either side."

Maginot Line Guns Roar.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Dec. 22 (AP).—The guns of the Maginot line are being thrown into the balance against German manpower in the sparring for supremacy over no man's land.

Use of the forts' artillery is the French reply to the Germans' most recent tactics—attacking outposts with a strong force preceded by cannonading and supported by mortars.

It is providing a test of the Maginot line's guns, which were used first to prepare for the French penetration of German territory in September. Artillery officers say they are able to meet the German raiders with a fire that extends to every corner of the five mile wide frontier strip between the opposing Maginot and Siegfried lines.

Swings Into Action.

One giant gun intended for holding a key sector of the front has fired many times against the raiders. When an infantry advance post telephones the location of a German patrol, the call is relayed instantly to the artillery command post, translated into a fire order, and transmitted by dial to the gun tower.

The big gun swings into position with the turn of a handle, shells rise into the turret on an electrically driven chain carrier, the gun crew heaves them into place, and the cannon speaks.

The gunners say that within a few moments they can smash a patrol point and all the ground for 100 yards around. Altho firing within 100 yards of their own lines, they say they never have hit one of their own men.

MAROONED MOTHER AND BABY SAVED BY ALASKAN DOG TEAM

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 22 (AP).—A dog team whisked a mother and her fifteen months old son to safety at Nulato today from the isolated snowbound western Alaska tundra where they had been marooned three days.

Town where mother and baby were brought by dog team.

Radio reports said Mrs. William Jefford and her baby were none the worse for their experience.

They were passengers in a Nome-Fairbanks plane forced down by bad weather. Also aboard were Pilot Fred Chambers and Passenger James Walsh. The men are expected to fly out later. The stranded party was sighted from the air by Mrs. Jefford's brother-in-law, Pilot Jack Jefford.

Another mercy flyer, Hans Mirow, still was unreported since he set out to look for the group last Wednesday. Another pilot set out to search for him.

THE GOVERNMENT IS BIG WINNER IN SPANISH LOTTERY

MADRID, Dec. 22 (AP).—The government cleaned up today in "El Gordo," Spain's revived Christmas lottery, because the European war and international exchange restrictions cut the sale of tickets almost in half. The national treasury shared the first and third prizes with ticketholders in Madrid and Barcelona and won all the second prize.

First prize amounted to 15,000,000 pesetas [nominally about $1,500,000]; second prize, $600,000, and third prize, $200,000. Spaniards displayed much less interest this Christmas in "El Gordo"—the fat one—than they did in this traditional lottery before the civil war.

Nevertheless a large percentage of Spain's 25,000,000 population had chances on the spin of the wheel in the world's oldest government operated lottery. The drawings were for prizes totaling $9,672,600.

Britain to Help Pay Wages of Shipwrecked Sailors

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—The British government today announced it would share equally with shipowners in paying the wages of seamen and officers whose ships are torpedoed, mined, or bombed. The pay will be for one month or until the crews return to Great Britain, whichever is longest.

BRITISH REPULSE BOMBING RAID ON FIRTH OF FORTH

Claim Shooting Down One or Two Planes.

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—British aerial fighters drove away four German bombers attempting raids off the east coast and islands at Scotland's Firth of Forth today. At the same time naval experts took stock of what they said was a lull in German attacks on British shipping.

While the royal air force was bringing down one or two of the raiders, news dispatches from Paris said British planes were continuing their patrol of German seaplane bases despite the greatest air battle of the war last Monday when the Germans asserted they had shot down 36 British bombers over Heligoland, German naval base.

Continue Watch on Navy.

The British, who admitted losing only seven planes in that encounter, also were said in the Paris dispatches to be continuing their watch on the German navy and to have started new photographic scouting flights over the western front.

The "security patrol" by British planes over German seaplane bases was instituted to halt the menace of mine-sowing airplanes at its source. The reduced rate of shipping losses was pointed to as one result of the patroling operations.

Reuters [British news agency] tonight reported the sinking of the Norwegian steamer Rudolf, 924 tons, which struck a mine in the North sea. All 14 crewmen were believed picked up.

A Copenhagen dispatch by the Exchange Telegraph agency [British] said the Danish steamer Jaegersborg, 1,254 tons, was feared lost with her crew of 18 because she was long overdue at a Scottish port. She left Copenhagen Dec. 14.

Sinks After Hitting Reef.

Survivors landing at a South England port told of the sinking of the British steamer Longships, 1,562 tons, which struck a reef. All aboard were reported saved.

Other shipping victims were the British tanker Dosinia, 8,053 tons, which came into port with a slight list as the result of a mine blast, and the British trawler River Annan, 204 tons, whose survivors reached Kopervik, Norway.

The River Annan was carrying the Danish crew of the 1,214 ton freighter Bogo, which was sunk by mine Dec. 19. Survivors of both boats came ashore from the Norwegian vessel Rogaland.

Authorities placed the shipping toll for the week at 33 vessels, a number of them trawlers sunk by German air attacks. Altho the losses were heavy numerically, the tonnage was low because many of the trawlers displaced only 200 and 300 tons.

Plane Dives Thru Clouds.

In today's air battle over the Firth of Forth where Edinburgh and the naval base of Rosyth are located, the British turned back two German planes, and one of them, a Heinkel 3, was forced into a dive thru the clouds from a great height.

British sources said the plane was trailing smoke after trading fire with a British fighter, and later a splash was seen on the sea.

Two other German raiders sighted over the Suffolk east coast were driven away by antiaircraft fire without an air raid warning being sounded, and the British said they believed one of these was brought down on the sea.

An information ministry pamphlet titled "Assurance of Victory" said Britain was keeping "very large" secret reserves in warplanes, and declared the nation had at home four times as many first line planes as in 1934 and 1935.

Several thousand volunteers, of ages 20 to 45, were called for by the war office to serve as engineers, road builders, carpenters, and plumbers.

CHICAGO CZECHS HAIL BRITISH RECOGNITION OF PROVISIONAL RULE

Notice was received in Chicago yesterday of Great Britain's recognition of the Czecho-Slovak provisional government and of British backing for the formation of a Czecho-Slovak army to fight in France.

Dr. Jan Papanek, present head of the Czech national movement in the United States, reported here that he had received a cable from Dr. Eduard Benes, former Czech president, giving the text of the British communique that announced Britain's recognition of the movement.

Joe Martinek, secretary general of the Czecho-Slovak National council, an organization of Americans of Czecho-Slovak origin, said the council expressed gratitude for the British action in a cable sent to Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary.

DEATHS IN FLOOD INCREASE; MANY OTHERS MISSING

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Dec. 22 (AP).—Reports tonight from Cagayan province indicated the known death list of 11 was increasing in floodstricken northern Luzon. Many were said to be missing, thousands were homeless and losses to public works and crops were heavy. Telegraph and telephone communication in Cagayan were broken and only meager reports had been received from the area flooded by heavy rainfall which accompanied the typhoon early this week.

A Red Cross worker in Isabela province reported 51 villages in the southern part of the province still were inundated.

HORNER'S SLUSH FUND COLLECTORS BUSY IN CAPITAL

State Workers Bring In 2% of Salaries.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 22 [Special].—Altho Gov. Horner last week ordered state department heads to stop collecting salary levies from civil service employés, the campaign fund organization, the Illinoisans, is still doing a thriving business taking in the 2 per cent collections from state employés. This was disclosed by an investigation today.

For the last few days employés in the statehouse have been seen trekking to the offices of the Illinoisans which recently opened headquarters at 6th and Capitol streets, across the street from the Leland hotel.

Following the visit of employés, who gather in larger numbers around pay days, loungers in the hotel report that an armored money wagon drives up to the offices. Armed guards with pistols and shotguns carry out a heavy money box. Three or four clerks handle the collections in the office.

Refuse to Disclose "Take."

A reporter today found only one clerk, who refused to disclose how much is collected each month from employés. He explained that because of the holidays those in charge had left and would not be back until after Christmas.

Employés who visited the offices during the day were notified that their contributions would have to be made in the future by check or money order. Several who brought cash were told that cash was no longer being accepted.

In view of Gov. Horner's instructions to the state department heads it was reported that the new policy will be an attempt to show that the contributions are given voluntarily because they are sent in check or money order form.

Fund May Reach Half Million.

It has been estimated that if all state employés are compelled to donate two per cent of their salaries the campaign fund will be swelled to $500,000 before the election next November.

Last week 50 Republican legislators signed a petition to the governor demanding that the salary levies be stopped. A. K. Stiles, chairman of the Republican state central committee, and Justus L. Johnson, chairman of the public relations committee of the state organization, began an investigation to learn whether collections are still being forced from civil service employés.

Until recently the Illinoisans' collectors went into state institutions to collect from all employés, under authority of A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare. The Civil Service Protective association filed complaints with the state civil service commission.

The civil service commission ordered that collectors be barred from state buildings and that no coercion be used to levy on salaries of civil service employés. Collectors then established headquarters in nearby hotels and office buildings.

PRINCESS WHO SUED PRESS LORD ARRIVES IN N. Y.

New York, Dec. 22 (AP).—Princess Stefanie Hohenlohe Waldenburg-Schillingsfurst of Hungary, loser of a recent breach of contract suit against Lord Rothermere, British publisher, arrived today aboard the Holland America liner Veendam.

The woman, who contended in the court action that she arranged a conference between Rothermere and Adolf Hitler, arrived incognito as "Mrs. M. Waldenburg," a name which appeared on her 106 pieces of luggage.

She declined comment on the Rothermere case, saying only that she had come to the United States for a rest and probably would go later to Nassau, the Bahamas. In her suit she charged the British publisher with breaking a contract to pay her $20,000 a year as his personal political representative in Europe.

LURE OF THIEF'S GEMS FAILS TO HALT PURSUERS

Sheffield avenue police boasted last night that they have the most honest citizens in the city within their boundaries. And here's why:

During the night William Zack, 26 years old, 1614 Nelson street, broke the front window of the Marks Credit Clothing, Inc., store at 3119 Lincoln avenue, according to police, and seized watches, rings, and brooches valued at $4,000 and fled.

Store employés and Policemen Fred Susebach and John Ellis pursued him several blocks. During the chase Zack, according to police, threw the jewelry away several pieces at a time, hoping the pursuers would halt to pick them up, thus giving him a chance to escape. The trick didn't work. The policemen nabbed Zack. But a dozen honest citizens did gather the scattered jewelry. They returned it complete to the store.

DRAFT PROTEST ON WAR ACTS IN AMERICAN AREA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that the Pan-American declaration of protest over recent violations of the western hemisphere neutrality zone would be ready by tomorrow afternoon or Sunday.

The department has not yet completed its findings in the cases of several incidents which occurred in the last few days in the neutrality zone off the United States.

Mr. Hull said no reply had come from Great Britain to the American note of two weeks ago on Britain's blockade of German exports. He added that a reply ordinarily was expected to such a note.

Cross Bill Wins

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. GERTRUDE SANOW.

When Arthur Sanow filed suit for divorce, he complained that Mrs. Gertrude Sanow cut his trousers to shreds to keep him from leaving home. But Mrs. Sanow, who is 26 years old, won the divorce on her cross bill when she told her story to Judge Cornelius J. Harrington yesterday.

"I tried to keep him from going out because he went to see other women," she said. "When he would get ready to go, I used to stand in front of the door and tell him, 'Over my dead body.' Then he would knock me unconscious. One time I was unconscious three hours."

Her attorney, Norman Becker, said she needed $8 a week to support her and a son, Arthur Jr., 2 months old. She had an order for the payments when she returned to her home at 8642 South Laflin street.

PENN GOVERNOR AGAIN CHARGES POLITICS IN WPA

Claims G. O. P. States Are Losing Out.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 22 (AP).—Gov. Arthur H. James again challenged Col. F. C. Harrington, federal administrator of the Work Projects administration, today in their series of exchanges over the WPA in Pennsylvania. In a letter to Harrington, Gov. James repeated his charges that Democratic states are being favored in WPA projects.

"I have one ambition in this matter," wrote James, "and that is to so harass and embarrass the WPA administration with a straightforward presentation of plain facts and figures that they will have no alternative but to do their duty by the state."

Replies to Intimation.

James termed "utterly without foundation" an "intimation" by Harrington that Pennsylvania is not offering projects enough to meet the WPA quota. James said projects in this state approved by WPA but not started by WPA would employ 18,576 men now on relief.

The governor asked Harrington "why the Republican states are being called upon by WPA to bear the brunt of WPA reductions," and cited figures which he said showed "Republican" Maine, Vermont, Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania quotas were cut more proportionally than "Democratic" Nebraska, Texas, Arkansas, and California.

Harrington's Side Given.

Harrington described as "poppycock" yesterday James' statements that Pennsylvania is not getting a fair share of WPA because of the Republican administration in the state.

He said the deficiency in employment authorization for Pennsylvania is due "to lack of suitable projects which this administration can operate under the terms of the appropriation act."

THESE 2 WOMEN OFFER TEST OF NEUTRALITY LAW

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Two American women, one of them a Maryland society girl, are about to offer themselves as guinea pigs to test the constitutionality of the law banning belligerent liners to American citizens wishing to cross the ocean. The society woman is Miss Hester Hensell of Hagerstown. The second woman did not want her identity revealed. The boat is a French liner scheduled to sail soon from a French port.

The women are sole survivors of a group of 30 Americans who originally intended to brave the rigors of the neutrality law for economy or other reasons. The American embassy dissuaded 28 from sailing, but Miss Hensell and the other woman remained adamant. Miss Hensell already has signed a waiver releasing the shipping company from any liability arising out of her transportation. The American neutrality law provides for fines and imprisonment in case of its infraction.

Britain to Give Priority to Goods for Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 22 (AP).—British Ambassador Sir Esmond Ovey disclosed today that the British government has decided to accord prior consideration to shipments of merchandise to Argentina in order to hold the market. He said a list of goods already had been compiled.

BOARD APPROVES HIGHEST COUNTY BUDGET SINCE '30

Total Hits $22,202,961 Despite Economy Pleas.

The Cook county commissioners yesterday adopted a 1940 operating budget of $22,202,961, the highest appropriation since 1930. Again ignoring pleas of civic and business groups for retrenchment, the board not only accepted a tentative figure of $22,108,848 reached on Thursday, but added $94,113 to it in a last minute spending flurry. There was only one dissenting vote.

The 1940 budget is $344,203 higher than the one for 1939, which stood at $21,858,758. The 1930 budget was just under 24 million dollars. In the depression years that followed the county cut expenses to a low of $17,500,000 in 1933. Then the appropriations began to rise again, culminating in the one approved yesterday which wipes out practically all of the economies effected during the depression.

Nixon Casts "No" Vote.

The 1940 budget was passed like clockwork. For more than two hours clerks droned the 110 pages of the document into the record. Then came the roll call.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the board, and 13 other Democratic dominated commissioners, voted to approve the budget. The 15th board member, George F. Nixon, a Republican, voted against it. There was no discussion.

Nixon has sided with Graham Aldis, president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, and Morgan L. Fitch, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, who appealed for economy measures at a public hearing on the budget on Thursday.

Ask for Drastic Cuts.

Aldis and Fitch declared that only drastic retrenchments could avert bankruptcy for the county and said there was no excuse for the budget being higher than in days when revenue was more easily available and when property values were much more substantial than today. They also attacked the increase in the number of jobs in county fee offices which was authorized by the judges of the Circuit court.

Among the major items in the $94,113 boost yesterday were $24,000 additional for supplies for the Oak Forest infirmary, $20,000 for employment of more mechanics in the public service department, and $12,000 for part of the county's share in a WPA sponsored project for construction of a park for convalescents adjoining county hospital.

$20,000 Added for Survey.

President Smith added $20,000 for a survey of the personnel of all county offices.

"We want to study conditions in these offices," Smith said, "with a view to finding out if expenses can be reduced when we come to making up the 1941 budget. I am going to discuss the matter with the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency."

The remaining $18,113 in the last minute budget increase was divided in small amounts among various departments for supplies.

Some commissioners declared that altho the 1940 budget is higher than that for 1939, it should be considered that in even numbered years the county has a heavy expense for elections. The county, in these years, is allowed an added tax rate of 4 cents per each $100 of assessed property valuation and for 1940 this would bring in $948,318.

On this basis, the 1940 budget could be compared with the one for 1938, when the county was allowed a similar added tax rate. But the 1938 budget was $22,168,660, which is $34,301 less than the one adopted yesterday.

Comparisons of Two Years.

The following tabulation shows the comparative appropriations for each county department in the 1939 and 1940 budgets:

There were increases over 1939 in nineteen departments, decreases in nine, and in one case—the state's attorney's office—the figure was constant.

The fourteen commissioners who voted for the budget were 10 Democrats—President Smith, Frank Bobrytzke, Elizabeth A. Conkey, Fred Fischman, Peter Fosco, Maurice F. Kavanagh, Mary McEnerney, Daniel Ryan, Edward M. Sneed, and John E. Traeger, and four Republicans, William Busse, H. Wallace Caldwell, William N. Erickson, and George A. Miller.

Commissioner Nixon, who cast the sole vote against the budget, said: "Taxes must be reduced. You can't reduce taxes without first reducing expenditures."

Comments of some of the other commissioners last night were:

PRESIDENT SMITH—There was no possible way we could have reduced the budget. We did everything humanly possible to cut it. A delay in passing it would mean only more demands and still higher appropriations. Next year we hope it will be different. We'll have a survey made of all departments to determine where and if cuts can be made. If there are excessive employés anywhere, or excessive salaries—they'll be cut.

MRS. CONKEY—I voted for the budget because I felt it was the best we could do under the circumstances. We went over and over it and tried our best not to have it too high. I'm hoping the survey of departments will help us eliminate in next year's appropriations any unnecessary expenditures.

Budgets Have Been Higher.

MISS McENERNEY—I think I did right. I don't regard the budget as excessive. We've passed higher budgets than that in the years I've been here.

MILLER—The budget is lower than last year's if you don't include the unavoidable expenses of election. Actually the budget is a compromise. There are some things I don't like, but the budget as a whole is the best we could do.

FOSCO—An election year naturally calls for an increase in the budget item covering election costs and expenses, and 1940 is an election year.

RYAN—It was the best we could do under the circumstances. We had to take care of increased needs of the institutions like the hospital and the Oak Forest infirmary.

SNEED—The budget was as low as we could get it. I figured I might as well vote for it. Nobody came forward with any good suggestions as to how to remedy the situation.

BUSSE—I feel that it was the best budget that it was possible to produce under present conditions.

ERICKSON—In deference to the request of the Real Estate board and other groups Thursday the five Republican members moved to delay final consideration of the budget for 15 days, but were overruled, 10 to 5. We were faced again with the problem of the fee offices and the persistent refusal to reduce their staffs and expenditures. It came to the point where the only savings we could effect would have been at the expense of the charitable institutions, and that was unthinkable.

REPUBLICANS MAY FIGHT TAX BOOST, SAYS HUGH CROSS

A warning to Gov. Horner that Republicans in the state legislature will insist that the present state revenue is ample to cover the cost of increasing old age pensions was contained in a speech delivered yesterday by Speaker Hugh W. Cross.

Cross told the Women's National Republican club of Oak Park in the Oak Park Arms hotel, that one of the acknowledged purposes of the special session Gov. Horner is expected to call next month is to raise new revenues. Springfield dispatches have said that one of the subjects before the session will be the imposition of a severance tax on oil production, a tax on removal of natural resources from the ground.

"The Republican party," said Cross, "is opposed to additional taxes. But Gov. Horner is not content with having boosted the cost of running the state government, exclusive of relief and pensions, by $33,500,000 over what they were in 1933. Again he is asking to add to our taxes."

$3,000,000,000 DEFICIT IS SURE, CAPITAL HEARS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt was described by usually well-informed officials today as reconciled to a $3,000,000,000 deficit in the next federal budget in spite of an announced desire to limit it to $2,000,000,000.

When the President sends his annual budget message to Congress the first week in January, these sources predicted, he will ask for about $9,250,000,000 of expenditures during the year beginning July 1, 1940. At the same time he is expected to forecast revenues during that fiscal year of about $6,300,000,000.

PRESIDENT HAS A NEW FEDERAL HOSPITAL PLAN

Asks Small Units in Areas That Need Them.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—President Roosevelt today disclosed that the administration is studying a comprehensive program for federal construction of hospitals in areas where such facilities are inadequate, with a view to submitting an orderly plan to congress.

The program contemplates a beginning of 50 hospitals, each of which would cost about $150,000 and provide facilities for 100 patients, Roosevelt said. The program could be expanded as conditions warranted.

Roosevelt emphasized that the plan would be far less costly than those embraced in pending bills introduced by Senators Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.] and Pat Harrison [D., Miss.]. The new plan is being undertaken by the special interdepartmental committee on health.

Complete Federal Control.

Under the new plan the government will bear 100 per cent of construction costs, retain title to the hospitals, and locate them only where there is satisfactory assurance that the community can support them.

Roosevelt emphasized that the plan is not to be a grandiose scheme of big hospitals. He made it clear that he was thinking of the needs of poor rural areas rather than cities.

The President acknowledged that the program has its pork barrel feature, in that congress will have the right to locate the institutions. However, he expressed hope that the planning might be placed in the hands of competent local and federal medical men.

The program will not be without benefit to the White House in handling a congress expected to be difficult to control, observers agreed. Judicious placing of hospital might provide the administration with many a needed vote.

Concerning Ohio Relief.

The chief executive was asked at his press conference about this talk yesterday with John Owens, head of the Ohio C. I. O. council, who criticized state administration of relief by Gov. John W. Bricker. Owens reported that the President was prepared to send army soup kitchens into the state.

The President said today that if it were shown that there was starving among home relief clients in Ohio he would send nonmilitary camp kitchens and other aid to that state.

WALLACE FORCES OUSTER OF FARM SCHOOL DIRECTOR

Las Cruces, N. M., Dec. 22 (AP).—State college regents discharged State Extension Director George R. Quesenberry today, complying with a demand made by the United States department of agriculture. The board's chairman, Arthur Starr, notified N. E. Dodd, regional director of the AAA, of Quesenberry's ouster.

The board met in emergency session on orders of Gov. John E. Miles after Secretary Henry A. Wallace threatened to withdraw all federal farm aid from the state unless Quesenberry was discharged. The department accused Quesenberry of being "positively hostile" to the federal farm program and with "complete failure" to coöperate with the AAA. He was accused of preventing distribution of $2,000,000 of agricultural benefits in New Mexico.

Quesenberry accused "political office holders" of prompting the trouble.

"All federal men in the agricultural department action agencies are political appointees," he said. "Some of them haven't had any experience directly fitting them for the administration of a farm program. This sort of trouble has arisen in virtually every state which has extensive farm programs."

Both wished each other "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year" in letters acknowledging the end, on Jan. 1, of the longest continuous service of any Detroit police commissioner. Pickert has served nearly six years.

Propose Warships Too Big for Canal

Photodiagram showing how the Pennsylvania, the largest American battleship, reaches almost from bank to bank of the Panama canal. A house subcommittee yesterday requested the navy department to prepare estimates on building battleships virtually twice as large as the Pennsylvania and too large to pass thru the canal unless the locks are enlarged.

HOUSE HAS PLAN TO DOUBLE SIZE OF BATTLESHIPS

Navy Asked to Figure on Probable Cost.

ton ships and therefore recommended the securing of authorizations for more of the larger vessels.

The navy now has eight battleships building, six 35,000 ton vessels which are on the ways and the two 45,000 ton vessels which are in the planning stage.

If its request for two additional 45,000 ton vessels is granted, the navy will have four ships of the same type to form a homogenous tactical unit of great power and great mobility. The vessels would mount nine 16 or 18 inch guns and have the highest speeds of any world battleships at about 35 knots. A squadron of four of these 45,000 ton vessels would form the most powerful division of battleships in the world.

Japan Builds Heavier Ships.

The construction of 45,000 ton vessels was authorized by congress after it had been reported that Japan is building two or more superships of 40,000 to 46,000 tons, armed with 16 or 18 inch guns. Japan has adopted a program of strict secrecy about her naval program and has not affirmed or denied the reports.

Work on the drawing of plans for the two 45,000 ton ships already authorized has scarcely started. Work is proceeding on the extension of facilities at the New York navy yard to take an 890 foot 45,000 ton vessel, but will not be sufficiently advanced to permit the laying of the keel before July, 1940.

The battleship to be built in New York is to be constructed in a 49 month period, a little more than four years. The second 45,000 ton vessel is to be built in the Philadelphia navy yard in a period of 52 months.

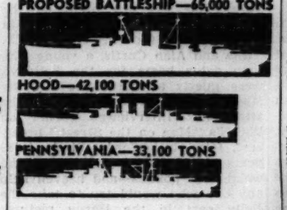
British Favor Smaller Ships.

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—British naval experts, commenting on reports that a United States congressional committee was exploring the possibility of building 65,000 ton battleships, said the war had proved the need for more and smaller battleships rather than large craft. The cost of such giants is prohibitive, they said.

"By all means build more battleships but smaller ones, not larger," summed up the reaction of British experts.

They also commented that Germany's 10,000 ton pocket battleships had proved to be too heavily gunned for their displacement.

[Pocket battleships, of which the scuttled Admiral Graf Spee was one, carry 11 inch guns. Other warships of the same tonnage carry 8 inch guns or smaller.]



Areas of rectangles represent the tonnages of such a superbattleship as house subcommittee has proposed and of the Hood (British), the largest warship afloat, and the Pennsylvania, the largest American battleship. Each square stands for 1,000 tons.

OPERA STARS SUE LAWYER FOR NOT BACKING SHOW

New York, Dec. 22 [Special].—Elisha Hanson, general counsel of the American Newspaper Publishers association, has been sued for a total of $131,860 in New York Supreme court by Marisa Morel, former Metropolitan Opera company lyric soprano, and 21 other singers and musicians. The complaints allege he agreed to furnish the Mozart Opera company with $100,000 in capital last spring and failed to keep his promise last August after making some contributions.

Hanson, in his answer, denies making the promises.

Miss Morel is the principal plaintiff. She is asking $100,000 damages. Her complaint alleges that Hanson met her last spring and proposed that a new opera company be formed. The complaint said that he asked her to assist him in organizing such a company and promised her that he would furnish or obtain $100,000 as a permanent fund for the venture and he would turn control of it over to her. She was also promised, she claimed, an income of about $10,000 a year from the company.

GOOD FELLOWS TO BRING JOY TO 14,500 CHILDREN

There's Still Time for You to Join Ranks.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The Good Fellows are making the rounds again, carrying good cheer to thousands who might otherwise have a bleak and lonely Christmas.

The Good Fellow button.

And today, as the distribution of baskets to unfortunate families continues, the records show that this is the most successful Good Fellow campaign in the last 10 years. Nearly 2,900 baskets, 34 per cent more than in 1938, will be distributed this season.

More than 4,000 men, women, and children either have contributed to the Good Fellow fund or will deliver baskets.

10,000 Take Part in Work.

Ten thousand persons have taken part in Good Fellow activities conducted during the last three weeks thruout Chicago and the suburbs. Estimating the average cost of a basket at $5, the total value of the campaign is $14,500. This is the 31st annual Good Fellow campaign.

Altho the Good Fellow campaign is over tonight, you still have an opportunity to help. You can get the name of a needy family by calling Good Fellow headquarters, Superior 0100, today, tomorrow, and even thruout Christmas day. Contributions of money are still acceptable. Make your check or money order payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.--Good Fellow fund. Or better still, bring your contribution to the Good Fellow bureau, 1 South Dearborn street.

The campaign this season consisted of three Good Fellow plans. Plan No. 1 was for Good Fellows who bought their own baskets and took them to an investigated family whose name was obtained from The Tribune Good Fellow bureau. Plan No. 2 included persons who sent in $1 or more to the Good Fellow Fund.

New Plan Included.

A newcomer to the Good Fellow campaign was plan No. 3. These Good Fellows formed a club, each member paying $1, sent the money to the Good Fellow fund, and then this week-end are taking groups of baskets, purchased by THE TRIBUNE, to needy families.

The purpose of plan No. 3 was to increase the club's buying power. Money coming to the fund from plan No. 2 was added to that raised by plan No. 3. Twenty-five organizations took part in plan No. 3 and their members are delivering about one-third of the total number of baskets. More than $6,000 was contributed under plans 2 and 3. Last year only $1,357.07 was in the cash fund. This year three times that amount will be contributed.

Happiness for Children.

These are the cold statistics of a Good Fellow campaign. More heart warming, perhaps, is an estimate of the number of boys and girls who will be made happy this Christmas because of the fine efforts of Good Fellows. Last year 11,000 children were remembered. This season the number will be 14,500.

Another innovation in this year's campaign has been the awarding of Good Fellow buttons to all who took part in the work. The appearance of these 10,000 buttons has helped to publicize the good being done by the Good Fellows.

The last of a series of public Good Fellow ceremonies will be conducted at 10 a. m. today by Aviation Good Fellows in the administration building of Chicago airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue.

300 Baskets to Be Delivered.

Members of this industry will deliver more than 300 baskets following a half-hour program including entertainment by stage stars, an address by an army chaplain, and Christmas carols. Maj. George Vest of the Chicago region of the Civil Aeronautics Authority will be master of ceremonies. Lewis M. Churbuck is the Aviation Good Fellow chairman. This is their seventh Good Fellow party and each year the number of baskets distributed has been increased.

Approximately two-thirds of the total number of baskets are being taken to homes today. Three hundred were delivered yesterday by the Traffic Club of Chicago. The remaining baskets will go out tomorrow.

So nears the close of a campaign made great by the unselfishness of 10,000 Good Fellows. It is not necessary that your Good Fellow editor and the entire staff wish you all a Merry Christmas.

ZOO MONKEYS HAVE NO SANTA; SKIPPY'S GONE

There will be no Santa Claus to delight the monkeys in the Lincoln park zoo this year. Skippy, the zoo's trained chimpanzee, who played the rôle on the last three Christmas days, died during the year. The Santa outfit which he jubilantly wore hangs in a closet in the office of Floyd Young, zoo director, and there is no one to take Skippy's place.

Mr. Young promised, however, that there will be extra helpings of grapes, lettuce, celery, carrots, oranges, and bananas in the primate house on Christmas day.

40 Boys from De Paul Sing Carols in Hospital

Forty boys from the De Paul academy went to County hospital yesterday and sang carols to the patients. Their songs were applauded by the shutins, particularly by those in the accident ward. The singers were trained by Theodore Lownik.

RAINY OR WHITE CHRISTMAS? IT'S JUST A TOSSUP

Cloudy skies will bring rain or snow to Chicago today and tomorrow. That was as far as Forecaster G. E. Dunn would go last night in his Christmas prediction, and this could leave the city with a wet Christmas as likely as a white one.

While Chicago was wondering about snow, some parts of the country were getting plenty of it as the winter solstice passed and winter arrived officially. Even in Alabama and Georgia temperatures were below freezing.

New York reported much snow; Pennsylvania had snow and icy highways, and there were snowdrifts four feet deep from an 8 inch fall in West Virginia.

CHURCHES' BELLS TOMORROW RING CALL FOR PEACE

Many Services Planned on Christmas Eve.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Carol, carillon and choir thruout the city tomorrow night will usher in the most cherished of all festivals in the calendar—Christmas. At midnight, the eve of the Nativity, with candles glowing on a thousand altars, the rush of a harried world will fade as Gloria in Excelsis Deo resounds from the church triumphant, and the church militant in antiphon chants Adeste Fideles!

Christmas summons mankind to a day of joy and charity. Especially does it call today on a world distraught, where joy and charity are widely usurped by sorrow and rancor, to displace war and to enthrone the Prince of Peace. Millions kneeling before the Babe of Bethlehem will pray that the Son of God bring the peace which passeth understanding.

Messages of Church Leaders.

Church leaders united in associating the hope of Bethlehem with peace in the world in their Christmas messages.

"God has written his divine purpose into the human stream," said the Rev. Ralph Wakefield, president of the Chicago Church federation. "The voice of the seer and prophet, the poet and philosopher and the Son of God all herald mankind to establish peace. God is calling America to take the lead in bringing about a lasting peace among all nations."

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, administrator of the Chicago archdiocese, extended the wish that Christmas will be a happy and a holy one, and bring to all those gifts and graces which they desire and need most.

World Tired of Conflict.

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, said in his message that the world is tired of conflict.

"Peace is possible—as the angels sang—only among men of good will," he continued, "when war ceases, the Christian principle of live and let live must be incarnated to insure a just and lasting peace."

Bishop Stewart will celebrate the midnight eucharist tomorrow night in St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist church, contrasted the peace in America at Christmas with the misunderstandings in other lands, but emphasized the anticipation for a better world which the feast presages.

On Christmas day, the noon mass in Holy Name cathedral will constitute a spiritual offering for the late Cardinal Mundelein. The first mass on that day will be at 4 o'clock, preceded by carols, broadcast within a one mile area, beginning a half hour earlier.

St. Andrew's Church Services.

At St. Andrew's church, Paulina and Addison streets, where Bishop Sheil is pastor, the mixed choir will begin singing carols at 2:30 o'clock on Christmas day, and solemn pontifical high mass will follow half an hour later.

Bishop William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society and pastor of St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets, will pontificate at the first mass on Christmas day at 4 o'clock. Other masses will be at 8, 9:30, 11, and noon.

The Rev. Canon David E. Gibson of the Cathedral shelter, 117 North Peoria street, has announced that the Rt. Rev. Edwin J. Randall, bishop suffragan of the Episcopal diocese, will visit the shelter at 10 o'clock on Christmas day to administer the rite of confirmation and celebrate the eucharist. After the service 1,500 homeless men from the west side will be given Christmas dinners.

Carillon to Be Heard.

The Crane Memorial carillon at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 North Dearborn street, will be heard before the midnight choral eucharist on Christmas eve. The Rev. Dr. Dudley S. Stark is the rector.

Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Chestnut street, will preach at the 11 a. m. service on Sunday. The services on Christmas day will be at 8:30, 9, and 9:30.

Two Veteran Employes of Moxley Family Honored

Gold watches were presented last night to two employés of the family of the late Col. William J. Moxley, Republican leader and butterine manufacturer, for long and faithful service to the family. They are Andrew Peter Andersen, 85 years old, of 1652 Farragut street, and Edward Halas, 35, of 3442 North Newcastle avenue. Both operate elevators in the Moxley building at 549 Randolph street, owned by the Moxley estate. The watches were presented by Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th], a friend of the family, at a party in the building.

Santa Brings Shoes

Children of colored family waiting to be fitted with shoes provided by Good Fellows.

Scores of Christmas shoppers saw Mr. Good Fellow in action yesterday in the Montgomery Ward department store at Chicago avenue and Larrabee street. The episode, which drew many a chuckle, was enacted in the shoe section, where William Elder, better known as Scotty to his fellow workers in THE TRIBUNE composing room, was outfitting a troop of tattered youngsters, colored and white, with substantial footwear. Toes wriggling thru holes in their stockings, the children propped their feet on the salesman's soft cushions and licked ecstatically on ice cream cones while the clerk took measurements.

Ten or more of his colleagues helped Scotty finance the shoe purchases for the two families he has adopted for Good Fellow Christmas benefits, and other friends contributed clothing. When Scotty plays Santa Claus he does it thoroly, even to knowing each of his charges by name. This is the lineup of boys and girls in the colored family he has taken under his wing: Budah, Queen Knitfield, Queen Sheba, Drew Ali, Medinah, Vishu, Cush, and Salome.

His Greek family had 13 when Scotty made the selection from the Good Fellow bureau. That number—13—had Scotty worried. But he's all smiles now. He was greeted by a brand new arrival when he delivered the Christmas tree Thursday.

SANTA IN CIRCUS WAGON STOPS AT ORPHANS' HOMES

There wasn't enough snow so Santa Claus arrived at the Guardian Angel Orphan asylum at Devon and Ridge avenues yesterday in a huge red circus wagon, loaded to the brass rails with Christmas presents for the 700 boys and girls there. Santa, driving the prize team of bay horses, was Dr. Thrift Hanks, an intern at the Grant hospital. His load of toys and gifts was gathered for the children by the 266 members of the hospital.

After visiting the Guardian Angel home Santa drove to the Uhlich home at 3730 North California avenue, where he distributed toys to the 90 children there. Most of the children wondered why Miss Margaret Karsten, wearing a hospital nurse's uniform, was along, but she explained that Santa had so much business this year that it was necessary for her to take care of him.

The Christmas parties were prepared by the hospital staff after it was suggested that the usual exchange of gifts between members be halted and the gifts given to the children.

Burning American Liner Reaches Port in Canal Zone

CRISTOBAL, Panama Canal Zone, Dec. 22 (AP).—The American cargo-passenger liner Wind Rush arrived tonight with her crew battling a blaze which broke out in the No. 3 hold yesterday while the vessel was 150 miles at sea. Firemen boarded the 5,586 ton vessel and began removing her deck cargo. The ship was listing slightly to port when she steamed into the harbor under forced draft. Officers said they believed the fire originated in fertilizer in the hold.

ROB FOREMAN AT LOOP BUILDING.
Two bandits accosted William Weisbrod, a foreman working on the new building at State and Randolph streets, yesterday and demanded the pay roll. When Weisbrod assured them he didn't have it, they took $5, slugged him, and fled.

W-G-N LAUNCHES YEAR OF NOTABLE MUSIC PROGRAMS

Holiday Series Opens Big Parade of Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

W-G-N's special holiday concerts, featuring operatic headliners, represent only the beginning of a series of distinguished musical presentations being arranged for 1940. The management of the station announced yesterday that the three concerts, which will feature Grace Moore and Attilio Baggiore, Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggert, and Allan Jones, successively, are to be followed by a year long series in which the talent of many of the world's greatest musical artists will be enlisted.

With this policy W-G-N expects to make available the finest in classical and popular concert music and to give impetus to interest in the City Opera company and its fund raising campaign.

Miss Moore to Open Series.

Miss Moore, the opera and motion picture star, will open the holiday parade. She will sing four songs on the W-G-N Christmas program from 8 to 9 p. m. Monday. Mr. Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor, is to be featured with her. Henry Weber, musical director of both W-G-N and the opera, will direct the W-G-N Concert orchestra, which will be especially augmented on this occasion.

Miss Moore appeared with the City Opera company six times this season. She will make her first appearance of the winter radio season on W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system thru the courtesy of Edsel Ford, who waived a clause in a contract which provided that Miss Moore might not appear on the air until she had fulfilled an engagement on the Ford program New Year's eve.

Kiepura and Wife Costarred.

Mr. Kiepura, famed Polish tenor, and Miss Eggert, his wife, will be costarred in a special presentation of the Concert Revue on W-G-N next Thursday, Dec. 28. The Kiepuras, each of whom has been starred in motion pictures, will present a program including holiday, operatic, and concert numbers. Miss Eggert will make her American operatic debut New Year's eve in the City Opera presentation of "La Bohème." Mr. Kiepura is to sing in the same production.

The third special concert of the holidays, on New Year's eve, will feature Allan Jones, tenor of motion picture, radio, and operetta fame. Mr. Jones is starred in the new picture, "The Great Victor Herbert."

A JUDGE GIVES COUPLE A YULE PACKAGE OF JOY

Mr. and Mrs. George Hellis' most prized Christmas present is Helene, a little girl from Greece who traveled all alone to live in their home at 5325 Woodlawn avenue.

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki played Santa Claus to them yesterday, signing papers by which she became their adopted daughter. Her sister, Xakousti, 10 years old, whom the Hellises adopted almost five years ago, shared their joy.

Mr. and Mrs. Hellis are the girls' uncle and aunt. Xakousti came here alone after the death of her father in their native Greece. A few days ago Helene arrived. She is 9 years old. Hellis, a shoe repair man, notified his attorney, George S. Porikos, and arrangements for the second adoption were made.

Horan Holds 16th Annual Yule Party for Children

Albert J. Horan, bailiff of the Municipal court, was host to 3,500 children yesterday at a Christmas show in the Senate theater, 3128 Madison street. The boys and girls of the Spalding school for crippled children were special guests. Santa Claus distributed gifts. It was the 16th annual Christmas movie party Horan has given for west side youngsters.

HORNER URGES CHRISTMAS EVE NIGHT OF LIGHT

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 22 (AP).—A night of light thruout Illinois on Christmas eve was urged today by Gov. Henry Horner as a symbol of "freedom, happiness, peace, and security."

The proposal, he said, would demonstrate the blessings of American security in contrast with the large areas of Europe.

"In war-plagued nations," the governor said, "alike in quiet countrysides and in great cities, the lights are turned off and windows darkened as a military precaution. In America, the lights shine freely thru the winter dusk.

"It has been happily suggested that on this Christmas eve we turn on all the lights from early evening 'til midnight, so to symbolize our national heritage of freedom. I approve of this suggestion to the full."

SALVATION ARMY PLAYS SANTA TO 3,000 CHILDREN

Coins dropped by shoppers into the Salvation Army's red kettles since Thanksgiving day brought Christmas delight to more than 3,000 children last night. The army's forces opened their holiday activities with four parties.

Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, commander for the Chicago district and the middle west, was host to 1,500 boys and girls at the Chicago temple, 1512 Madison street. The Englewood corps entertained 550 young guests at 6405 Emerald avenue, and the Humboldt corps was host to 500 at 1710 North California avenue. Five hundred were given a party at the Salvation Army settlement, 3053 Normal avenue.

SHOPPERS TIE UP LOOP TRAFFIC TO GAPE AT A HORSE AND A BUGGY

Loop shoppers gaped in amazement yesterday when they saw a horse drawn carriage stop in State street. An elderly couple alighted and hitched the horse to an electric light post. Then, before a mounted policeman could gallop up to inquire into such strange goings on, the two disappeared into a store.

Pedestrians crowded around to see the curiosity while motorists honked their horns to force a passage. Traffic was pretty well jammed before the couple emerged from the store, their arms full of Christmas bundles.

They said that they were Mr. and Mrs. William Gamble of 1429 Cullom avenue, and explained they were shopping just as they had in 1893 when they were married. They said that it was because of a bet.

NEEDIEST HORSES TO SHARE ALSO IN YULE CHEER

The hungriest looking horses in the loop today will get a bit of Christmas cheer. The Anti-Cruelty Society's Santa Claus, with red suit and whiskers, will tour the town carrying 1,000 delicious Christmas dinners—mixed rations of 5 to 6 pounds of apples, carrots, cracked corn, oats, coarse wheat flour and a pinch of salt. It is the fourth year the society has dramatized the plight of animals whose owners neglect them. The food was mixed yesterday in the society's headquarters, 157 West Grand avenue. Tony, a mare rescued from the streets, tasted the dinner and pronounced it perfect.

A GAY WEEK-END GETS UNDER WAY IN WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—A gay week-end of Christmas celebrations which will bring four generations of Roosevelts together in the White House got under way today with the President's annual party for his 154 office employés.

Each got a hearty Christmas wish, a handshake, and a pewter letter holder from the Val-Kill shop formerly operated by Mrs. Roosevelt.

The gifts bore a medallion likeness of the President and an inscription, "President F. D. Roosevelt, Hyde Park, N. Y."

Final touches were put on the decorations today. The 20 foot East Room tree, trimmed in imitation snow, white lights, and white streamers, was the last of 32 trees to go up. Bright baubles already had been placed on the family Christmas tree upstairs, which Mrs. Roosevelt usually decorates at the President's direction. All windows were gay with laurel and pine cone wreaths tied with red ribbon bows. It took 110 wreaths for the house and office.

Governor Dickinson Does Santa Claus a Good Turn

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22 (AP).—Gov. Dickinson gave Santa Claus a lift today by wiring a New York manufacturer to rush delivery as a "distinct personal favor" of a six-wheel switching locomotive for a toy train. The locomotive is for Joseph H. Creighton Jr., son of a political writer. The father, "one of those tardy Christmas shoppers," according to the governor, found too late that he could not fill his order here. Late today the governor was told that it was being shipped in time for Christmas.

THAT INDEFINABLE SOMETHING

By CALEB

EVERY business well conceived, well conducted, and long-established, has an "atmosphere." Suggesting something invisible and intangible, the word nevertheless seems satisfactory to its users; for it denotes something that really exists . . . something anyone can sense and feel.

Thousands of customers, chance comers and casual visitors have spoken to us of a definite atmosphere which they associate with Field's. Something grasped by the fingers of the mind, not of the hand. Something as real as love, courage, or goodness—but like them, beyond the five senses. And always, in speaking thus, they have used terms of congratulation, as if paying a compliment. . . . What, I have been pondering, IS this "atmosphere" they refer to?

After much inconclusive thinking on the subject, an answer met me, the other evening, in two straightforward sentences from the writing of Herbert Spencer. "The truly honest man, here and there to be found, is not only without thought of legal, religious, or social compulsion, when he discharges an equitable claim on him; but he is without thought of self-compulsion. He does the right thing with a simple feeling of satisfaction in doing it, and is indeed impatient if anything prevents him from having the satisfaction of doing it." . . .

Was not that, I asked myself, the outstanding characteristic of the man who founded this business—and of the men who have successively headed it since? An instinctive impatience for rightness? Personal with these and all men like them, does not such an attitude quickly communicate itself to associates, subordinates, the entire rank-and-file? Being a "soul quality" it is, of course, intangible and invisible—yet it as definitely exists as the atmosphere in Nature. To the business that would abide, in fact, it is not only real as breath, but just as vital—transcends every other consideration of its conduct.

The truth is that commercial integrity recognizes, as Spencer says, no "thought of self-compulsion." For trade is merely an indispensable part of man's bigger business of Living—and is motivated by the same instincts that otherwise determine his success or decree his failure. . . .

Among his own "Twelve Things to Remember," Marshall Field defined this atmosphere enveloping a good enterprise by four words: The worth of character. Both Spencer and himself—one in the philosopher's careful phrase, the other in the crisper idiom of the merchant—were talking about this same "indefinable something."

NLRB IS ACCUSED OF BALKING PEACE AT BISCUIT PLANT

Election Denied, Company Charges at Hearing.

Hearing on a labor union complaint against the Burry Biscuit corporation was begun yesterday before an examiner of the National Labor Relations board despite the assertions of company attorneys that the board had refused to settle the matter directly and thus avoid the expense of litigation.

The assertions were made by Attorneys Don K. Jones and Thomas Mulroy in a hearing before Examiner Guy Van Schaick in the United States customs court at 610 South Canal street. The attorneys appeared on a complaint filed against the company by the Cracker and Biscuit Workers' union, local 411, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. The union is attempting to organize workers in the company plant at 6555 West 65th street.

Charges Board with Delays.

Attorney Jones declared the complaint was first filed with the board last January. Since then, he said, the company has made repeated efforts to have the matter settled by the board but the board has refused to take any action. The company, he said, is in no position to stand the expense of a hearing and the legal fees that would be involved.

The union accuses the company of fostering and controling an independent organization of employés known as the Independent Union of Cookie and Cracker Makers. The company also is charged with discharging an employé for activity in the A. F. of L. union. These charges are denied by the company.

"The company has no fight with its employés," Jones said, "nor has the company any desire to dominate or control any union. All the company wants is for the labor board to hold an election among our workers and tell us what group to deal with."

Election Plea Rejected.

He said the company appealed to labor board officials in Washington last July, but that the board refused to hold any election. He said similar requests made at the regional office in Chicago had been refused. Repeated conferences with labor board representatives also failed to bring any action, Jones declared.

"The company wants to comply with the labor act, but nobody will tell us what to do," Jones said. "The board can stop the hearing now and order an election and thus carry out the meaning of the labor act. Any hearing is just a waste of time."

Robert Rissman, attorney for the labor board, argued that the board had no authority to order an election in such a case. He said such a request was improper.

Examiner Van Schaick then ordered that the hearing be resumed next Tuesday. The company employs 300 persons here and has a second plant in Elizabeth, N. J.

COURT'S ORDERS ON PICKET SIGNS' WORDING VOIDED

The Indiana Supreme court held yesterday that the Lake county Circuit court exceeded its authority when it prescribed the type and wording of signs that might be carried by union pickets trying to gain a closed shop agreement with a Hammond, Ind., grocer, Aaron Roth.

Roth opposed the agreement, and three employés sided with him, refusing to go on strike. The Retail Clerks' International Protective association began picketing the place. Roth got a temporary modified injunction in which the Circuit court specified pickets might pass in front of his market if their signs bore this inscription in letters 1½ inches high:

"The object of this picketing is to compel the store owner to sign a closed shop contract with Retail Clerks' union, No. 1460, A. F. L. His clerks are not on strike, do not wish to join the union, and are satisfied with wages, hours, and working conditions."

The Supreme court opinion, written by Judge Curtis G. Shake, said the Circuit court was outside its jurisdiction in prescribing the form picketing should take.

WORKERS SHOULD FIGHT SABOTAGE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 [Special].—President Roosevelt said today that industrial workers have a positive duty to aid federal agents in ferreting out saboteurs.

The President was told at his press conference that a group of industrialists in Cleveland, O., had organized a safety council to prevent sabotage, and that this had been done thru the encouragement of the navy's intelligence service. He was asked what was the government's policy in such matters.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had not heard of the Cleveland organization. The policy in such matters, he said, is a simple one. What would labor do if in a plant employing 10,000 persons there were 10 potential saboteurs, he asked. It was the duty of the government, he said, to ferret out those 10, and added that it was also the duty of industry and labor to help the government do so.

WISCONSIN UNION RIPS SMITH AND MADDEN OF NLRB

Urges They Quit for Nation's Good.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 22 [Special].—Chairman J. Warren Madden and Edwin S. Smith could do the country a great service by resigning from the National Labor Relations board, the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor declared in a formal statement today.

Condemnation of the labor board was expressed after its decision which held invalid the American Federation of Labor's contracts with the Electric Vacuum company of Cleveland, O. The decision was more destructive of labor peace than any ever handed down by the board, the federation statement said.

"Instruments of C. I. O."

"No other decision demonstrates so clearly the charges made by the American Federation of Labor that the majority members of the National Labor Relations board are the instruments of the C. I. O. in its announced determination to destroy the American Federation of Labor," the statement continued.

"The Wagner law could and should be, as was intended, an instrument for industrial peace. Its maladministration makes it a device for the germination of strikes. The national board apparently is determined to administer the Wagner act to be on a par with the misnamed Wisconsin peace act. Madden and Smith could do the nation no better service than to resign forthwith from the board.

Ruling Called Vandalism.

"The ax wielded by the National Labor Relations board seeks to demolish the employer labor relationship. The latest piece of vandalism perpetrated by the board is in line with the philosophy of the once flourishing I. W. W. [Industrial Workers of the World] of 30 or 40 years ago and with that of the communists of today. They favored freedom from any contractual tieup and fostered numerous short, jerky strikes, in hopes of fanning the flames of revolution.

"We may look forward to increased strife as a result of the stupid maneuverings of a biased government body."

JAPS OPTIMISTIC AFTER 4TH TALK WITH U. S. ENVOY

TOKIO, Dec. 22 (AP).—Japanese circles tonight expressed optimism that the fourth conversation between American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and Foreign Minister Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura today smoothed the way toward settlement of American-Japanese problems.

Domei, Japanese news agency, quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying it had become clear that "relations between the countries have been assured of a happy development, dispelling whatever apprehensions may have been entertained by business circles on both sides."

The ambassador was believed to have told the foreign minister in their one hour meeting about the American attitude toward the Japanese plan to reopen the Yangtze river in China to commerce as far as Nanking. The conversations have become more frequent as Jan. 26 approaches—the date of the expiration of the trade treaty between the United States and Japan.

Mrs. Nancy Traylor Weeks Divorced Without Contest

Marcy T. Weeks of 542 Rush street was granted an uncontested divorce yesterday from Mrs. Nancy Traylor Weeks, daughter of the late Melvin A. Traylor, who was president of the First National bank. He told Judge Rudolph Desort that his wife asked him to leave their home and later refused his plea for a reconciliation. His attorney, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., said Mrs. Weeks is now living at the home of her mother, 426 Barry avenue. Mrs. Weeks was given permission to resume her maiden name. She is 25 years old. Weeks is 28.

LAURA INGALLS' PILOT PERMIT IS SUSPENDED BY AERONAUTICS BODY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—The civil aeronautics authority today suspended the pilot's certificate of Laura Ingalls until she proves her knowledge of air traffic regulations.

Miss Ingalls, holder of the nonstop transcontinental speed record for women, bombarded downtown Washington with antiwar pamphlets on Sept. 26. The CAA said this was a violation of regulations against flights over a restricted area and against dropping articles from an airplane.

The CAA said her pilot's certificate was suspended "until she shall pass an examination in those parts of the civil air regulations dealing with aircraft certificates, pilot ratings, and air traffic rules." Such an examination is required of all pilots in the early stages of their careers but is not ordinarily given to a pilot of Miss Ingalls' experience.

GENERAL GRANT MAY SAVE JAPS FROM PENALTY

Tariff Rule Snarled by 1872 Order.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—The ghost of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant today saved Japan, at least temporarily, from a 10 per cent penalty tariff.

This is the complicated legal situation disclosed by Basil Harris, commissioner of customs:

An 1828 law puts a 10 per cent extra tariff on foreign merchandise brought to the United States in foreign ships. Japan is exempted from this at present by the Japanese-American commercial trade agreement, but the United States has denounced this treaty. Thus, when the agreement expires officially on Jan. 26, Japan would appear to become liable for the 1828 penalty.

Replaces Trade Agreement.

Harris searched the records, however, and found out that in 1872, Grant, then President, issued a proclamation suspending the penalty against Japan, and this proclamation will replace the trade agreement in preventing the penalty duty Jan 26.

However, altho Harris did not say so, President Roosevelt apparently can revoke President Grant's proclamation, if congress doesn't beat him to it by embargoing Japanese goods altogether.

Hint at New Arrangement.

But Grant may save the day for Japan until a new trade agreement is negotiated. The Japanese have hinted at some new arrangement and have made a bid for American goodwill by offering to reopen the Yangtze river in China to foreign vessels.

Free Army Officer's Widow of Perjury in $50,000 Suit

Dedham, Mass., Dec. 22 (AP).—A jury acquitted Mrs. Ione Nugent of Chicago, 40 year old widow of an army officer, today of a charge of perjury based on her recent unsuccessful $50,000 breach of contract suit against Philip Loring Reed, millionaire industrialist. Mrs. Nugent contended he employed her as a confidential investigator of big businesses. Mrs. Nugent, who conducted her own defense after her counsel retired from the case, was overcome when the jury returned after two hours' deliberation. She quickly recovered her composure, however.

U. S. LABOR BOARD DENIES IT SHOWS C. I. O. PARTIALITY

Replies to Green with Figures on Cases.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—Charges of the American Federation of Labor that the National Labor Relations board has shown favoritism to the C. I. O. were denied today by the board. Figures were submitted in an effort to show that the two rival labor organizations had fared equally well before the board.

The board's position was outlined by Charles Fahy, its general counsel, after William Green, president of the A. F. of L. had said that evidence presented to a house committee investigating conduct of the board "tends to support" A. F. of L. accusations of partiality.

In submitting his figures, Fahy said that of the 112 cases last year in which both the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. had participated, the A. F. of L. had won 51 and the C. I. O. 44, and both had won part victories in 13. Fahy said that in cases involving a direct conflict the board had sustained the A. F. of L. in 16 and the C. I. O. in 19.

Hearings to Be Resumed.

The house committee investigating the labor board is expected to resume its hearings after Christmas. It was not revealed whether it would recall to the stand Philip G. Phillips, Cincinnati regional director of the NLRB, who is known as a protégé of Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme court.

Phillips spent several uncomfortable hours in the witness chair before the committee Monday and Tuesday when evidence was brought out indicating he had inspired prosecution of an unfair labor case because C. I. O. union leaders said they were obligated to communists.

Defender of Communists.

Under a barrage of questions from committee members, Phillips declared that a communist is entitled to the same protection under the Wagner Labor act as members of other political parties unless they are engaged in subversive activities. He made this statement after he was reminded that the communist party is regarded as a group whose principle is to foment trouble in this country in order to bring about a revolution similar to that which established the party in Russia.

The investigating committee also uncovered documentary evidence showing claims by Phillips that he had prevented publication of material in the Cincinnati Enquirer unfavorable to the labor board thru a friendly city editor and the American newspaper guild, an affiliate of the C. I. O.

His Report Called False.

Phillips' confidential reports to Washington on his news suppression activities were labeled as "a bald misstatement of truth and fact" by W. F. Wiley, publisher of the paper in question. Wiley said the city editor Phillips acclaimed as a dear friend was nothing more than a casual acquaintance and that the paper had covered faithfully and without fear or favor all NLRB stories.

The disclosures concerning Phillips led to an inquiry by several committee members into his history which revealed that he had been sent to government service by Frankfurter when the latter was professor of law at Harvard university.

Frankfurter has sent hundreds of his students into the government service. His bright young men are active in every branch of the government in high places even to the White House, where Thomas G. Corcoran, Harvard 1925, is President Roosevelt's closest advisor.

Once Held Post in NRA.

Phillips was born in Cincinnati in 1902. He attended high school in that city and went on to Harvard, being graduated from its law school in 1927. He practiced law in Boston and then went to work for the American Arbitration association in New York City.

In 1931 he joined the Harvard law faculty. In 1933 he came to Washington, recommended by his former professor, and was given a job in the NRA as counsel for the corset code authority.

When the blue eagle was killed he went to work for several New Deal agencies. In 1936 he was sent to Cincinnati to lace industry into the rigid NLRB regulations. He was named regional director May 5, 1937.

No members of the Ohio congressional delegation or Ohio Democratic leaders were consulted about the appointment, as far as could be learned here. Several members of the Ohio delegation said they will have something to say about the appointment that will burn the Phillips ears when congress meets.

LABOR MURDER STILL A MYSTERY AFTER 7 WEEKS

The murder of Paul Peters, union printing pressman, went into the eighth week as an unsolved mystery last night as special squads of police and investigators from the state's attorney's office continued their work on the case. Peters was shot to death Oct. 31 in front of his home at 3505 North Oak Park avenue.

Lieut. Kyran Phelan, in charge of a special division created to investigate unsolved murders, announced that Sergt. Jack Hamrahan, ace detective of the special division, has been assigned with a squad to devote full time to the case. Police say they know the identity of the killer and are attempting to build an iron clad case against him.

The slaying is attributed to a factional fight in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union. Peters' murder is one of seven unsolved killings laid to labor troubles in Chicago in the last 22 months.

WAUKEGAN POST UNDER SCRUTINY OF FEDERAL JURY

Study Part of Inquiry Into Gambling.

United States Attorney William J. Campbell said yesterday that his staff is investigating the history and background of the Waukegan Post, a daily that started publication Sept. 5.

He indicated that the federal grand jury, which is now looking into the incomes of persons connected with the gambling industry, would also investigate, with a view to determining who is interested in the paper.

Skidmore Attorney Is Publisher.

William Goldstein, attorney for William R. Skidmore, reputed gambling boss, is publisher of the Post. Goldstein has asserted the newspaper is a personal venture of himself and his sons, and has denied that Skidmore and his associates have any investment in the property.

The basis for investigation was a charge by Frank H. Just, publisher of the long established Waukegan News-Sun, that "an emissary of Skidmore" had offered him $100,000 to withdraw his opposition to syndicate gambling in Lake county. Just said he declined the offer and that he was warned then that some Chicagoans wanted to back a new newspaper to compete with the News-Sun.

O'Hare Once Subscriber.

Campbell has been furnished, thru Just, with a list of names of mail subscribers to the Post. This list was certified as accurate by A. E. Smith, who was circulation manager for Goldstein until he resigned on Dec. 14.

Smith's affidavit stated that Edward J. O'Hare, slain head of the Sportsman's Park race track, was a subscriber to the Post, and that his name was taken from the list soon after his death. A number of politicians and well known figures in the gambling industry, residents of Chicago, were on the list.

DR. GORE EVADES DEATH SENTENCE BY GUILTY PLEA

First Trial Voided; Gets 14 Years' Prison.

Benton, Ill., Dec. 22 [Special].—Dr. George W. Gore, previously ordered electrocuted by a jury, today was sentenced to serve 14 years in prison for the murder of his relative, Carl Choisser, Benton attorney and newspaper publisher.

Dr. Geo. W. Gore.

The change was effected thru a new trial granted by Circuit Judge Blaine Huffman of Lawrenceville and the immediate entry of a plea of guilty by Dr. Gore. State's Attorney Rea Jones denied he had recommended the reduced punishment and said he thought the sentence was inadequate. Judge Huffman presided at Dr. Gore's first trial.

Choisser, nephew of Dr. Gore's first wife, was shot to death in the business district here Sept. 22. At that time he was counsel for Dr. Gore's namesake son, who was then facing trial in the mysterious slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Nancy Gore, the physician's second wife. The son subsequently was acquitted.

Charge 2 Jurors Biased.

A new trial for Dr. Gore was granted today after his counsel presented affidavits charging two jurors had said, before they were accepted as jurors, that the doctor should be given the death penalty.

One affidavit, signed by Mrs. Robert Botramel of Thompsonville, said Juror John Smith, also of Thompsonville, told her Dr. Gore "should be burnt." Another one, signed by her husband, said Smith told him if he were chosen as a juror he "would know what to do as Gore was guilty."

A third affidavit, signed by Mrs. Nina Hackett of West Frankfort, charged that Mrs. Mary Gallick, another juror, told her she believed Dr. Gore guilty and that he "ought to have the death penalty." Two other affidavits said a third juror, Harley Beatty, was only a block from the scene of the shooting when it occurred.

Plea Surprises Prosecutor.

Following the short hearing, Jones said the sudden change from the maximum to the minimum penalty against Dr. Gore had come as a complete surprise to him.

Asked about the possibility of action being taken against the jurors who had sworn they "had open minds on the case," the prosecutor said he did not contemplate any legal steps.

Judge Huffman, commenting after the trial on the minimum sentence, said he was swayed by Dr. Gore's age and his poor physical and mental condition. He expressed the belief the defendant would not live long in the penitentiary and that a short sentence would be as effective as a life term.

During today's proceedings Ewing Choisser, father of the slain publisher, sat with Prosecutor Jones, and Dr. Gore's son was among the spectators in the half filled courtroom.

Admits Shooting Choisser.

Dr. Gore, 65 years old and well known thruout southern Illinois, admitted shooting Choisser but pleaded emotional insanity and charged the editor had interfered in his family affairs. It was reported at the time of the shooting that Dr. Gore and Choisser had quarreled over the plea young Gore was to make to the slaying of his stepmother, the physician insisting that he plead guilty.

During Dr. Gore's trial his attorneys told the jury that Choisser had threatened to blame him for responsibility in the deaths of both his wives if he did not finance the defense of his son.

The physician's first wife died in 1935. The second Mrs. Gore, who had been the doctor's secretary for 10 years before their marriage in 1937, was shot to death in bed at their home here. Young Gore was charged with her murder after he was said to have confessed, but he repudiated the alleged confession and was acquitted a month before his father's conviction.

"PERFECT CRIME" KILLER ENTERS A PLEA OF INSANITY

Carl Hubert Erickson, 25 years old, the confessed slayer of his friend, Herbert Woolf, 28, entered a plea of not guilty because of emotional insanity before Chief Justice John Prystalski in Criminal court yesterday. His attorney, Samuel Hoffman, obtained the court's permission to have Erickson given a sanity test by Dr. Harry G. Hoffman, head of the Cook county behavior clinic.

Erickson once worked in a garage at 145 East Grand avenue. When Wolff forced him out of the job after Erickson had befriended him, Erickson determined on revenge and planned a perfect crime, he told police. He was trapped Tuesday when he boasted of his knowledge of the crime to a young woman who aided police in working on the case.

Two Masked Gunmen Rob Girl of $1,055 Pay Roll

Miss Corrinne Lichter, 19 years old, an employé of the Belding Hosiery company, 2300 Wabansia avenue, was robbed of a pay roll of $1,055 yesterday as she returned to the company's plant from a bank. She said two masked men followed her from the bank, and one threatened her with a gun.

BOY, 16, CHARGED WITH MURDER IN HUNTER SLAYING

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 22 [Special].—The Champaign county grand jury will be asked to indict Jack Adams, 16, on a charge of murder for the slaying of Hezekiah Mank, 32, Urbana grocer, Assistant State's Attorney C. H. Swick said today. Adams is in the county jail.

Mank was slain Tuesday on a hunting trip. His frozen body was found yesterday in a pile of corn stalks about 15 miles northeast of here. Adams, who was arrested in the CCC camp in Thornton, Chicago suburb, admitted slaying Mank, but said he shot him accidentally.

Three physicians today said an examination disclosed that Mank had been shot at a range of about two inches.

Adams admitted taking a purse from Mank's clothing, but said it contained only $7. Mank's widow said he had $200 in cash and three $100 checks in his pocket when he left on the trip.

State police found a pillow cover in the CCC camp bed in which Adams had slept. On the back of it he had written a note to his mother saying he feared the "hot seat" [electric chair] and planned to commit suicide.

WINS CITIZENSHIP THAT WAS DENIED HIM IN 1930 PLEA

Vincenzo Nuzzo, once a prominent figure in the west side Italian settlement, who was denied American citizenship in 1930, received his naturalization papers yesterday before Judge Russell W. Smith in the La Porte county Superior court in Michigan City, Ind. Nuzzo gave his present address as Long Beach, Ind. He said he is in the wholesale fruit business in Chicago.

Nuzzo withdrew his citizenship petition in 1930 after investigation recalled that he had been tried for murder in 1921 and arraigned on charges of dry law violations in 1927. Immigration Examiner F. M. Symmes told Nuzzo yesterday that he could become a citizen under a new federal law requiring an applicant to show good moral character for only three years, if he is married to an American citizen. Nuzzo was warned that if the government should later learn this not to be true, he would be jailed for perjury, and then deported.

Nuzzo's Long Beach home is said to be near the estate of Mike Carrozzo, czar of the street laborers' union.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF HOODLUM IS GRANTED DELAY

Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Felony court yesterday continued to Jan. 18 a charge of murder against James Redden, 4200 Emerald avenue, who is accused of slaying Joseph Carville, a minor hoodlum, last April 1. Redden was admitted to $25,000 bond after his attorney, George Crane, argued that there was not great presumption of guilt against the defendant.

Carville was found slain in his car, parked at 64th street and Harvard avenue. Miss Alice Janssen, with whom he had been living, was beside the car, badly wounded. She named Redden as the gunman. Redden surrendered to the police on Wednesday.

Attorney Crane said yesterday that Miss Janssen has filed a suit against the operators of a former tavern at 674 West 63d street under the dram shop act, charging that the shooting occurred there. In the suit, said Crane, she told a story different from that given to the police when she involved Redden. On the basis of the change in her story, Crane asked that Redden be admitted to bail.

FREE EMBEZZLER OF COUNTY FUNDS AFTER TWO YEARS

Jack D. Chisholm, who was convicted two years ago of embezzling $3,200 from the county treasurer's office, is one of 227 Illinois prisoners who were granted paroles by the parole board yesterday.

A total of 135 of the prisoners were convicted in the Cook county Criminal court. Chisholf, who was employed as a teller in the treasurer's office, was sentenced to 1 to 15 years. Peter Chibucos, who was sentenced to 1 to 10 years for participating in a $9,000 dairy pay roll robbery in River Forest a year and a half ago, is among the others paroled.

BOY SHOOTS GIRL AFTER REBUFF IN MICHIGAN SCHOOL

Shots Mar Christmas Play by Students.

Hillsdale, Mich., Dec. 22 (AP).—Spurned in pleas for a date, a high school athlete shot and wounded a school superintendent's secretary today during a Christmas party for students.

Sheriff Frederic Marshall said that Richard Valentine, 18, prep football player, admitted shooting Edith Balcom, 18, pretty stenographer and honor graduate, at the high school in Reading, 12 miles southwest of here, this afternoon.

Four shots were fired, the sheriff said, from a small caliber revolver Valentine had borrowed "to go hunting." One struck Miss Balcom in the neck and a second in the back.

Probably Will Recover.

Physicians at Hillsdale City hospital, where she was taken while her young admirer was being lodged in the county jail here, said she probably would recover. Valentine was held without charge pending the outcome of her injuries.

Sheriff Marshall, who said Valentine expressed sorrow over the shooting, reported that the youth, a resident of Lansing, Mich., who formerly attended the Reading school, called on Miss Balcom at the school.

She was alone at work in the office of Supt. Max Smith. Teachers and the student body were enjoying the school's annual Christmas party in the gymnasium.

Shoots After Refusal.

A dispute arose when the girl refused to make an engagement with him and Valentine fired, Sheriff Marshall said.

Mrs. Vina Terpenning, a teacher, heard the shots and rushed to the office. The sheriff said she told of hearing Valentine cry out: "Oh, I shot her. I'm sorry I shot her." She said he then tried to help the wounded girl.

Supt. Smith said Valentine had sought Miss Balcom's company before. He said the youth, who is short of stature and bears little of the appearances of a football player, had been in minor troubles while he attended the Reading school.

QUIZ WAITRESS AND SUITOR IN DEATH MYSTERY

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 22 [Special].—A Mishawaka tavern waitress and a man said to be her sweetheart, were being questioned by police tonight in the investigation into the mysterious death of Stephen Melkey, a Mishawaka factory worker. The two men were said to have been rival suitors of the waitress, Miss Bertie Devos, 27 years old.

Stephen Melkey.

Police said Melkey, his eyes and mouth taped and his wrists bound behind his back, stumbled onto U. S. highway 20 in South Bend and was fatally injured last night when he was struck by the automobile of a passing motorist.

Officers were investigating the possibility Melkey had been kidnaped and left near the highway as a result of his attentions to Miss Devos. Police questioned and released George H. Smith of South Bend, a co-worker with Melkey in a Mishawaka factory. They were still holding the waitress and her friend, Allen F. Polomskey, 28, of Mishawaka, a coal yard employé.

FIVE STATE VICE RING STUDIED BY FEDERAL AGENTS

Federal authorities were reported yesterday investigating a vice syndicate, operating in five states, as the result of the arrest 10 days ago of a man accused of having lured small town girls into white slavery on promises of marriage or employment.

In custody is John Siapikas, 29 years old, alias Miller, alias Srog. He is being held by the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation in lieu of $5,000 bond on a white slavery charge.

Siapikas, according to federal agents, enticed a girl from Wayne county, Indiana, into Chicago, and forced her into a Joliet vice resort. The girl was found and made the charges against Siapikas. He was then seized in a hotel in South Michigan avenue. Police said a note book with addresses of vice spots in Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, and Wisconsin was found in his room.

Powerful Woman Robber Gets $200 and $45 Ring

A woman—short, dark, and muscular—was sought by police yesterday as a robber. She got away with $200 and a $45 ring after womanhandling Mrs. Barbara Durant, 42 years old, in the latter's rooming house at 405 South Ashland avenue. The Amazon seized Mrs. Durant's purse and held her off with one hand while she rifled the purse with the other. Then she wrenched a cameo ring from her victim's finger and walked out after push sent Mrs. Durant sprawling on the floor.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 22 (AP).—Federal troops today were reported closing in on 40 robbers who recently sacked the Puebla state village of Xaltianguis. Four of the villagers were killed in the attack and others were robbed of crops and live stock.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

DEAD TAX REVIVED.

In 1936, as a result of a proposal of President Roosevelt, congress enacted what has since been referred to as the world's worst tax. Its object was to prevent corporations from using their earnings to expand, to improve their products, and to prepare for the rainy day. To avoid being penalized, all of each year's earnings had to be paid out to stockholders. Corporations which retained a portion of the earnings each year, whether to buy new machinery or to rebuild surpluses, depleted during the world's worst depression, were taxed by an amount running from 7 to 27 per cent of the amount retained.

As a result of this legislation, corporations disbursed a record amount of dividends in the final months of 1936 and 1937. But since corporations paid out so much in dividends their expenditures for plants and equipment were perforce reduced. The recession in business from the 1937 peak to the low point in 1938—for which the tax was largely responsible—was the worst ever experienced here or elsewhere.

A demand for the removal of depression producing excess profits tax swept the country early in 1938. The President stood adamant against change. But altho he possessed a record majority in both houses he was powerless to prevent action. To "save the President's face," the principle of the tax was retained, but the rate was cut from the range of 7 to 27 per cent down to 2½ per cent. Early in 1939 there was an indication that congress meant to complete the job by striking out the remaining vestige of the bad tax. Over the strong opposition of the President the reduced penalty of 2½ per cent was repealed at the 1939 session. The worst tax was dead!

On June 29, 1939, the bill repealing the last vestige of the tax on undistributed earnings became a law. But within less than a month the treasury issued instructions to tax agents virtually continuing the taxation of retained earnings. As a consequence during the last 2 months there has again been a flood of dividends.

For authority for its action in giving these instructions the treasury used Section 102 of the revenue code. That section has long provided for drastic penalties upon corporations which retained earnings in excess of the needs of their business. Upon unreasonably retained income a surtax of 25 per cent is imposed on incomes up to $100,000 and 35 per cent on incomes in excess of $100,000.

That section has always been held to refer to personal holding companies. But in the rulings gotten out by the treasury after the 1939 repealer was enacted the agents were instructed to apply the rule to all corporations. And the treasury instructed its agents to interpret as "unreasonably retained income" that of the corporations which have distributed less than 70 per cent of their earnings. The treasury presumes that earnings withheld in excess of 70 per cent are excess. Unless the corporation can convince the treasury to the contrary it will impose a tax on such earnings, and at a higher rate than was provided in the law which congress repealed.

The intention of congress was to abolish the undistributed earnings tax in its entirety. By interpretation the treasury has sought to continue the tax which congress condemned and abolished. Senator Harrison will know what to do about this.

A JOB FOR THE MILITIA.

To make the most effective use of its man power and its money the army would do well to assign to the coast artillery as many of the militia units in the seaboard cities as may be needed to man the forts.

The men in the militia regiments are civilians and for the most part they are not in the hard physical condition required for active service in the field. Months of strenuous training are needed before the guard units can take their place in the line of battle. During those months the National Guard cannot be used effectively in the defense of the country. Altho our militia had undergone months of field training on the Mexican border before the declaration of war in 1917, few militia units were fit for action in France until they had had another year of preparation.

Service in the coastal forts places no great strain on the physique of the troops. There are no forced marches to be undertaken, no week long vigils under fire, no prolonged exposures to foul weather. The men do not have to learn to maneuver in the field in small and scattered units. Their principal duty is to spot enemy ships and train and fire the big guns, a relatively sedentary occupation.

The militiaman, who as a rule has had more mathematical training than the regular, can learn the theoretical side of the work in relatively short order and with practice can acquire precision and speed in the handling of the guns and instruments. If the forts are manned largely or entirely by the militia a considerable number of regular troops will be freed to join the field force, the mobile organization which must be counted upon to resist the invader and hold him at bay until the country's full military power can be organized and brought to bear.

The regulars who now are assigned to the coast defense forts are more janitors than soldiers. If the forts were turned over to militiamen this country's fighting power would be measurably enhanced. In this connection it should be remembered that in our military history the militia when protected from direct exposure to enemy fire has generally given an excellent account of itself.

THE WHEAT FORECAST.

The government forecasters say the winter wheat crop to be harvested next year will be the smallest with two exceptions in more than 40 years. This year the country harvested 563 million bushels of winter wheat. Next year, if the government's estimate is borne out, we shall have only 399 million bushels.

Mr. Wallace has now lifted his restrictions on the planting of wheat, but the permission came too late to do much good. By the time the acreage controls were abandoned the crop was in the ground and the season was too far advanced to permit of any material increase in autumn sowing.

The poor prospect for winter wheat results, of course, from the drouth, which has been particularly severe in the southwest. In the present state of human knowledge no one can predict the weather for more than a few days ahead. Nevertheless, Mr. Wallace undertakes to tell the farmers of this country how many acres they may plant to this crop and that, as if he knew precisely what the growing conditions would be. Mr. Wallace's guess can be no better than that of any one else. When he has been right it has been sheer luck.

Left to his own judgment, the ordinary farmer would have made a better guess this year than Mr. Wallace did. The farmer would have said to himself that there are two wars being fought in Europe and another in Asia. There is a lot of surplus wheat in the world, but the price of wheat usually rises in wartime. Accordingly, the acreage of wheat in the corn belt would have been increased; the winter wheat in that region is in fairly good shape.

Mr. Wallace used all his powers of persuasion and coercion to prevent the farmers from doing what many of them wanted to do and the prospect of a short crop is the consequence.

It cannot be repeated too often that when the farmers were left free to make their own plans the outcome was far more satisfactory than in these days of agricultural planning from Washington. Until Mr. Wallace came on the scene this country almost never imported wheat for its own needs. We never imported hams from Poland or important quantities of corn from South Africa. Our farmers were always able to feed the American people and usually had a substantial surplus to sell abroad. It remained for Mr. Hoover's farm board and Mr. Wallace's administration of the department of agriculture to produce a bewildering succession of unsold surpluses and short crops.

The guesses of the farmers, guided by the trend of market prices, kept supplies of farm products pretty well in line with demand. Mr. Wallace hasn't done nearly as well, but he refuses to admit it. Mr. Roosevelt said at the beginning of his first administration that he would be the first to abandon his agricultural program if he found it was not working satisfactorily. It is working very badly, indeed, and has been working badly almost from the start, but instead of abandoning it he is continually expanding it. Instead of restricting Mr. Wallace's control over acreage, Mr. Roosevelt has just given his secretary an additional weapon of coercion by transferring to him the control of farm loans.

The game of acreage control is filled with the gravest risks. There is always the possibility of crop disaster at a time when there is no great surplus of food in the world. The planners in Washington are gambling with hunger as the stake. The sooner the control of acreage is returned to the farmers themselves the better for every one.

OVERWHELMING FORCE.

The order to scuttle the Graf Spee is said to have come from Herr Hitler himself. Perhaps Mr. Benes will derive a certain satisfaction from the incident. When Mr. Benes was confronted with overwhelming force he did much the same thing. He scuttled his government rather than subject the human beings concerned to the horrors of destructive combat in which the chances of victory appeared to be negligible. How many warships the British and French may have had off Uruguay is not certain; the British say there were only three cruisers. At any rate, the odds against Hitler were no greater and probably considerably less than those against Benes, but the decisions were identical.

Editorial of the Day

THE 1940 WHEAT CROP.

[Bloomington (Ill.) Pantograph.]

In the midst of the feasts and lights of the Christmas season may be no time to think about the wheat harvests of 1940. But if reports from the great winter wheat country in the southwest are true, nature is now concocting trouble for the summer of next year, so far as the nation's wheat supply is concerned.

Outlook for the wheat crop next year is the worst in our history, say the experts.

A drouth, which has already prevailed from three to five months over the wheat lands of the southwest, has shown no signs of being broken by general rains. Moisture later in the season will not repair the damage already done.

The average condition of wheat is now 59.4 per cent of normal, the lowest rate on record, reports say. If something remarkable does not take place soon to improve prospects, next year's winter wheat yield will be the smallest since 1900. No guess as to the spring wheat yield is possible now, but no matter how large that crop may be it cannot replace the shortage in winter wheat, which supplies most of the nation's bread.

A surplus in wheat has accumulated the last two seasons, and serious shortage next season would mean that the country will have to depend on the stored supplies to prevent a serious shortage. It is almost certain that the United States will have no wheat for export next year.

READY FOR THE NIGHT.

This may be regarded as our Christmas Eve column, for tomorrow is the seventh day, upon which we rest. . . . All preparations have been completed; all hurry has ended; and now comes peace, and the expectancy of glad tidings, and the happy awe of a miracle—ancient but ever renewing itself in the hearts of men.

* * *

"And for my own part, look you, I'll go pray"—that the madness in the minds of nations overseas will find some healing in the spirit of this sacred anniversary.

* * *

Our Christmas cards form a collection that is admired by the people who look over our shoulder while we're opening the mail. First prize goes to a little number from "Helene," writer of nature vignettes in prose; when opened it shows a Santa Claus surrounded by a ballet of frisking puppies, each labeled as a faithful contrib, thus: Quizzicuss, S'Amuser, B. J. K., Flossie, Newcomer, Tom Chekouras, Duke Bakrak, M'Tavish, Wildcat Winnie, Eolus, and the sender.

* * *

What places on the map of the world are named after Christmas? Well, there are three Christmas Islands—in the Pacific and Indian oceans and off the Malay peninsula. There's a Christmas creek in western Australia and a town called Christmas in Arizona. . . . You should also include Natal, a province in the Union of South Africa, for it was named because of its discovery on the Natal Day.

* * *

There is a flower called the Christmas daisy [chiefly in England, we think]. It is a species of aster. . . . And also the Christmas rose, so called because it blooms in midwinter in central and southern Europe. Its correct name is the black hellebore; its flowers are white or pale rose.

EVERY ONE'S REMEMBERED.

Under the shedding Christmas tree
A ten dollar dolly stands,
The doll, a life size kid is she,
With plaster of paris hands.
And here are wagons, books, and train,
And Junior's chairs and table,
While over there at the foot of the stair
Is a coat for Mamma (sable).
This gown and these exclusive gloves
Are Mummy's, too (God bless her!),
No question that we've spent ourselves
This year—look at that dresser!
Such plenty here—toys, furs, and frocks—
(Sing heigh, my happy laddie!)
And now, what have we in this box?
Why, a handkerchief for Daddy!

PEACE TO MEN OF GOOD WILL.

(A prayer for Christmas Eve, 1939.)

Silent night! Then all the stars in splendor
Spelt in the firmament the holy birth;
And angel voices, glorious and tender,
Proclaimed the Savior's promise: "Peace on earth!"

Peace! O gentle Savior of the nations,
Grant us to hear the promises again.
The stars shine on in their eternal stations,
Keeping their vigil over flood and plain.
Now make us as the shepherds on the hillside
Who left their flocks to come and worship Thee.
Christ of the snows and palms, at Christmastide
Bring us good will again, from hate set free.
And that ye might have life." For this He came,
Whose birth was writ in "charactery of flame!"

Rabelais on the Witness Stand.

Re "The goose hangs high" vs. "The goose honks high" [Dec. 18].

On this matter we hang together. And let our authority be good Master François Rabelais, who in his Book Fourth of the Life of Pantagruel, chapter xxiii., declares thru the lusty speech of Panurge: "Everything is lovely, and the goose hangs high."

Book Fourth was first published in 1548. Let the Dutch "honkles" find an earlier authority for their case.

Incidentally, the translation I quote is Samuel Putnam's magnificent rendering into American English.

SONG OF THANKS.

Thank God for Christmas radiance that shines
From window and thru open door this night
In homes where folk are unafraid to send
Across the darkness festive beams of light.

Thank God for Christmas carols sung from door
To door by children who may safely stand
Beneath an uninfested sky. Thank God
We dare keep Christmas merry in our land!

ITCHING: A POPULAR WINTER PASTIME.

THOSE who suffer from marked itching, particularly during the colder season, need not assume that they are victims of scabies or ringworm. There are about a thousand causes for the discomfort and it can arise without the slightest visible evidence that anything is wrong.

Some authorities believe that a mild amount of this sort of irritation occurs with every one. The cuticle is engaged constantly in the process of shedding its outer cells. Fowls may molt at a given period, but with us humans the casting off of thin layers of the body's covering is continuous. In consequence, tiny nerve fibers—which carry sensation—are stimulated with the consciousness of itching. As we know, those who are described as nervous, who do not relax easily, may scratch away unthinkingly at the face, the nose, the ears, or the scalp.

Occasionally, clothing is at fault and wool, for example, may become so harsh from repeated washings as to resemble felt. Again, when small quantities of soap remain in garments or in contact with the skin, it may constitute an offender.

Of course, if plant fungi [molds] or bacteria are growing on the surface we can understand the normal reaction to their activity. Athlete's foot [ringworm or dhobie's itch] may give rise to an uncontrolable desire to "dig." Cleansing the area thoroly and killing the fungus will bring recovery. Then there are scores of toxic sources. Patients with gout, gall bladder disease, trouble with the kidneys, or even chronic constipation may complain of the symptom.

During the winter months, however, we are confronted with a new set of living conditions. For the most part we are obliged to breathe overheated air, and the epidermis is affected. A substantial amount of moisture is removed and, as an aftermath, the external layers become harder and—in some cases—are inclined to form scales or cracks. Many can detect this disturbance by a feeling of aggravated roughness. With some there are no untoward manifestations, but with many, itching will be intense, especially on the thighs, legs, abdomen, and back. The term "winter itch" has been employed to describe the disorder inasmuch as with the coming of spring all signs of trouble disappear.

Much can be done for relief. The principal objective is to retain some moisture and to soften the parts. A 10 to 15 minute soaking in a warm bath becomes a daily routine. Considerable alleviation is obtained if the water is rendered alkaline with a half teacupful of baking soda to the average tub. Other soothing agents include bran and oatmeal. The temperature should not be high, but should feel warm to the skin.

Drying is accomplished by patting with a soft towel rather than rubbing. Thereafter the body is subjected to gentle massage and some sterile, bland ointment, such as cocoa butter or a good grade of cold cream, is utilized. This is kneaded into the skin for five minutes or so. Any excess that may be present can be removed with paper tissue or a piece of flannelette. Then comes "all over" dusting with finely ground talcum which contains a small fraction of boric acid. It may be necessary to repeat the procedure daily for a week or more.

The situation may likewise respond to increased humidity in the air of the home. Cotton underclothing is preferable to wool. If the finger nails—in scratching—have injured the skin, scrubbing with soap and water will remove bacteria and a light gauze bandage may then be applied. As long as scabs are forming—the result of wounds—the annoyance will persist.

In severe cases, ultraviolet light, followed by an oil massage, will be helpful. These powerful rays have a sedative effect and the treatment should be persisted in until a definite tan is observed. Caution, however, must be taken to prevent giving too much—with subsequent sunburn—making a bad matter worse.

Now and then X-ray will be required, but this type of radiation must be administered by a highly skilled expert, as otherwise serious damage may be inflicted. As a rule, only two or three exposures will be needed.

SINGING LESSONS.

M. E. writes: In reference to your recent question and answer on the possibility of singing lessons injuring the vocal cords, I have one test I always apply. Does the person sing more easily or more freely than formerly? Over any reasonably long period of time the student should be producing better quality or more volume with less effort. If this is not happening the instruction is getting nowhere. If the reverse is occurring—if the student is singing less naturally and with more effort—look for another teacher. Damage may result from more of the same. Many teachers know how to take a student a certain distance but don't know what to do from that point on.

REPLY.

Would that all teachers of voice were equally wise. With the criteria cited by M. E. in mind constantly, no harm can ensue.

ASK YOUR OWN DOCTOR.

Mrs. R. writes: Four years ago I was dismissed as an arrested case of tuberculosis. Since then I have had no symptoms of the disease. I go for an annual physical check-up.

1. What does "arrested" mean? Am I cured?
2. Would it be safe to have children?

REPLY.

1. "Arrested" means that the body is holding the disease in check and under control.
2. Pregnancy adds a sizable strain to body reserve. Only your personal physician can answer the question. In some instances childbearing may light up a dormant infection. On the other hand, I have known recovered cases to go thru the period in perfect safety.

TENDER HEARTED.

W. P. S. writes: Why is it that I cannot eat whipped cream?

REPLY.

You are too kindhearted. The very thought of punishment offends you. In consequence, you may exhibit sensitivity to mashed potatoes, basted meats, crushed strawberries, eggs that have been beaten, skinned tomatoes, and hash. On the other hand, it may be that your gall bladder does not tolerate fat at all well. Some are unable to drink ordinary milk, preferring the skimmed variety.

CREAM IN COFFEE.

G. O. writes: I have heard that cream in coffee creates an injurious compound. Is this true?

REPLY.

No. Only persons who cannot tolerate fats are unable to take cream. Coffee connoisseurs rarely use sugar or cream—taking the extract clear.

IT DOES NO GOOD.

R. P. writes: I have heard that insulin can be taken orally. Is this true?

REPLY.

Insulin by mouth is digested and thus destroyed. Administered in this manner it is valueless in the treatment of diabetes.

RENT ARREARS.

Chicago, Dec. 14 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. I owed two months' rent and [2] was given a court notice to move. I moved out on the last day of the month and left the balance of the two months' rent. I am paying a little every two weeks but [3] the attorney says that I have to pay four months' rent, rent for two following months after I vacated the apartment.

4. Is this a new law? G. H.

1. We assume that you had signed a lease for a definite term.
2. The effect of this on your liability under the lease would depend in part on the wording of the lease.
3. Depends largely on the wording of the lease.
4. No, there is nothing new about the idea that a tenant who has promised to pay for a specified period will, in general, be liable for the agreed period.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, Dec. 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—I am separated from my husband, but not divorced. Can I [1] buy or [2] sell an apartment building without having my husband connected with it in any way? I inherited some money two years ago.

3. Can my husband sue me for some of it? A. Z.

1. In general, a wife's real estate is subject to a dower interest of her husband.
2. In general, his signature would be necessary, since he would have a dower interest in your real estate.
3. He would have no present interest in it on the bare facts that you state. Presumably you do not intend to ask literally whether he can sue.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRESPASS.

Chicago, Dec. 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—Would you please advise [1] what the law is regarding keeping a watchdog.

2. What signs of warning are necessary and where and how must they be placed?
3. What recourse has one when any one disregarding "Beware of Dog" signs posted conspicuously on gates leading to premises when these same trespassers deliberately ignore these warnings and are bitten or badly frightened by our dog, requiring us to go to the expense and trouble of having him under observation [as required by law] whereas if these warnings had been heeded no trouble or expense would have occurred? Also we have complied with the law [by posting these warning signs].

Since we have done this [4] in what way [if any] does the law protect us against these deliberately persisting trespassers? Our premises are entirely fenced in by a four foot wire fence and an iron gate that is absolutely foolproof, that is, it will close by itself whether it is opened six inches or full width. Any one about to enter thru either gate [front or rear] must look down in order to open the gate and in so doing cannot help but observe the warning sign—Beware of Dog. There are two of these signs on the front gate—both can be read. We will appreciate any advice or information you can give as we feel something must be done to protect us from these persistent trespassers.

C. N. L.

1. The same as in the case of any other dog.
2. There is no specific statute on this point. The owner should do what is reasonable, considering all of the circumstances.
3. Assuming that you had warning of the dangerous disposition of the dog, you might be liable, depending on the errand on which the person came.
4. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing the facts on which you state that they are trespassers.

PARIS.—Premier Viviani, addressing the chamber of deputies, said France will continue to fight until "victory by the allies gives the assurance of peace."

ROME.—The forts on the Dardanelles have been bombarded severely. The attack began yesterday for the purpose of covering a submarine attack on the ships in the straits.

LONDON.—Heavy fighting is reported on the western front without producing any change in the positions of opposing armies. The allies' offensive is being pressed in France and Belgium.

PETROGRAD.—The Russians foiled the German attack at Warsaw today, repulsing their offensive after the German troops crossed the Vistula river. The Austrian advance over the Carpathians in Galicia was reported checked.

CLEARING UP THE OCEANS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—I think the tiny pocket battleship Graf Spee made a creditable showing and largely justified her construction under the circumstances.

The lack of bases for refueling, repairs, and rest for the crew greatly diminishes the combat efficiency. From reports the Graf Spee was trapped with the decoy merchant ship Formosa and the clever smoke screen allowed the lighter craft to come within range and to choose their own battle positions.

Attacked simultaneously from flanks and rear by speedier craft, and with her stern main battery disabled, the Graf Spee was doomed despite the early disabling of the 8 inch gun Exeter.

Just picture the converging fire of 22 guns of the main and secondary batteries [minus secondary batteries on starboard or port sides respectively] of the British upon the Graf Spee, while the most she could do was to divide the fire of her six 11 inch and six 6 inch guns of her main and secondary batteries among her three tormentors.

The result of the battle is probably the clearing of the South Atlantic, South Indian, and possibly the South Pacific oceans of all threats to allied merchantmen and war craft, an immeasurable victory for the allies and a commensurate loss to the Germans

HELPING THE WRONG NATION?

Chicago, Dec. 20.—At this lovely time of the year when every one's heart and pocket book are wide open, along comes Mr. Hoover raising relief funds for the war stricken nation of Finland, which is paying its debts.

The idea of raising relief funds for Finland is no doubt an honorable one, but what about those poor, bankrupt nations such as England and France that are not even in a position to pay the interest on their debts.

Is there no one at this time of the year who will do something for them, or are we resting on our laurels thinking that our last congress has handed them a lovely Christmas basket. J. M. R.

LOTS OF POOR CHILDREN.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—A few days ago I read an article in THE TRIBUNE about gifts to the Dionne quintuplets from all over the world. What seems to be the trouble with the people who are sending these gifts? Do they know we have many poor children in this world?

DO RADICALS GROW TIRED?

Chicago, Dec. 20. — The expression "tired radicals" is sometimes heard outside of intellectual circles. It may mean that radicals sooner or later get tired of their fellow crackpots and their half-wit remedies for social ills. READER.

FROM A BIRD LOVER.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Cats are cruel killers of the worst sort and are in no small measure responsible for the destruction of our feathered songsters. My children, especially one girl, are animal lovers, and they delight in the fine pictures of their friends that appear in your rotogravure section. However, their interest in cats was greatly dampened when they saw one of them kill a bird in the garden. They spoke of it in hushed tones.

We could well be rid of alley cats, and perhaps it would be best to advise Walt of Gasoline Alley how to destroy his bothersome one humanely rather than have him carry on in his soft hearted way.

On a recent 50 mile drive in a western state I saw no less than six dead chickens and, of course, the loss of song birds is terrific.

Why not educate the dumb motorist who do this that a simple blast of the horn will scare any animal off the road and avoid most of this slaughter. I don't think they are wantom killers like the cat, but there's something lacking. Perhaps our strip artist King might help.

L. M. EITEL.

A WORD FOR THE SPONSORS.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—I have noticed complaints in the Voice recently about too much radio advertising. People who made them are ungrateful, to say the least.

When a manufacturer puts a program on the air costing several thousand dollars it's only fair that we allow him a little time to boost the product that made said program possible.

So long as we can hear the greatest artists in the entertainment field without leaving our homes, or having to pay exorbitant prices at the box office, and the only price is having to listen to a few seconds of advertising, then I'd say it is cheap indeed.

I have heard everything from a baseball game to grand opera at the expense of some sponsor and haven't regretted one second of the advertising.

RADIO FIEND.

HE LISTENED TO PATTI.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—There is quite a little in the papers recently about the opening of the Auditorium theater 50 years ago. Adelina Patti sang, and many prominent people were present.

Some who attended were not prominent. I was 15 years old at the time, and had worked on the building as a plumber's helper for a year. The night Patti sang some of the boys, including myself, hid high up in the iron work back of the stage and listened to the singing. I also carved my name with a hammer and chisel on the east side of the stone coping that runs around the wall of the tower.

I have never been up in the tower since and wonder if my name is still there.

3 KILLED, 1 HURT WHEN 'L' TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE

Car Drives Thru Lowered Crossing Gates.

Three men were killed and a fourth was injured last night when their automobile was struck by an elevated lines train at the ground level crossing at Central avenue, near Harrison street. The train, a six coach Westchester express, was loaded with homeward bound Christmas shoppers.

Those killed were Arthur J. McPheron, 46 years old, 1547 Sedgwick street; Philip Crull, 22, of 2820 Washington boulevard, and Cornelius Haffery, 31 of 4500 Adams street. The driver of the auto, Roy Queen, 45, of 3560 McLean avenue suffered an arm fracture and other injuries, and was taken to the Loretto hospital. He is expected to recover.

Car Crashes Thru Gates.

The four men were on their way home from work at a wax paper factory, and were driving north in Central avenue. The crossing gates were down, police said, and at least one other north bound car was waiting. Queen passed this car, according to police, and crashed thru the lowered gates just as the train reached the crossing. The train carried the car 250 feet.

Policemen Arthur Doll and Oren O'Hara, of the Fillmore street station; firemen under Chief John Murray of the 23d battalion, and the train crew removed the four men from the wreckage. The car burst into flame a few seconds later. Bernard Carolan, 3906 Flournoy street, a trainman, cut his hand during the rescue.

Pedestrian Fatally Hurt.

Andrew Johnson, 73 years old, 416 East 73d street, was fatally injured by an automobile at State and 71st streets. The driver, Richard Moffett, 823 Buena avenue, told police that Johnson walked into the side of his car.

Shirley Unmisig, 11 years old, 1007 Draper avenue, Joliet, was killed near her home by a hit and run car last night. She and her brother, Jerry, 13, were on their way to a neighbor's house to get some straw to put in a miniature crib at the foot of their Christmas tree. Albert Korst of Joliet said the hit and run driver passed him on the wrong side of the street and struck the girl.

An unidentified man, about 60 years old, was killed when he was struck by an automobile at Polk street and Ashland boulevard. The driver was Robert Stoewsand, 6424 North Claremont avenue.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Mrs. Etsie Verdum, 51 years old, colored, 1417 West 117th place, was killed in an accident at 103d street and Vincennes avenue. She was in a car driven by Arthur McKinney, 40, also colored, and of the 117th place address, when he crashed into another car which had halted for a stop sign. The other driver was Seldon Robertson of 7511 Eggleston avenue.

Motor travel on central western highways over Christmas is expected to set a new record, Bert Vanderwarf, head of the touring and travel bureau of the Chicago Motor club, predicted yesterday. He based his forecast on road inquiries received during the last week. These were 25 per cent higher than last year. He urged motorists to be extra careful if the weather bureau forecast for rain or snow Saturday and Sunday should materialize.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 877 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 675 were killed in Chicago, where 21,810 were injured in the same period.

RULES HUSBAND CAN'T SUE WIFE 'AS POOR DRIVER

Judge John C. Lewe ruled yesterday that a husband may not sue his wife as a poor driver, even tho he is injured while riding with her. Judge Lewe dismissed a $25,000 personal injury suit brought by Albert Beck of 1455 Huron street against his wife, Julia. The suit charged that Mrs. Beck was negligent when she allowed her car to skid into a curb at Ashland and Clybourn avenues a year ago. Attorneys said the suit was a friendly one. Joseph Steller, attorney for Mrs. Beck, said he would appeal.

Traffic Defendants Buy Leg for Car Crash Victim

Raymond Hajdek, 22 years old, 5032 North Neenah avenue, who lost a leg in an automobile accident recently, received an artificial leg yesterday purchased with contributions from defendants in Traffic court. The presentation was made in County hospital, where Hajdek is a patient, by Joseph Romano, bailiff to Judge John Gutknecht of the court

HUNT 13 MISSING AFTER COLLAPSE OF PARIS BRIDGE

3 Plunged to Death in Seine River.

PARIS, Dec. 22 (AP).—Police and firemen dragged the Seine river by spotlight searching for 13 missing persons tonight after the St. Louis bridge collapsed, plunging at least three persons to death and injuring five others seriously.

The 80 yard long stone structure connecting two islands in the Seine, the Ile St. Louis and Ile de la Cite just behind the famous cathedral of Notre Dame, crashed when an oil barge struck a central pillar.

Barge Captain Injured.

Gas mains, broken by the collapse, burst into flame, and about 20 persons, including the occupants of two automobiles, were spilled into the icy river.

The steel barge Tunisie, which caused the accident when it was caught in a current, drifted 500 yards downstream before its crew regained control. The barge captain was seriously injured.

Débris Hampers Rescuers.

Rescue work was hampered by submersion of part of the bridge structure and the automobiles.

Originally constructed in 1627 when it was known as the Pont Rouge [Red bridge] because it was of red painted wood, the bridge had been rebuilt three times, the last time in 1877.

The two islands which it connected are in the center of the city, with many historic public buildings and residences near by.

He was Democratic captain of the 50th precinct of the 29th ward.

INDIANA PAPER LOSES IN FIGHT ON INCOME TAX

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 22 [Special]. —The Indiana Supreme court today reversed a decision by the St. Joseph County Superior court which had granted the South Bend Tribune a $638.65 judgment against the state gross income tax division.

The lower court's ruling was on the contention that the state improperly had collected income tax on a part of the newspaper's revenue which was derived from interstate commerce. The revenue so taxed amounted to approximately 12½ per cent of the Tribune's gross advertising receipts.

The state appealed to the Supreme court after the St. Joseph court had ruled in favor of the Tribune. The Supreme court held that the income on which the suit was based was not derived from interstate commerce and did not apply an unconstitutional burden on the newspaper.

HIGH HONORS GO TO 4 FOR WORK IN SQUALUS RESCUE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—The navy announced today that President Roosevelt has awarded the congressional medal of honor to four naval enlisted men in recognition of their work in the rescue and salvage operation on the sunken submarine Squalus.

The Squalus went down off the New England coast last summer. Thru the use of a diving bell, operated from the submarine rescue ship Falcon, 33 men were saved, but 24 other officers and men and two civilians lost their lives. After weeks of effort the submarine eventually was raised.

Those to whom the medal were awarded are Chief Metalsmith James H. McDonald of Hoehnes, Colo., and Chief Machinist Mate William Badders, of Terre Haute, Ind. Both on duty with the experimental diving unit at the Washington navy yard, and Chief Boatswain's Mate Orson L. Crandall and John Mihalowski, torpedoman first class, both of New London, Conn., attached to the U. S. S. Falcon. Mihalowski also was advanced one grade in rating.

The President also awarded navy crosses to two officers and 43 enlisted men for their part in the Squalus operations, and forty of the enlisted men were advanced one grade.

JUDGE CRITICIZES AGENTS' DELAY IN WARRANT ACTION

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday criticized agents of the alcohol tax unit for delays in serving a warrant and threatened to hold one in contempt of court. Court observers recalled that while Igoe was district attorney, before his elevation to the bench, he had made similar criticisms, and had sought to have E. C. Yellowley, director of the alcohol tax unit, cited for contempt of court.

The hearing yesterday was on charges of violating alcohol tax laws against Dominick Curbis, 146 East 107th street, and Gust Lazuka, a farmer at 119th street and Northwest highway, Palos Park. They were arrested March 5, 1938, after agents took out a warrant on Feb. 28.

Judge Igoe told Agents C. O. Kral and Edward T. Newall that obtaining warrants several days in advance of an arrest was unjustified. He ordered Kral to bring additional information on the arrest into court, and when Kral failed to appear promptly, threatened to jail him for contempt. Kral, however, met a 2 p. m. deadline fixed by Judge Igoe. Curbis was discharged for lack of evidence. Lazuka was found guilty of possessing a still. His case was referred to the probation department.

Miss Margaret H. Bauld, a retired Chicago school teacher, died Thursday after a brief illness in Pomona, Cal., and will be buried there today. She was 74 years old. Miss Bauld taught in the Bryant school for 27 years. She leaves a brother, David A. Bauld, Oak Park.

QUINTS GET CHRISTMAS TREE ORNAMENTS MADE BY SOLDIERS ON FRONT

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 22 (AP).—The Christmas tree of the Dionne quintuplets will bear ornaments wrought from silver coins by British and French soldiers on the western front.

The souvenirs from the war zone were sent to them thru a women's organization in New York City which had sent blankets, knitted goods, and cigarets to the men. The soldiers said they appreciated the $1,000 the children had contributed to the Canadian Red Cross.

On Christmas day the quintuplets approaching their sixth birthday, will be visited at their nursery home by their parents and seven sisters and brothers. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe probably again will play Santa Claus for his famous charges on Christmas morning. The quints won't get everything they asked for. The requests denied include Yvonne's wish for a horse, Emilie's desire for an automobile and Marie's plea for a "real train" like the one which carried the children to Toronto last May to meet the king and queen.

Mrs. T. F. Donovan, Wife of Political Leader, Stricken

Mrs. Annie Donovan, wife of Thomas F. Donovan, former lieutenant governor of Illinois, was taken in a critical condition last night to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet. She was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage two weeks ago, it was said at the hospital. Mrs. Donovan is 61 years old. The Donovan home is at 1 South Center street.

MOTHER AND SON, SEPARATED FOR 10 YEARS, REUNITED

Mrs. Virginia Luna and Henry Rodriguez, 12 years old, mother and son, were trying to get acquainted last night in the Luna home at 215 Utica street in Waukegan. They met this week in Lackawanna, N. Y., near Buffalo, after a separation of 10 years.

At that time Henry's father died and his mother came to Waukegan to live with relatives, leaving the boy with his godparents. Five years ago Mrs. Rodriguez was married to Henry Luna.

The god-parents, according to Mrs. Luna, refused to give up Henry. She won his custody on a writ of habeas corpus in Buffalo Thursday. At the hearing, Henry protested. He was still a bit puzzled and rebellious when he and his mother arrived in Waukegan yesterday. "I don't think I like it," he said. But Mrs. Luna has a mother's confidence that Henry will change his mind. And the boy's brother, Robert, 14, is going to help.

Sister of Silent Film Star, Mary Miles Minter, Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22 (AP).—Margaret Shelby Fillmore, 38 years old, sister of Mary Miles Minter of the silent screen, died today. Mrs. Fillmore divorced Hugh Fillmore in 1927 and in 1937 married Emmett J. Flynn, but was granted an annulment the same year. She sued her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, for $48,750 two years ago, charging that amount was taken from a safety deposit box both shared in a Los Angeles bank. A jury awarded the daughter $20,000.

MOSLEMS OBJECT TO HINDU MARCH; 50 HURT IN RIOT

Break Up Thanksgiving Prayers at Mosque.

LUCKNOW, India, Dec. 22 (AP).—Fifty persons were injured in rioting today at Gorakhpur, United Provinces, when Moslems offering Thanksgiving day prayers objected to a Hindu procession passing their mosque.

Arrow indicates where Hindu-Moslem riot occurred.

Mohammad Ali Jinnah, president of the All-India Moslem league, had asked Moslems to set aside Dec. 22 as "a day of deliverance and thanksgiving" to mark the end of Indian National congress ministries in eight provincial governments.

Condemn Gandhi Party.

These ministries, belonging to Mohandas K. Gandhi's Congress [Nationalist] party, had resigned in protest against the British government's announcement that the question of Indian dominion status or independence would be put aside until after the war.

Jinnah asked his followers to condemn the Congress party ministers on the ground that they had not safeguarded Moslem interests. Gandhi urged Jinnah to postpone any action until the British provincial governors could be canvassed on the Moslem claims.

Map Disobedience Campaign.

WARDHA, India, Dec. 22 (AP).—The working committee of Mohandas K. Gandhi's Congress [Nationalist] party ended a five day strategy meeting today with a statement emphasizing insistence that Indian independence be among Britain's war aims.

The statement, in which Gandhi collaborated, outlined the Congress party's policy and included plans for a celebration Jan. 26, which the Nationalists have observed as "Independence day" since 1929.

Party leaders said that the temper and discipline displayed in the Jan. 26 demonstrations would be observed by Gandhi to determine whether the masses have the capacity to undertake a nonviolent civil disobedience campaign to back demands for Indian independence.

Gandhi was reported to have told the committee: "Give me the country and I will start a movement."

And Still More Parties Go on Debutante List

BY JUDITH CASS.

FINDING the needle in a haystack would be simple compared to finding a few free hours on a debutante's engagement pad during the next ten days. Somehow, tho, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk have managed to squeeze in another party for Nancy Davis, the Loyal Davises' pretty bud.

Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Kirk are going to give a luncheon at the Casino next Saturday for the young lady who returned from Smith last Sunday. Miss Gladys Kirk, who is arriving from New York tomorrow to spend the holidays with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk, will be among the luncheon guests.

Another nice party that has been planned for Miss Davis is a dinner and ballet party that Mrs. Robert J. Dunham will give next Friday night. The Church Mission of Help is sponsoring the performance of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo that night.

The National Council of Jewish Women is sponsoring the first two nights of the ballet this winter, next Tuesday and Wednesday. This is the third year this organization has taken over two nights of the ballet as a benefit.

Mrs. Frank Granger Logan is giving a party for her debutante grandniece, Miss Shirley Garnett, from 4 to 6 o'clock next Friday afternoon. There will be music.

Today's Calendar Is Crowded One.

This afternoon and night are filled with parties for the buds. Three teas, a dinner-dance, a ball, and many smaller parties crowd the hours.

The young women who will bow formally are Miss Josephine Wallace, Miss Patrica Austin, Miss Barbara White, and Miss Anita Dunlap Smith. Miss Smith and her cousin, Miss Helen Dick, are to share honors at the ball, which the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr., are giving at the Blackstone hotel. Miss Dick was presented at a tea in Lake Forest this fall.

Miss Wallace, daughter of Walter F. Wallace of Winnetka, will bow at a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club. There will be dancing, too, at the tea Dr. and Mrs. Edward William White are giving at the Fortnightly for their bud, but Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Austin are not prepared to have dancing at the tea for Miss Austin, which will be given at home in Glencoe.

The dinner-dance is being given at the Casino by Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Shumway for their daughter, Miss Grace Shumway. It is not to be pretty Miss Shumway's debut, however, for she had a debut dance last summer.

Out of Town Guests to Attend White Party.

A number of guests have come from St. Louis for Miss White's party. They include the John Leahys and their son and daughter, John Jr. and Miss Julianne; John Carton II. and Joseph Hellmuth. Miss Julia Spencer has come from Suffield, Conn. The James L. Beckwiths and Miss Jane Beckwith are entertaining at tea and dancing at the Drake hotel tomorrow for Miss White.

Miss Wallace, her father, and the W. Sanger Hinchmans [Virginia Wallace] will receive between 5 and 8 o'clock. Several former classmates at the North Shore Country Day school will be assistants. The bud is a sophomore at Vassar.

Miss Austin is a member of the same class at Vassar. Miss Joyce Sibley and Miss Elizabeth Briar have come from Detroit to be among her assistants. Miss Barbara Austin is arriving today from Charlottesville, Va., where she has been visiting her fiancé, Robert L. Foote, and his par-

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Of course you know, if you've been making last minute sallies into the shops, that stocks are somewhat depleted. Stocks, that is, of the things that every one thinks of as Christmas presents. But there are lots of rather unusual things to be obtained. Just use the old bean; you'll probably end up with a gift that's original and rather easy to pick up at this last, late moment.

We can't help but plead once again the cause of the hairbrush. Lots of people make the mistake of thinking that there isn't enough glamor about the gift of the utilitarian hairbrush. If you feel that way, please heed our advice to let the glamor go. Buy the lady a good hairbrush, sturdy and well made, with long, properly spaced bristles. She'll bless you forevermore.

For some reason women hesitate to put money into hairbrushes, much as they'd like to have good ones; they feel that the utilitarian object on the dressing table doesn't show enough. But they'd love to receive a top-notcher as a gift.

If there are stocking gifts for children still to be bought be sure you look over the assortment of novelties made of soap. They've never been as cunning as they are this season. We hesitate to describe them in detail because stocks are uneven, but among those left you'll be certain to find some cuties.

Then, there is always the good old standby of the merchandise certificate for beauty services. You can dash into your favorite lady's favorite beauty shop—or even telephone—and get her a permanent, a course of face [illegible] or perhaps even an exercise course, in the space of five or ten minutes. All you need do is write a note telling her what she can have in 1940 as a special treat from you.

Handsome Knitted Jacket

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

The knitted jacket is an almost indispensable item in a well stocked wardrobe. It more than pays for itself in service and beauty, because it may be worn for both business and sports. It may serve as a blouse or be worn over other sweaters as an ensemble. The knitting pattern illustrated today suggests a particularly lovely version of this type of jacket. It has the puffed sleeves, fullness to the body, and a snug waistband that is matched by the same type of stitching at the high round neckline.

For instructions in knitting this jacket, No. X-4684, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

TO THE MADONNA OF THE CHAIR!

Dear Mary of the ageless charms,
For centuries within your arms
You've held the world just as you clasp
The Child. Mary! Help us grasp
And understand the meaning now.

O, is it love's encircling power
Which binds us all against the hour
Of grief? O, is it love's redress
For wrongs? The might of gentleness
To which our hearts must bow?

Your Chicago and Mine.

The city adorned and alight for Christmas, and its suburbs fairylands of lighted Christmas trees. . . . Armorer Expert.

Collectors of "shop language" terms might try to baffle their friends with targe, pauldron, elbow cop, gorget, basinet, brassards, and greaves. Puzzling to the layman, they are common words to G. R. Donald, one of the two or three private armorers in the country, who is in charge of the arms and armor division of the Hearst collection at Field's. Mr. Donald is a stocky Scotsman with a fine burr to his speech, who was a blacksmith's apprentice in Dundee, and later in Brooklyn, before he took up his real passion, which is armor. He has a comprehensive library on arms. Mr. Donald has devised special locks for the drawers which contain the smaller and rarer objects in the arms collection.

Cinema Dialog.

Mr. M. Stauffer dropped in to see The Women the other night. On the screen the cook was saying "The first man who can think up a good reason why he can love his wife and another woman at the same time will get one of those prizes they're always handing out in Sweden . . ."

Voices to Mr. Stauffer's left: "What prize is that?" "O, the one for too many children, I guess."

Gay Shopping Season Comes to a Happy End

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Once again the annual buying binge swings into the last whirl . . . with budget systems collapsing, dozens of bundles hanging from shoulders to hiplines, one of the largest mob scenes ever seen outside a super colossal movie set makes the homeward dash feeling a fine glow.

This last day is fun . . . the slightly dazed wizards of helpfulness behind all the counters beam with either relief or the real Christmas cheer . . . shoppers themselves almost as dazed over the knowledge that every one on the lists has been attended to likewise give in to that heart warming sensation of playing Santa Claus.

If you crave the fun of stalking home with a tree over the shoulder, but have only a small space wherein to place the tree, try the artificial spruces and pines. They are worthy of the most exacting approval. Those decorative affairs with many small twinkling electric lights shining most realistically all over the branches come in white, green, and a modernistic blue. They are more popular and effective than ever before, even tho they have been good for more than a couple of Christmas seasons. The tiniest apartment will not seem overstuffed with the smallest tree of this particular design.

New this year are the same sort of fake fur trees in wooden bases, and carefully hid in these buckets or pots are music boxes that play right merrily "Jingle Bells." Wreaths for outdoors or indoors, shimmering and unusual table decorations, fancy bells by the thousands in every size, shape, and material, pine cones, holly berries, and that original Christmas "post-office" stuff [mistletoe] are abundant in these fake showings.

Remember this is the practical and beautiful Christmas trim that can be packed away and scheduled for a repeat performance another year.

Along with the country-wide revival of a sentimental Christmas come the candy canes ranging in size from the tiny shorts to the eye-catchers that measure a good long yard. These are mentioned for the kindred souls who hang on to the belief that no well trimmed tree is really a success without a dozen or so candy canes for a good old fashioned MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Museum and Planetarium Will Close for Holiday

The Field museum will be closed Christmas and New Year's day. These are the only days in the year when the museum is not open to visitors. Adler planetarium will be closed tomorrow, Sunday, and Monday, and also on New Year's day.

The Housewife

Have you ever been confronted by a tray of ice cubes when what you wanted was cracked ice, and that in a hurry? If you'll invest in one of those clever little ice crushers you'll be amazed to see how rapidly and easily they work. They look a little like a fruit juice extractor, but you put ice cubes in the top, turn a crank and out comes the cracked ice!

These convenient gadgets come in two styles, one in chrome and one with an enameled finish. They are moderately priced.—Edith Weigle.

NEW FOOD ITEMS: Appropriate to the holiday season is smoked turkey cooked in sherry wine. The tangy, smoky, winey flavor is delectable among the hors d'oeuvres. Smoked turkey is liked best as an accompaniment to cocktails, but makes fine sandwiches, party size or larger. It's expensive, $1.25 a pound, but always makes a hit at a social gathering, and a little goes a long way. Sherried, smoked turkey must be ordered from the east, at present.

A Porto Rican demi-tasse coffee, rich, dark, and aromatic, is just the thing to follow the Christmas dinner or another festive holiday meal. This particular coffee is recommended to be served minus cream, only for the demi-tasse. You make it double strength. It may be spiced, sweetened, and flavored with lemon peel and brandy for "café diable." Only one Chicago store carries it. The price is 39 cents for a six ounce can, vacuum-sealed.

A luscious buttery-eggy Hollandaise sauce, put up in 6½ ounce jars, may be purchased for 59 cents. Hollandaise, a difficult sauce to make, is a very delicious accent for asparagus, broccoli, and other vegetables. A ready made Hollandaise as good as this is a find. Because it is made from fresh butter and eggs and lemon juice, as it should be, it won't keep longer than several weeks in the refrigerator, but most families won't give it a chance to become stale.

Information about where to buy these products will be given by telephone [Superior 0200] or by mail.

AMUSING SIGHT AT THE MEAT BOARD EXHIBIT AT THE RECENT STOCK SHOW: The world's biggest and the world's littlest sausages, side by side. The biggest one was ever so long, and as thick as a good-sized tree trunk. The little one, a cocktail sausage as small as your little finger, or smaller, could scarcely be seen in the shadow of its neighbor.

The finest steaks to be found in the world, I am sure, are served at the Saddle and Sirloin club out at the stockyards. About once a year newspaper cooking editors have the privilege of dining on rare beef at this place, as guests of the National Livestock and Meat Board. And for weeks afterward one's mouth waters at the memory.

By the way, some of the city's best hotels and restaurants will be serving superfine beef now, having bought champion steers at the close of the live stock exposition.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION: The housewife who resolves to bake better homemade breads and rolls will find the way to do it between the covers of a book of this name, which will be mailed for 23 cents in stamps. "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls" contains only the finest of recipes for yeast breads and quick breads. Address orders to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

GOOD DESSERT: Guava paste, cream cheese and crackers, as served in a Costa Rican restaurant downtown.

DELICIOUS SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN and everything that goes with it for a true Dixie dinner—even spoonbread. At a new restaurant on the near north side.

ENGAGEMENTS

The friends Jerome Verity Roscoe made during the three years he lived here will be interested to learn that he is to marry Miss Ruth Adaline Heiskell of Memphis, Tenn. He is the son of Col. David Livingston Roscoe, United States army, retired, and Mrs. Roscoe of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Rosenbaum of the Ambassador hotel announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Born, to James Wyness Pope. The wedding will take place early in March and Mr. Pope and his bride will live on the near north side.

Miss Rosenbaum attended the Wykeham Rise school in Washington, Conn., and spent a winter traveling abroad. Her fiancé, who is a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, was educated at the University of Edinburgh. He has been in this country for 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Burns of Rochester, N. Y., last night announced the engagement of their daughter, Nanette, to William Britton McKnight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy I. McKnight of Evanston. Miss Burns is a graduate of Pine Manor and of the New York School of Interior Decorating. Mr. McKnight was graduated from Dartmouth college and is engaged in business in New Jersey.

Stensons, made her bow at a tea-dance at the Woman's Athletic club, also on Thursday.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Famous Firsts of the Movies.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22.—First all-talking picture aimed at the Christmas trade was "Christmas Cheer," a two reel comedy starring 4 year old Sunny Jim and released in 1929 . . . First newsreel, Pathé, in 1910. . . . The first moving picture feature was "Miss Jerry," with Blanche Bayliss, William Courtenay, and Ernest Hastings [Alexander Black was the author, scenario writer, director, cameraman, and titler]. The American public's first glimpse of color films was in New York on Dec. 11, 1909. . . . The first animal picture was a one minute farce produced in 1907 by Biograph, titled, "Wanted, a Dog," in which the principal actor was supported by a cast of 60 dogs.

The first talking picture that followed screen technique was "The Family Picnic," starring Harry Delf, and released in 1928. . . . The first picture in which a real log cabin was used was "The Miner's Sweetheart," a one reel drama in which Harry Myers made his screen début. Before that log cabins were painted on the scenery.

The first poem to be screened was Sir Walter Scott's "The Lady of the Lake," produced by Vitagraph in 1909, with Edith Storey in the rôle of Ellen. The film was a four reeler. . . . The first Hollywood preview was of Thomas H. Ince's "Custer's Fight," starring Francis Ford, which was held at the old Hymer theater in Venice, Cal., in October, 1911. The preview audience included Sarah Bernhardt, Jim Jeffries, Freddie Welsh, Ruth Roland, and Nat C. Goodwin. Before that Ince had shipped his pictures to New York as soon as he finished them without waiting for an audience reaction.

Leland Stanford, governor of California, was the first to prove by the use of the movie camera that a thoroughbred horse has all four legs off the ground when in full stride, and won a big bet on it!

The first movie censorship board was the state board of censors created in Pennsylvania on June 19, 1911. The board wasn't appointed until 1914 because the legislature pulled a boner and neglected to make an appropriation. . . . Bert Williams was the first Negro comedian to star in pictures. . . . A submarine tube was adapted for photographic purposes.

The first close-up ever shot was in an Edison experimental film in which Fred Ott, a member of the staff, was shown sneezing. . . . The first screen kiss was executed by May Irwin and John C. Rice in New York in 1896 in a 500 foot film version of their stage success, "The Widow Jones."

The first war films were taken during the Spanish-American war. They contained no fighting scenes and showed only the marching and landing of troops. . . . The first of Shakespeare's plays to be put on the screen was "Othello," which was released by the Vitagraph company in 1902. The same company followed up with "Romeo and Juliet" in 1903. . . . Presented at the United Artists Theater.

THE CAST.

Nick	William Powell
Nora	Myrna Loy
Lois	Virginia Grey
Van Slack	Otto Kruger
Colonel MacFay	C. Aubrey Smith
Dorothy Waters	Ruth Hussey

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Since their hectic experiences in the first "Thin Man," Nora and Dick have acquired a chee-ild—which they take quite as casually and delightedly as they do everything else that comes into their high living, hard playing, slick sleuthing, connubially felicitous existence. . . .

This trip their irresponsible domesticity is interrupted by a phone call from one Colonel MacFay, who declares they must come to him at his country estate, as he is expecting to be murdered any moment. . . .

While guests in his home, Nora and Nick are awakened by a commotion, and find that the old man's throat has been cut. . . . Suspicion centers on a dreamer of dreams—a slimy, blackmailing so and so, who claims that when he dreams a dream three times, it comes true. Dreaming of deaths, and collecting a bonus for not having a third lethal vision, is his racket. . . .

Nick, against his will, becomes involved in the hunt for the criminal. He finds himself detecting, vigorously and effectively, the while becoming a target for knives and very much of what have you. . . . He, of course, unveils the killer, and if you guess the identity of the guilty party before it's time for a disclosure, you've got me beat. I was that surprised! . . .

Miss Loy and Mr. Powell are, as of yore, a gay, unpredictable, and much in love pair. . . . Their unhampering baby is a lamb and the folks they meet and mingle with interesting humans portrayed with spirit and ability.

This is a fast, well written and entertaining mystery comedy drama which quite holds its own with the first "Thin Man."

See you tomorrow.

Models Offer Object Lesson in Posture, Wearing Clothes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We had occasion recently to view a fashion parade. In the entire ten unprofessional models there were only two girls who ever should have been asked to display gowns. The carriage of the other girls ruined each and every frock shown. It was not our opinion alone. It was the consensus of the entire group at the large table at which we sat.

Perhaps the better grace and carriage of the smart professional model would not be what it is did her living not depend upon it. She has to go thru a course of training before she can be offered to the trade as one who would display a gown with distinction. She has to walk well. She has to carry her head high, her chest up and her abdomen flat. One girl in the group had on a trying enough costume without her rounded shoulders and bulging stomach, which made her entrance and parade grotesque.

The above is not offered as any criticism of a single group, but to bring home again, especially to you young readers, the importance of good posture. Certainly no girl without it ever should have the effrontery to parade as a model, no matter what the charity cause. She is doing herself no good turn, for one thing, exposing in decolletage a badly rounded back with protruding "wings" and general slouchy getup, and certainly the audience reaction is not a cheering one, to say nothing of the damage done to the frock, suit, or hostess gown exhibited.

Poor posture has become one of the things that one is criticized sharply for, and good posture a thing that serves young women well in beauty terms. That's all the moral there is to our tale.

Fill 32,000 Baskets at Annual Movie Parties

Thirty-two thousand Christmas baskets will be distributed today and tomorrow by motion picture theaters. The fifth annual movie Christmas basket parties, held Thursday in the theaters, were attended by more than 150,000 adults and children, each of whom paid for his admittance with an article of staple foods. Managers of the theaters provided perishable groceries. They were assisted in assembling the baskets by church societies, parent-teacher associations, and other civic groups. Jack Kirsch and Morris G. Leonard planned and managed the benefit.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

[Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt]

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard spends west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon, is rich in gold. He picks up two strange companions, Mrs. Sebastian, who runs a Mexican roadhouse, and Louis Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. In a lonely spot they come upon the pay car of the Golconda mine—all occupants murdered, and some Greps tracks in the road and stops their pursuit. He recognizes one bandit as the mine's paymaster. Paul Collins, crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore and gives him a bad report. He enlists the aid of another rascal, Kent, to cheat Dillon. Dillon breaks the news to Pat, an orphaned girl who owns an old hotel, and who had staked him, and goes off to collect his tools. At Pat's hotel Leonard sees the girl slip out in the night with a gun. Distrusting Kent, Collins sends two hirelings to follow Dillon and locate his claim. Kent, suspicious, puts Papago, an old watchman, on the trail. Taylor, the mine's paymaster, arranges with Kent to have Leonard blamed for his crime. In Taylor office Pat finds the correct report on Dillon's ore, but Kent and Collins find her first. Kent kidnaps the girl in his car—her old Chinese servant clings to the spare tire. Leonard goes to see Mrs. Sebastian and walks into a trap set to capture him. Mestres is in league with one of the bandits and Mrs. Sebastian pretends not to know him. Leonard agrees only to accept a lift from Kent and be turned over to the Mexican police, but Mestres rescues him. Mestres gets a trusted guide, Pintarcho, to sneak Leonard across the line, as they pass the building where Kent had placed Pat they are hailed by the Chinese servant. It is a marijuana den, run by an outlawed doctor and his wife, Anna. Fearing Kent will overhear they plan to kill the girl. Leonard and his companions break into the building just in time to save her. Leonard and Pat set out to find Dillon. Kent and Collins also set out, separately, on Dillon's trail. Collins finds Dillon and kills him. Kent witnesses the murder. Coming upon Leonard they accuse him of the deed. They tie him up and go to explore the mine. Pat, who hides till they are gone, comes to his rescue. Together they bury Dillon. Leonard sets Pat off to register the claim. She meets Papago, who was a friend of her father's, and sends him back to help Leonard. But Pat's car is wrecked. Anna regains possession of her.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

THE CLAIM LOCATED.

From the ironwood tree to the highest point of the trail which Kent and Collins were following, the rise was about 600 feet. They had gone less than a hundred yards and climbed less than one-third that distance when Collins saw the burros. They were scrambling up the rocks ahead of him. He halted long enough to let them get over their alarm and to line out on the trail.

"They'll lead us straight to Dillon's camp," he said.

Kent did not answer for the good reason that he had no breath to spare on words. Collins listened to the hoarse gasping and smiled. If he chose to do so, he could go on and get out of sight within five minutes. He turned the matter over in his mind and decided against it; he did not want to lose Kent now. He did not want to lose him at all, until he could be certain that the parting was to be permanent. But it would do no harm to give this pot-bellied little spider some good exercise.

"All right," Collins called, "Let's go!" He heard Kent's groan, the burros were plodding up the grade ahead of him, he chuckled and strode on.

The hill was growing steeper, the rocks were bare, and the footing was poor. There were places where the granite was so slippery that a climber with hobnails would have found it hard to keep from falling. Collins was one of those lean men who are always in good condition. He was used to the hills, he scrambled over the bad spots like a mountain sheep. He rested long enough to listen to the occasional crashes which told him that his companion was still following him, then he went on.

Kent's heart was pounding, it seemed as if his lungs were about to burst, his head was reeling. He sobbed with pain, and there were hideous moments when he sobbed with fear. He had not the slightest idea where he was going, beyond the fact that it was always upward, that he must keep on climbing or else lose touch with this vague form above him, which disappeared so often, leaving only slight sounds to guide him.

It seemed to him as if he had been struggling for hours, as if he could not move one foot before the other when he reached the top of the grade. The trail turned sharply to the left; there was no sign of any one. His knees buckled under him and he sank down beside a clump of yucca. The sharp blades stabbed his soft back and he cried out in agony. The voice that he had grown to hate said:

"We can make better time now." Collins rose out of the shadows where he had been resting and started on. Kent made a hard job of it getting to his feet and stumbled after him.

It was lighter up here on the eastern flank of the mountain; the four burros were visible among the rocks ahead of them. But the light was deceptive. Boulders and clusters of dagger plant were like shadows; the shadows seemed to be solid objects. And Collins was striding on at a three mile an hour pace. Kent held his eyes on the lean form that flitted thru patches of moonlight into deep pools of darkness. His heart was not thumping so badly now; his breath was coming more easily. But once he fell headlong, and when he rose, he reached into his pocket for the pistol; it was not there.

He wasted several minutes in searching for it without result, and then he went on. The trail looped around a steep bluff that thrust out from the side of the mountain like a promontory and entered the narrow mouth of the amphitheater. The moonlight bathed the upper portions of the bowl; it showed the old headframe on the lip. Collins was gazing at it when Kent caught up with him.

"Dillon's monument will be up there somewhere," said Collins.

Kent threw himself on the hard earth without answering. The burros had stopped; they were standing with their heads bowed. Collins went to the nearest animal and started untying the leash ropes. He was unloading the third pack when Kent raised his head and demanded dully:

"What's the idea?"

"Looks better to have this stuff where it belongs instead of those jackasses wandering loose with it on their backs," Collins told him. "We don't want people to get too curious, you know."

Kent dropped his head back upon the earth. He was thinking that as long as Collins did not know about the loss of the pistol, he still held the situation in his hands, provided he did not let matters come to an issue. He was able to get to his feet without much trouble when the unpacking was finished. Aside from the pain of several bruises and one or two abrasions, he seemed to be about as good as ever. And this struck him as something very near to a miracle. He said:

"We'd better fix up that location notice right away."

Collins noticed that the oiliness had returned to Kent's voice, that he had assumed command once more. His eyes grew narrower and he turned his face away.

"O K," he nodded. "Let's go."

The slope was not steep and the ground was smoother here. But Kent walked behind. He held his hand in his coat pocket as he had before. And Collins took notice of that fact.

The monument which Dillon had set up was at the contact of the granite and the sedimentaries, and it was made of huge chunks of shale. It stood near the summit of the ridge, where the other trail—the route from the cavern of the hidden water which Dillon sometimes used—reached the claims. There was a tin tobacco box in a crack between two rock slabs, and the location notice was in this. Collins read it thru carefully, noting the description of the boundaries; then he tossed it aside. Kent sprang after it, but the breeze had carried it out of sight.

"You should have burned that up," Kent said. There was no oil in his voice. Collins faced him truculently.

"Too late now. And, anyhow, he's dead. What's it matter?"

"There's the girl," Kent reminded him. Collins laughed.

"I thought you'd taken care of her."

They stood here regarding each other in silence for a moment. Kent was the first to drop his eyes. He had completely forgotten about his little expedition across the line to the house of the doctor. There was, he told himself, no doubt about it: Collins was right; she offered them no danger. But just the same, he would have liked to face out that issue. He did some mental cursing, which included the rock which had tripped him on the trail and his own clumsiness; that gun would feel nice in his hand just at present.

Collins took a blank from his pocket and wrote down their names together with the description of directions and sidelines which the original paper had contained. Kent read it over by the light of several matches, and they put it into the tobacco box. They dropped this back into its crevice.

"May as well go take a look at that tunnel now," Collins suggested. The moon was growing pale and the white line of the dawn was widening above the eastern horizon when they went down the hill. The tunnel portal was plainly visible, a black hole among masses of loose rock on the mountainside. At the portal Collins halted and looked at a huge granite boulder which lay on the slope above the black hole. He shook his head.

"That fellow Dillon was a tenderfoot," he said, "and he was lucky." Kent agreed. "A lot of better men have hunted for that ore, and he had to be the one that found it."

"Ore, hell!" Collins pointed to the boulder. "See that rock? It might have fallen at any time, and blocked the portal." He whistled between his teeth. "There's an idea! If we could loosen it, then cache Dillon's packs where they're out of sight, nobody's going to come prying around and find that vein. We're safe to leave it for a few days anyhow."

They went on into the narrow cut, and when they had entered the portal, they halted once more to light two candles which Collins had gotten from the dead man's supplies. It took a few moments for the little flames to cease sputtering. Then they saw a wooden powder box behind the timbers just within the portal, a coil of fuse, a tin box of caps, a metal can of carbide, a carbide lamp, several lengths of steel, and a single jack. Collins said:

"And here's a break for us."

He knelt down beside the boxes. Kent stood a pace behind him, watching him.

Practical and Pretty Aprons

WOMEN'S AND MISS' APRONS.

This Christmas season, in which we think so much of fanciful and luxurious things, shouldn't crowd from our minds the need for practical items, too. One of the latter is aprons, so let one of your New Year resolutions be the making of these three designs, all lovely in the most inexpensive materials, and every one easy to make.

Top: A tea apron that reaches only to the bustline and has ruffling or plaiting for the trim. It has a clever pocket, too.

Center: An apron that is almost a dress, because it has shoulders and short cap sleeves, pockets, and a belted waistline. You may be sure that this beruffled number will keep your dresses spotless.

Below: Rickrack braid furnishes the trimming on this coverall of the standard type, with comfortable shoulders and full sash in the back.

All are designed for sizes small, medium, and large. No. 2810 requires ⅝ yard of 39 inch material for medium size. [Another style also included.] No. 2839 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 or 39 inch material for medium size. [Bib style also provided for by pattern.] No. 3488 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch for medium size.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Tactful Note to Ex-Suitor Often Helps

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: For almost four years I went with a man, during which time I gave up all other friends, even my girl friends, just to please him. Then, six months ago, we broke off, and I haven't seen him. I go to dances and out on dates every chance I get, but I can't enjoy myself, for I'm constantly thinking of the man I love, and who used to love me. Now he is out of town, and I hear he is going with a girl to whom he intends to give an engagement ring.

"Should I write to him to see if I still have a chance with him? I have pictures of him, and presents he gave me. Should I return them? I have stopped talking to his mother because I am no longer going with him. His mother and I used to be good friends, and I know we still could be good friends, for she likes me. Should I go to see her? "VERY UNHAPPY."

Stop being all mixed up with your emotions. Sit down and think the situation out calmly. Why did you break off with the man?

How reliable is the information that he is going to give another girl an engagement ring? Don't return the pictures and the presents. He gave them to you.

Just because you are no longer going around with her son is no reason why you should be impolite and ignore his mother.

Scurry around and renew your contacts with your old friends, and make new ones, if possible. A friendly letter to the man you love, WITH NO MENTION of his new girl, telling him how much you miss the good times you used to have together, might bring him back to you. No harm in trying!

Cocktail Party Today for Two Debutantes.

Miss Nancy Wolcott and Miss Janet Musselman are entertaining at cocktails from 6 until 8 o'clock this evening at the Ryland A. Wolcott home for Miss Patsy Blackett and Miss Jean Wolcott. The Carl Kellys and their son, Thomas, will give a luncheon tomorrow for Miss Blackett and Miss Dorothy Warner.

Mrs. M. Ogden West is entertaining at cocktails for her debutante cousin, Miss Mardo Pattou, preceding the Shumway dinner-dance. The party will be given at the home of Mrs. West's mother, Mrs. Philip LeF. Elting.

Invitations to the Dicks' supper-dance read 11 o'clock, but it will be closer to midnight when the young people start leaving the Shumway dinner and heading south on Michigan avenue. Miss Smith, daughter of the Lawrence D. Smiths, and Miss Dick and her parents will receive.

Having a little reception of their own among the older guests will be Mr. Dick's sister, Mrs. Thomas Swan, and her husband, Judge Swan, who have come from New York to spend Christmas with the senior Mrs. Dick. The Sheldon Dicks weren't able to come from Truro, Mass., for Christmas, but they are expected over New Year's.

Miss Dick attends the Finch school in New York. Miss Smith is a student at Mills college.

Hold Debut Parties on Christmas Eve.

There will be no letup of debut parties even on Christmas eve. The Elmer Jewell Dicks will introduce their daughter, Miss Virginia Dick, at a tea at home in Winnetka tomorrow afternoon. Miss Caroline Floto will bow at an informal sort of party, an open house "after 9 o'clock" tomorrow night in the Lake Shore drive apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Floto.

Following the Dick tea the debutante, her assistants, and their escorts will go to the Pump room in the Ambassador hotel for dinner and dancing. Miss Dick, a student at Northwestern, will have some of her college friends as well as her Winnetka friends as assistants. Miss Dick formerly attended Andrébrook at Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Floto party will be an old-fashioned one, with continuous buffet supper and guests taking turns at the piano. Plans for a more formal debut tea were given up because of illness in the debutante's family. Miss Floto will have no assistants.

Col. McCormick Will Entertain Neighbors

Following a precedent established by the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Col. McCormick has invited neighbors and friends to a Christmas party at Cantigny farm tonight. Following dinner Mrs. Henry Weber [Marion Claire] and Attilio Baggiore will sing.

Members of the Tavern club and their guests are invited to share in the traditional wassail bowl in the north lounge this afternoon between 2:30 and 5 o'clock. The governors are giving the party.

Number to Hold At-Home Parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson and their son, John D. Richardson II., will be at home in their apartment at the Ambassador East hotel tomorrow night.

Miss Betty Dewey will be at home tomorrow afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dewey, in Winnetka.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Galloway and Miss Mera Galloway will be at home in Evanston tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Charles H. Coffin's new Winnetka home is only half as large as the one the family formerly occupied, so the party Mrs. Coffin has planned for tomorrow afternoon is but half as large as she wishes it could be.

Mrs. Coffin and her unmarried daughter and son, Miss Irene and Robert Coffin, are entertaining for the wife of Charles H. Coffin Jr. The junior Coffins live in Wayne.

Thomas Dammanns Land in N. Y. Today.

A Christmas treat to which the J. Francis Dammann family is looking forward is the arrival of Thomas L. Dammann and his wife from Europe. They have been abroad a year, writing and illustrating articles. They are on their way home on the Conte di Savoia. The ship is due in New York today.

Christmas Day Should Not Be Too Upsetting

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If you want your small son or daughter to get the most out of Christmas day—

If there are to be other young relatives present and you want to avoid the "ructions" that follow in the wake of strain and excitement—

If there are to be fond relatives and family friends in the house for the whole day of Christmas and you want your own children to appear to the best advantage—

Manage so that they do not get overtired, too keyed up, nor eat and nibble in a way to upset their digestions.

One very practical way to make their day go well is to start the night before and see that they get to bed early.

The next measure is to subtract them on Christmas day from the family gathering and let them take their usual nap—or if they can't do that, rest in a quiet darkened room. This gives them a fresh start in enjoyment later and adds a poise which keeps them from being irritable and "touchy" with other children as well as grownups.

Also a romp outdoors to let off steam is a good stabilizer.

As to food—young children can have "goodies" that are really good for them, so that they don't feel shut out of that festive side of the Christmas celebration. If they're going to have candy, avoid letting them dip into boxes of rich chocolates; there are barley sugar and other simple sweets. If dessert is a plum pudding with creamy hard sauce or hot mince pie that you are sure they can't take care of, provide for them a lighter more digestible dessert like pure ice cream or sherbet with simple cookies in Santa Claus shapes. But most young children brought up to eat sensibly at all times and to eat at the table with their grownups don't beg and argue for the richer foods their elders may eat.

When their bedtime approaches, don't ignore it completely. Keep a weather eye on them and the clock and whisk them off before their tiredness makes a little fiasco of the end of the day.

All this not only adds to Christmas day pleasure but prevents the day after slump of irritability and tiredness and even a digestive upset.

Two Yale Grid Captains Guests at Luncheon Here

More than 400 Yale alumni and undergraduates yesterday attended the annual fathers' and sons' luncheon sponsored by the Yale Club of Chicago. The meeting was held in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. The two guests of honor were the football captains for 1939 and 1940: Joe W. Stack, East Lansing, Mich., leader of the 1939 eleven, and Harold B. Whiteman, Nashville, Tenn., captain elect. Moving pictures of the Yale-Army and Yale-Harvard games were shown.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Bridge is no game for sissies. The player who wants an insurance policy on every bid and play he makes had better take up a less hazardous hobby, such as parachute jumping. This recommendation is aimed directly at defenders such as East in the following deal:

East, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the three of hearts, his fourth highest in partner's bid suit. East won, and surveyed the dummy with a none-too-happy expression. No return seemed very inviting, and finally, on the theory that a heart return "could do no harm, since declarer always could ruff his losing hearts," East led back the heart king. Declarer gratefully ruffed in dummy, cashed the diamond ace, and gave the defenders a diamond trick. West, winning with the diamond king, hastily shifted to a club, but it was too late. Dummy's ace won and a diamond was ruffed, two long diamonds becoming established in dummy.

Now, to guard against a 3-1 trump break, declarer cashed the ace and queen of trumps, preparatory to leading a third trump to dummy's king, if necessary. But when the 2-2 break was revealed, declarer could afford to ruff his last heart with dummy's spade king, thus taking all the rest of the tricks and making one over contract.

East should have been handed a white feather for his work in this hand. After winning the first trick, it should have been completely obvious that a club shift was mandatory. With a five card diamond suit staring him in the face, it required no great imagination on East's part to realize that whatever club tricks were available to the defense would have to be established quickly. Of course, East was afraid that declarer had the club queen, and that a club lead by himself would jeopardize the king, but what of it? If declarer did have the club queen, one club trick would be the defenders' limit, and what good could that do? One club, one heart, no more than one diamond—these could not defeat the contract. Surely, no trump trick could be even hoped for, with South having overcalled with one spade and North showing up with four to the king. East's only chance was to find his own partner with the club queen and, on that chance, he should have shifted to any club, with speed and alacrity.

Obviously, this shift would have brought the defenders two club tricks, one diamond, and one heart, for the defeat of the contract.

AMUSEMENTS.

'NO FOOTBALL' RULING ANGERS STUDENT BODY

Chicago Players Also Protest.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Reaction on the campus and in alumni circles, both in Chicago and out of the metropolitan territory, yesterday was almost unanimously opposed to the action of the university trustees in discontinuing intercollegiate football. Among the various angles unconsidered so far is the effect on the members of the football squad now in the university.

Bob Jampolis, a junior and quarter back on the football team, said yesterday, "I don't think we ought to take this lying down. Neither do I think the action should have been taken while the student body was away. I think it's a slam on us players and adds insult to injury. It will keep a lot of students from coming to school."

Editor Is Disappointed.

Emil Hirsch, editor of Pulse, monthly student magazine, whose publication recently completed a poll of the undergraduates which showed 11 out of 12 students wished to have intercollegiate football continued and that 4 out of 5 thought the university should do something about the caliber of the teams, asserted that "this action has been taken with complete disregard of student opinion. Personally, I am disappointed, but I don't think it necessary for President Hutchins to consult student opinion."

Henry Gale, whose intercollegiate competition goes back to 1895 and who is dean of the division of physical sciences at the university, said, "I am sorry the discontinuance of football seemed necessary. It didn't seem necessary to me but it did to the board [of trustees] and no doubt they looked into it thoroly."

Fraternity Plans Petition.

Kenneth MacLellan, a member of the chapter of Psi Upsilon at the university, reported yesterday that his fraternity is preparing a petition to be signed by undergraduates after the holidays to be presented to the trustees, requesting reconsideration and rescinding of the edict to discontinue football.

The attitude of the freshman football players was expressed by Leonard Humphreville, who said emphatically, "I don't like it. I've talked to a lot of the boys and they don't like it." When asked if this meant he might decide to leave the university he admitted it was a possibility.

Calls Action Sophomoric.

A. C. Goodrich, of Winnetka, class of 1912, telegraphed: "If it is a fact that undergraduate men of the University of Chicago desire and have repeatedly voted to play football, then the sophomoric decision of the board of trustees in abolishing football ignores the bill of rights and sincerely flatters both Stalin and Hitler."

Nels Norgren, basketball coach, and coach of the freshman football squad said:

"This year's freshman squad was the most well rounded, and one of the best we've had in years. The action of the trustees was a drastic step. There is not much comment to make."

Vinson Sahlin, assistant freshman football coach, and former athletic star on the Midway, said, "I'm astounded. I just wrote Mr. Hutchins a letter and I thought he was in favor of our efforts to improve the football situation but I guess I was wrong."

Kenneth L. Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern university, was of the opinion yesterday that his university would continue athletic relations with Chicago unless the Western conference took action which would prevent it. Wilson said, "I was surprised and I regret that Chicago chose to do this. Northwestern always has enjoyed relations with Chicago."

Record Is Creditable.

The all-time record of Chicago football teams show that 258 games have been won, 141 lost and 31 tied since A. A. Stagg coached the first eleven. In the Western conference Chicago's record is 130 games won, 106 lost and 17 tied. Since Shaughnessy came to Chicago the Maroon football teams have won 17 games, lost 34, and tied four. In Big Ten competition Chicago has won only five games since 1933, has lost 25, and tied two.

Other critics of the action of the university trustees pointed out that while there may have been reason for Chicago dropping Big Ten teams there was no reason why the university would not continue to sponsor a football team and permit it to play against universities and colleges of approximate strength. This has been the goal, to a degree, of the athletic department, which had cut the number of conference games to three.

IT'S HAPPENED B*ORE.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 22 (AP).—The University of Chicago is the second school in which Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins is a leader to withdraw from intercollegiate football.

The Chicago president is chairman of the board of visitors and governors of St. John's college here, which withdrew after a disastrous 1938 season.

MACK, 77, LOOKS TO 1940? NO, SIR, HIS GOAL IS 1941

By Then, Connie Feels, He Will Have Another Winner

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 22 (AP).—The wispy gentleman with the courtly manner will be 77 tomorrow, so he isn't figuring much on 1940. No sir, he's figuring on 1941, by which time he thinks his Athletics will be able to talk back to some of those American league pennant contenders.

He's tall and he's spare. His dark suit settles about him loose as fog. He wears his coat long, his collar high, making his head seem small, like the dot over a long "i." His expression is that of apprehension. In brief, he's Connie Mack, Mr. Baseball himself.

It's Just Saturday to Him.

Tomorrow will be just another day for him. It took him nearly 77 years, but he's finally learned how to live, and that means there will be no feasting, no celebration. Just a quiet day at home. He's watching his diet, which is part of his art of living. He nearly died this year, with his gall bladder acting up no end.

"I was 8 pounds heavier than I'd been in years," he explains, "and I thought I should keep those 8 pounds. So I stuffed myself. Now I've learned not to crowd when I eat. I feel great and expect to live a good many years yet.

"It's rather hard on my son, Earle. I've been a handicap to him. He's 47 now, and he'll succeed me eventually, but if it weren't for me hanging on he'd be managing the team now.

"I expect our team to be better next season, but 1941 is the year I'm really figuring on. Not that it'll win the pennant necessarily, but it will be good enough to talk back to the other teams."

He Praises Yankees.

He paused, and the bright blue eyes cached deeply under shaggy grey brows were thoughtful.

"Those Yankees," he mused. "Aren't they a great ball club? The greatest. No other team has done what they have. But some day some other club will come up and win, despite that great farm system."

Nearly all the immortals of baseball have passed in review before Mr. Mack in the three score years he has been watching the parade. He has kind words for all of them. In fact, the only kind of words he has for anybody are kind. But one name in particular brings a glow and a burst of confidence.

Recalls Bender's Greatness.

"Chief Bender was the greatest one-game pitcher I ever saw," he enthuses. "If there was one game I just had to win, if everything depended upon it, he would be my choice. I used to call him aside a week or 10 days ahead and say: 'Chief, get ready for that game, we must win it.' He never let me down. He had speed and control, and above all, he had it here," and Mr. Mack tapped his head lightly with a long forefinger.

So baseball's grand old man is getting ready for another season with the same enthusiasm he showed 60 years ago, and don't let his gracious manner and "goodness gracious" talk fool you. Or his 77 years.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

SHADES of Walter Eckersall, Wally Steffen, Fritz Crisler, John Thomas, Five Yards McCarty, Jay Berwanger, Hugo Bezdek, Pat Page, Ken Rouse, Charlie Higgins, Clarence Herschberger, Chuck McGuire, Otto Strohmeier, Paul Des Jardien! . . . The school where they achieved gridiron immortality has abandoned their sport. . . . Can you imagine those men quitting when things were breaking badly? . . . They belonged to an era when men were men and the University of Chicago wasn't afraid of competition. . . . Announcement that intercollegiate football had been abandoned at the Midway was no shock to those who have been following the university's athletic policy in recent years. . . . It was becoming increasingly apparent that executives of the school felt intercollegiate sport, especially football, had no place in the curriculum of education. . . . You will find a similar element in most universities, but fortunately for America educators who share that attitude still are in the minority. . . . Withdrawal of Chicago from intercollegiate football is regretted by the vast majority of its supporters, but most of all by columnists whose responsibilities include the forecasting of college scores. . . . Chicago in the last few years was one of the few teams whose defeat one could predict with almost rockbound certainty. . . .

Wally Steffen.

Walter Eckersall.

You may expect any day to hear of the first serious injury to a major league player in a hunting accident. . . . Last season's toll included Monty Stratton of the White Sox, who lost his right leg, and Jake Early, Washington catcher, who filled one of his legs with buckshot but escaped amputation. . . . In 1932 Charley Gelbert, the Cardinals' world series hero, went into the woods with a gun and was carried out with a foot and ankle so badly riddled he was lost to baseball for five years. . . . One hardly could blame a club owner for having a no-hunting clause in all player contracts. . . . Gene Ronzani, who coached the Newark Bears to the championship of the American Football association, is spending the holidays in Chicago. . . . The Newark club finished in last place in 1938 before Ronzani took charge. . . . The Professional Golfers' association has in its membership the largest number of world war veterans of any sports organization in the United States.

Finale.

When the last ship is swept from the ocean
And the last airplane out of the sky,
And only the water's commotion,
And only the seagull's weird cry
Are heard, and the tides unmolested
Move slowly from shore unto shore,
And the depths of the seas are infested
With submarine prowlers no more,

King Neptune will take up his trident
And, mounting his green throne, will scan
His realms and, sardonic and rident,
Reflect on the downfall of man.
Assembling his mermaids and mermen
With a conch shell's shrill, bomb mocking blast,
He will tell how the queer human vermin
Destroyed one another at last.

"My domain is teeming with fishes
That prey on each other," he'll say.
"Contrary sometimes to my wishes
They mangle and torture and slay.
To the dim coral gates of my palace
The frightened small fry are pursued,
But never in anger or malice—
'Tis the ocean old struggle for food.

"But these creatures, strange, that might master
The earth and the sky and the sea,
They have brought on their own mad disaster,
A thing quite mysterious to me.
They might have ruled over these three worlds
And the fabulous fullness thereof,
These beauteous, bounteous free worlds,
In a spirit of brotherly love.

"But no. They would slay one another,
Tho abundance of food was at hand,
With enmity, brother toward brother,
In the sky, in the sea, on the land."
So Neptune will stretch forth his trident
Reclaiming the sea for his own,
And with laughter storm brewing and strident
Take his place once again on his throne.
—Elmer.

GRADUATES HOPE BIG 10 WILL LET CHICAGO REMAIN

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

University of Chicago alumni yesterday were almost unanimous in expressing regret that their alma Mater, thru a vote of the board of trustees Thursday night, had decided to abandon intercollegiate football after 48 years of uninterrupted competion. This attitude of regret was a general one, altho a strong minority faction went beyond it, and expressed its protest vigorously.

The decision to drop football on the Midway was revealed Thursday night in a statement issued by Harold H. Swift, chairman of the board of trustees, and Robert M. Hutchins, president of the university. The statement pointed out that emphasis on athletics for all students has been increasing at the university for the last 15 years, with the result that there were more students taking part in the 12 intramural sports than ever before.

Ask Games Be Canceled.

The Swift-Hutchins announcement also said the trustees hoped that Chicago's withdrawal from Western conference football would not require termination of its relationship with other Big Ten members in other sports. The statement concluded by a request of all its scheduled football opponents for the 1940 and 1941 seasons to cancel their games.

The official stand of the other nine conference schools as to whether Chicago would be permitted to continue in Big Ten competition in other sports still was undisclosed yesterday, but Prof. O. F. Long, long time Northwestern university member of the conference faculty committee, indicated doubt that the Maroons would be allowed to take part in other conference sports on the basis of their having abandoned football. He said he thought it would be a violation of the spirit of the Big Ten to allow Chicago to drop the game in which it has been weak for several seasons, and still participate in other sports.

Expect Special Meeting.

The next official meeting of the faculty committee of the Big Ten

What U. of Chicago Students Think About Loss of Football

Comment by University of Chicago students yesterday concerning the school's decision to abandon intercollegiate football:

John Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Ia., co-captain of the 1939 team—"I was stunned by the announcement. Supposedly we had the best freshman team in years and prospects were bright for 1940. I can't help feeling that this isn't the last word. If alumni protests are strong enough something may be done about the situation."

Hugh Rendleman, Davenport, Ia., varsity tackle—"It was like kicking the players in the face when they're down. A couple of them came to me almost crying when they heard about it. I favor subsidizing the team to the extent of furnishing jobs to athletes who need assistance."

Margery Eckhouse, 4833 Woodlawn avenue, a sophomore—"I think it is all right to abandon football provided we are going to stay in the Big Ten in other intercollegiate sports, but I believe football should be substituted for touch football as an intramural sport."

Robert Weinberg, 2228 South Kildare avenue, freshman end—"I think it's a shame. I think the decision was too hasty and that Dr. Hutchins will give it more serious thought before it becomes final. We should have had a fine team next year. I believe a player should be given a chance to work his way thru school."

Morrie Grinburg, 6130 Ingleside avenue, varsity guard—"I object to the move only because I believe football is an institution which should not be dependent upon the athletic prowess of the individuals participating. Certainly there are cycles in football and this move shouldn't have been made just because we have a losing team."

Phyllis Goldstein, 5408 Eastview park—"I think it was a good idea. Football has been commercialized too much and athletics should not be run on that basis. The ideals of good sportsmanship, not subsidization, are supposed to be taught here."

Richard Salzmann, Dubuque, Ia., a junior—"I don't see why, because we have two or three bad seasons, we can't come back. It might involve subsidization, but I do not think that would hurt the university's prestige. This will be a seminary in about seven years. I came here for other things than study alone."

Lee Hewitt, St. Louis, a junior—"This thing is going to lead into something that will be distasteful to the students, and thru them to the administration. The university can't blame other schools if we are banned from the Big Ten conference."

Dan Smith, 5413 Woodlawn avenue, law student—"I don't view it with approval, but as a necessary choice. I don't think it is possible to compete in the Big Ten without doing what others are doing, which I think is dishonest. If all schools would abide by the rules they established we could compete with them."

Ruth Klopsteg, Evanston, freshman—"The whole football setup here was pretty sad. I don't think there is enough school spirit behind the team. It seems too bad to abolish football, tho. I think college football is grand. Subsidization or some other arrangement might have been a solution to the problem."

SO. CALIFORNIA WHIPS IRISH TO STAY UNBEATEN

Rochester Topples Wolverines, 31-23.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 22 [Special].—Southern California made a clean sweep of its middle western basketball invasion by trouncing Notre Dame, 55 to 38, before a capacity crowd of 5,500 tonight.

The Trojans led all the way, getting eight points in the first two minutes and making six out of their first seven shots. The Irish closed the margin to 10 to 8, but Southern California ran 10 points at this point with Ralph Vaughn, former Frankfort, Ind., star, pacing the rally. Southern California led, 28 to 15, at the half.

Another Hoosier Stars.

Notre Dame spurted midway in the final period to cut an 18 point margin to 11 points at 41 to 30, but Keith Lambert, former Anderson, Ind., High school star, scored two quick field goals and the Trojans were off again.

Vaughn led the attack with 13 points, but Center Dale Sears had 12 and Jack Morrison, acting captain and forward, got 11. Capt. Mark Ertel led the Irish with 12 points.

Have Won Four in Row.

The Trojans defeated De Paul in an overtime game in Chicago Monday night, 44 to 42, and on Wednesday night nosed out Purdue, 38 to 34, in Lafayette. Previous to leaving on their trip they defeated an alumni team in Los Angeles. They will play Long Island and Temple next week.

Southern California handled the ball beautifully and made nearly 30 per cent of its shots tonight, while the Irish's passing was streaky. Notre Dame could make only 20 per cent of its shots. Lineups:

MICHIGAN LOSES, 31-23

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 22 [Special].—The University of Rochester basketball team handed Michigan its first loss of the season tonight, 31 to 23. It was Rochester's first victory over the Wolverines in three starts and atoned for last year's 47 to 45 loss, the only defeat suffered by Rochester.

Bob Collett, Rochester captain, tallied 15 points for scoring honors. Rochester jumped away to a five point lead in the opening moments while Michigan went scoreless. The Wolverines tied it up shortly before the half, only to fall behind again and never catch up. Rochester sewed it up after the intermission by throwing in seven points before Michigan tallied. Peoria, Ill., Dec. 22 [Special].—Washington State college's basketball team concluded its invasion of the midwest here tonight by rallying to upset Bradley Tech, 44 to 38, before 4,000. It was Bradley's first defeat this year and its third home loss in four years.

Bradley trailed at the intermission, but jumped into a 34 to 29 lead with 10 minutes to play. Then the Cougars took advantage of their height and moved ahead rapidly, with Kirk Gebert and Paul Linderman leading the way. Gebert, a reserve, came into the game late, but totaled a dozen points to tie Bradley's acting captain, Ken Olson. Chris Hansen, Tech center, scored 11.

Washington State also whipped Akron and Wayne on its trip, but bowed to Northwestern, Michigan State and Purdue. Lineups:

Here Is Action, Lots of It! Prep Basket Score, 158-12

Stonington, Conn., Dec. 22 (AP).—Westerly, R. I., High school's basketball squad wants to know what's all the fuss about point-a-minute teams, after walloping Stonington, 158 to 12. Westerly scored at the rate of almost five points a minute in the 32 minute contest last night. Capt. George Mearns of the victors tallied 62 points, almost two points a minute, himself.

ZIVIC TO START WORKOUTS TODAY FOR ARON MATCH

Each Seeks Elimination Bout with Davis.

Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh welterweight, who is listed as the third leading challenger by the National Boxing association, will open workouts in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for a 10 round bout against Milt Aron in the Coliseum Wednesday.

It will be Zivic's first Chicago appearance in nearly two years. In his last start in this city, in Rainbo Fronton, Jan. 7, 1938, Fritzie hammered out a decision in 10 rounds over Harold Brown. He knocked Brown out of the ring for a 10 count and floored him for nine in the sixth round.

Wins 26 of Last 30 Bouts.

Zivic has engaged in 30 bouts since then, winning 26, scoring one draw, and losing three decisions. Fourteen of these matches were won by knockouts. Moreover, Fritzie's last three contests ended in knockouts. He stopped Peter De Ruzza in Pittsburgh Sept. 5, Billy Lancaster in New York Nov. 18, and Wicky Harkins in Philadelphia Dec. 6. Zivic's last setback was suffered at the hands of Charley Burley in Pittsburgh on July 17.

Off the year's record Aron should win. In that case Aron would earn an elimination bout against Al Davis, New York sensation, in Madison Square Garden next month. Johnny Attell, Garden matchmaker, has announced his intention to be on hand to sign Wednesday's survivor.

7 Kayoes in 9 Fights.

In nine fights this year Aron has scored eight victories, seven by knockouts. He registered a three round knockout over Leonard Bennett of Detroit in Marigold Oct. 30. It was Milt's last start.

Additional matches in the Coliseum will bring together Pete Lello and Eddie Lander, Altus Allen and Lee Oma, and Henry Wacker and Harry Sutton.

Al Hostak, middleweight champion, will arrive on Jan. 12 for a 10 round overweight contest against Tony Zale in Chicago Stadium Jan. 19. Bill Rand, who is sponsoring the event, said the show needs $15,000 to break even. He added that if Zale scores an upset he will sign the boys for a rematch with the title at stake. The promoter explained Hostak's demands for $30,000 to defend his title precluded the possibility of arranging a championship encounter at this time. Rand will go to Milwaukee New Year's afternoon to watch Georgie Pace, new bantamweight champion, in a 10 round fight against Johnny Gaudes there. If Pace shows to advantage Rand will have the champion appear on the Stadium card.

Conditions for the eighth annual amateur boxing tournament in the Illinois Athletic club were announced yesterday by Johnny Behr, I. A. C. sports director. Preliminary and semifinal bouts to be held Jan. 16 and 17 will be three rounds of two minutes and championship matches on Jan. 24 will be three rounds of three minutes. In addition eight ounce gloves will be used in the first five weight divisions — flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight and welterweight—and 10 ouncers will be the rule in the three heavier classes—middleweight, light heavyweight, and heavyweight. Not more than 10 yards of bandage will be allowed on each hand. A strip of one inch adhesive tape also will be permissible around the wrist and knuckles. Any amateur is eligible to compete. Applications can be obtained from the club's athletic director.

The next meeting of the Illinois boxing commission will be Jan. 5, a session scheduled for next Tuesday having been canceled because of the holidays. Among the commission's duties at this meeting will be disposal of purses of Tiger Jack Fox, Spokane, Wash., heavyweight, and Clarence Brown. The money was ordered withheld following Referee Tommy Thomas' action in declaring a Fox-Brown meeting in White City on Dec. 1 no contest. . . . Mique Malloy has changed the date and site of a major show he will promote next month. The card, originally scheduled in Chicago Stadium Jan. 26, has been shifted to 124th Field Artillery armory and the new date is Jan. 24.

PLAN STADIUM SEATING 100,000 AT WORLD'S FAIR

New York, Dec. 22 (AP).—Plans are being considered for the erection of a stadium on or near the world's fair grounds to seat 100,000 and cost approximately $2,500,000, Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting club announced today.

After talking with several financiers, Jacobs, who would be general promoter of the stadium, said they hoped to start construction soon after Jan. 1. In that case the stadium might be ready for use in May.

Such a structure, it is felt, would be large enough to accommodate the crowds that want to see championship prize fights and football games like the Notre Dame-Army contest, which always has packed the Yankee stadium, with its seating capacity of some 80,000.

CHICAGO STILL CAN COMPETE IN ITS INTRAMURALS

1,095 Students Take Part in 12 Sports.

Six man football, regulation 11 man football, or an extension of the present intramural competition in touch football are possibilities to take the place of the intercollegiate game, from which the University of Chicago announced its withdrawal Thursday. Action in the matter, which depends on the amount of student interest in these alternatives, probably will not be taken until next fall, T. N. Metcalf, director of athletics on the Midway, said last night.

Football other than touch football, is not now a part of the university's intramural program, which includes 23 sports—touch football, swimming, wrestling, basketball, table tennis, indoor and outdoor track, billiards, bowling, softball, tennis, and golf. Last year 1,095 students took part in the program, which competition is divided into three leagues, the fraternities, the dormitories, and independent groups.

Interest Is Growing.

The number participating in intramurals last year was only slightly larger than the number which took part 10 years ago, but it represented a steady increase from the low the program reached seven years ago, according to Walter Hebert, instructor in physical education and Maroon tennis coach. Hebert also is manager of the intramural program. More than one-third of the students who took part in the intramural program competed in touch football, he said.

Growing interest in the intramural program, which was evident even before the university announced its decision to abandon football as an intercollegiate sport, was indicated, according to Hebert, by the battle waged in 1938 by the Bar association team, a group of law students competing in the independent league. The Bar association, for the first time in intramural history, won the touch football title from the Fraternity league. In the 1939 season Phi Gamma Delta, a fraternity group, returned the title to its division. Another independent team, the Chicago Theological seminary, won the intramural basketball title last year.

Winners Receive Trophies.

The 12 sports now included in the intramural program are made the basis for point awards, league and interleague champions receiving trophies or medals at the end of the year. Several sports sponsored by the intramural department are not included among the 12 for which points are awarded. These are handball, badminton, squash racquets, and horseshoes. The number out for horseshoes last year showed the most striking drop in the entire intramural program. In 1938, 240 boys competed in the event, while the 1938 attendance was 14.

is scheduled for Chicago next May, during the conference track and field meet. Faculty men yesterday, however, indicated that a special meeting to consider the university's action probably will be called before then.

Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference, who has been confined to his home by illness for several weeks, made no comment on the Chicago situation yesterday. A spokesman for Maj. Griffith, was asked if another university would replace the Maroons in the Big Ten. He pointed out that abolition of football on the Midway does not constitute a vacancy in the conference, since Chicago's announcement did not include withdrawal from the Big Ten.

Mention Four Schools.

Conjecture several times has mentioned four schools as a likely replacement for Chicago, if it should withdraw from the Big Ten. They are Michigan State, Nebraska, Pittsburgh, and Notre Dame.

The only organized gesture of protest yesterday was a hastily called noonday meeting of the Chicago Alumni club and the Order of the C, composed of past and present letter winning athletes at the university. Only a dozen men attended this session, which continued for three hours in a private dining room in the La Salle hotel. They came to no definite decision.

John Schommer, former all-around star at Chicago, who is now president of the Chicago Alumni club, and Secretary John Chapman, said that the joint gathering of the two organizations agreed only to record their official regret at the situation. They also added that in view of the fact that Chicago is the only member of the Big Ten which competes in all 13 conference sports, they would not like to see the Maroons dropped out of all Big Ten competition because they have decided to drop football.

Berwanger Sits In.

Among those attending the La Salle hotel meeting was Jay Berwanger, the Iowa boy who temporarily resurrected Maroon football hopes by his individual exploits on the Midway a few years ago. Berwanger, who is one of the assistant coaches on the Chicago staff, said that he was stunned by the announcement.

The only unusual note in the meeting of the alumni was the sudden arrival and almost as sudden disappearance of one of the university's freshman football squad, which has been highly touted as the best seen on the Midway in ten years. He was John Guttler, a 210 pound tackle who formerly played at Schurz High school. Guttler sought the room in which the meeting was being held, but did not enter. After telling newspapermen that he would like to play football, but would return to the university in spite of its abolition of the game, the young man left quickly.

NO RULE VIOLATION

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 22 (AP).—Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus of Indiana university, chairman of Western conference faculty representatives, said today the University of Chicago's withdrawal from intercollegiate football is not a violation of Big Ten rules.

"There is nothing specific in the organization rules of the Western conference that makes it obligatory for a member school to compete in all the sports sponsored by the conference," Moenkhaus said.

"It is a fact that all schools compete in all the major sports, but not in all the minor sports. Whether Chicago's failure to compete in a major sport would affect her standing is a matter for the faculty representatives of the conference to decide."

Coach Stagg Is Shocked by Chicago Move

HONOLULU, Dec. 22 (AP).—Amos Alonzo Stagg, who coached University of Chicago teams 41 years, expressed great regret that the university trustees had voted to withdraw from intercollegiate football.

"It's a great blow to learn the trustees have been forced to take such action," said the 77 year old veteran, now coach at College of the Pacific at Stockton, Cal.

Asked whether he was sorry he left Chicago, Stagg said "I never have been happy about leaving Chicago and even have shed tears. I'm foolish enough to believe the action wouldn't have happened had I been there.

"Intercollegiate football contributes to the growth of young men's enthusiasm, sentiment, and loyalty toward the student body and brings alumni into closer contact with the school."

CRISLER IS SURPRISED.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 22 (AP).—Herbert O. [Fritz] Crisler, head football coach at the University of Michigan and former Chicago star, expressed surprise today at Chicago's withdrawal from Western conference football competition.

The Wolverines were scheduled to play Chicago here next fall, in Chicago in 1941, and in Ann Arbor again in 1942.

"Naturally, the news of Chicago's decision comes as a surprise to me," said Crisler.

LANDIS SILENT ON DISPOSITION OF FARM CASES

"There is nothing to announce."

With these few choice words Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis closed the door on whatever developed at a farm club conference in his Michigan avenue office yesterday.

It was reported, unofficially, that the commissioner's decision regarding player manipulations by the Detroit club and its minor league affiliates may be handed down early next week. The case is said to involve three or four clubs with which Detroit had, or has, working agreements and if the commissioner renders a guilty verdict it may mean free agency for various players or fines.

Williams Bats in 145 Runs to Lead A. L.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox outfielder, was in major baseball circles for the first time last season but didn't let his freshman status keep him away from one of the game's important batting honors.

The ex-Coast leaguer stepped right over the heads of the American league's established bat swingers to set the pace in the column headed "Runs Batted In." Williams' bat was responsible for 145 tallies, according to the official averages made public yesterday.

Williams wasn't even closely pursued, the next in line being the Yankees' talented Joe DiMaggio, who captured the league's batting crown but produced only 126 runs in behalf of the world champions. Third place went to Bob Johnson, who performed quite a feat by driving in 114 runs for the lowly Athletics.

Walker Drives In 111.

Only 11 men pounded their way into production of more than 100 runs. Three of these were Boston boys, Manager Joe Cronin and Jim Foxx in addition to Freshman Williams. Besides DiMaggio the Yanks had three in this select group, Joe Gordon with 111, Bill Dickey with 105 and George Selkirk with 101. Also in the classy bracket was Gerry Walker, who contributed 111 runs to the White Sox cause and has since been traded to Washington for Taft Wright, who accounted for 93 runs, altho in 20 fewer games than Walker.

Williams came close to copping another item considered important in attacking ability. He coaxed 107 bases on balls from the enemy, some of which were given up willingly as a means of shaking off the threat he carried in the pinches. Leader in this respect was Harlond Clift of the Browns, with 111, and third place was won by Luke Appling, the White Sox shortstop, who batted in only 56 runs, but accumulated 105 gratuities.

Greenberg Fans 95 Times.

Frankie Crosetti, who is quite handy around shortstop for the Yanks, lost face as a strikeout expert. In 1938 Crosetti was the league's best fanner, his mark of 97 displacing Foxx, who for six years had done more fanning than any other fellow in the league. Crosetti dropped to third this season, the lead being taken by Hank Greenberg of the Tigers. Hank whiffed 95 times. Crosetti, however, continued in his rôle as an easy target for pitchers. They plunked him 13 times.

Run production as a whole fell off from the 1938 total. During 1939 there were 5,963 tallies moved across the plate legitimately, a healthy portion of this total bearing a Yankee label. In 1938 the runs driven in totaled 6,100. Strikeouts increased from 4,251 in 1938 to 4,314 last season. Bases on balls declined to 4,657 from 4,926 the year previous.

NEYLAND VISITS OLD PALS; RAIN KEEPS VOLS IDLE

Stop Is Made in Coach's Home Town.

Greenville, Tex., Dec. 22 (AP).—Maj. Bob Neyland stopped the train 10 minutes to greet home town friends today, but wouldn't let his Rose bowl bound Tennessee Volunteers practice in the rain. "Quite a few of the boys already have colds and I don't want to run the risk of having the squad riddled by sickness by working in the rain," Coach Neyland explained.

He found that rains were just as bad at Dallas, Ennis and Corsicana and passed those cities up also.

All the Vols except George [Bad News] Cafego were in good shape, Neyland said. He added that Cafego might be ready to play against Southern California Jan. 1.

Due in El Paso Today.

Heading west from here, the Volunteers are due at El Paso tomorrow afternoon where a workout is scheduled. The party will arrive in Los Angeles shortly before noon Sunday.

There are 35 players in the Vols' squad, in addition to the coaching staff, managers, trainer, team physician, newspapermen and a handful of supporters.

EAST, WEST OPEN DRILL.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 22 (AP).—Football stars from the east and west, who meet New Year's day in the annual charity game, moved out of the banquet league today to begin training for the big gridiron event.

The 22 man western squad, under Coaches Biff Jones and Orin Hollingbery, went thru two drills on the Stanford university practice field at Palo Alto.

The eastern team, under Coaches Bernie Bierman and Andy Kerr

CHICAGO TRADE FILLS UP SLEIGH OF SANTA CLAUS

Business Is Best in Last Decade.

Santa Claus may need a trailer this Christmas, for his sleigh will be overloaded with the largest sack of gifts in the last decade. This was indicated yesterday by a survey of wholesalers and manufacturers, most of whom reported that Christmas sales were the best since the boom days of 1929.

Several companies in the representative group included in the survey said that this year's Christmas business was the best on record, and for some the entire year also set a new peak. In virtually every case sales at least equaled those of 1937, the previous record year of the 1930's for most lines of business.

Foresee Good Business.

A significant trend was seen in heavy advance orders, which led several manufacturers and wholesalers to predict increasingly good business during the first part of 1940. Some think next year will top this year.

In all lines of business a strong trend toward the purchase of higher priced and luxury articles was evident. Sales of these items, in most instances, have been at low ebb since 1929.

"More people have money to spend, and they are spending it," one wholesaler said.

Retailers of radios, toys, men's clothing, home furnishings, and other lines sold out their original Christmas purchases and were forced to order more. Distributors said the retailers evidently expected no trouble in selling their additional orders, because they generally attempt to have low inventories on Jan. 1.

Zenith Deliveries Set Record.

Hugh Robertson, executive vice president of Zenith Radio corporation, said distributors' deliveries to retailers in the week ended Dec. 11 set an all-time weekly record, which in turn was broken the following week. This, he said, was contrary to the normal trend, since retailers usually make their purchases in October. This year they found they had not purchased enough.

"The distributors are very happy about the situation," Robertson said. He added that interest in the coming Presidential campaign is expected to aid 1940 radio sales.

Both 1939 wholesale business and the Christmas sales established new records for A. C. McClurg & Co., distributors of sporting goods, toys, books, and other gift items, according to Denton H. Sparks, president. Sparks said demand for quality items reappeared after on absence of 10 years.

Advance Spring Business Good.

"The most encouraging sign," commented Morris K. Wilson, vice president of Wilson Brothers, "is the advance business for next spring, which is far ahead of last year and indicates the retail trade has confidence in continued good business."

He said the company's sales of men's furnishings were at a 10 year high last fall.

M. J. Spiegel Jr. said that Spiegel, Inc., of which he is vice president and manager, had the best Christmas business in its history. Sales of the mail order house were 15 to 20 per cent ahead of 1938.

White tie and tails is the dress indicated for evenings during the holiday season, if the spurt in sales of men's formal wear is any indication. This report came from Charles W. Livingston, vice president of B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc. Replacements of sold-out lines by retailers this season were 50 per cent larger than a year ago, and equaled or exceeded reorders in 1937, which was the best year in many years.

Expects Good 1940 Trade.

"We expect business to be good in the first half of 1940," Livingston said.

Business of Stein & Ellbogen, wholesale jewelry firm, for the entire year has been about 20 per cent heavier than in 1938, according to Albert Ellbogen, president. Sales of higher priced items were in better volume than in many years. Watches particularly were in demand for the Christmas trade.

Sales of $12,489,624.99 in November were reported in 20 major classifications of the home furnishings, apparel, building materials and related fields by wholesalers of 3,527 lines housed in the Merchandise Mart, Percy Wilson, managing director of the building, announced. November sales fell slightly short of expectations, but showed a gain of 20.9 per cent over the November, 1938, volume of $10,324,763.93, he said.

"Our business has been the best in 20 years," said Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, space in which is "sold out."

"The home furnishings field is looking forward to an even better year in 1940," he said.

Pleased with Holiday Trade.

"We are very much pleased with our Christmas wholesale business," said F. H. Scott, vice president of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. "It is running ahead of both 1938 and 1937."

Scott said that unit transactions were larger than in 1929, but that the dollar volume did not equal that year because prices are lower now.

Several other companies did not have sufficient returns to estimate their Christmas business, but made the following comments:

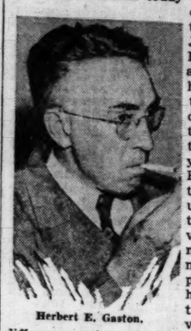
Butler Brothers—Our Christmas sales were better than in either 1937 or 1938.

Montgomery Ward & Co.—Business was very good.

Sears, Roebuck & Co.—Christmas business was better than last year.

Report Gaston to Get Hanes' Treasury Job

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 (AP).—Herbert E. Gaston today was reported selected to succeed John W. Hanes, who announced his resignation as undersecretary of the treasury yesterday. Hanes quit the treasury to return to private business, but made it plain that his resignation involved no differences with the administration as have so many previous departures from high treasury posts.



Herbert E. Gaston.

Gaston, a former newspaper editor, now is assistant secretary of the treasury and is regarded in treasury circles as closer to Secretary Morgenthau than any one else in the department.

Six months ago, Gaston permitted Morgenthau to promote him from a $10,000 a year job as treasury publicity chief to the $9,000 assistant secretaryship. Elevation of the undersecretaryship would restore his former pay scale.

Sullivan Made an Assistant.

Observers accepted as an indication that Gaston would be moved up an announcement that President Roosevelt had selected John L. Sullivan, Manchester, N. H., lawyer, to be an assistant secretary of the treasury. If Gaston should take over Hanes' duties, Sullivan would be available to take over Gaston's work, which includes supervision of the coast guard and many other treasury bureaus.

Sullivan has been an assistant to the commissioner of internal revenue since Sept. 5. A graduate of Dartmouth and Harvard, he practiced law in Manchester, specializing in tax cases before coming here.

Both Morgenthau and President Roosevelt expressed regret at Hanes' resignation. He will leave as soon as he can wind up his affairs here. Then, it is understood, he will look for a business connection either in this vicinity or in North Carolina, where his family has banking and textile interests.

Broker for 20 Years.

For 20 years, Hanes was a successful Wall street broker. He came to Washington two years ago as a member of the Securities and Exchange commission. After helping to create better relations between that agency and the New York Stock exchange, he moved to the treasury to take charge of tax plans to help business.

Gaston, 58, is a native of Halsey, Ore. He has edited newspapers in Tacoma, Spokane, Fargo, N. D., Minneapolis, and New York. His last newspaper position was night editor of the former New York World.

When that newspaper discontinued publication, he became a deputy to Morgenthau, then the New York state conservation commissioner. Morgenthau brought Gaston to Washington again as his deputy in the farm credit administration in 1933, and both went to the treasury later the same year.

ROCK ISLAND LINE REPORTS LARGE GAIN IN INCOME

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company yesterday reported that net railway operating income for the first 11 months of this year more than doubled the figure for the corresponding period of 1938. Such income totaled $4,861,820, compared with $1,934,110 last year.

E. M. Durham, chief executive officer, said the larger part of the increase resulted from economies effected in transportation costs, which resulted in a saving of $1,568,480 in the 11 months, despite heavier traffic.

Maintenance expenditures increased $407,437 due to an expanded improvement program, Durham said. The road's November net operating income was $563,802, against $460,842 in November, 1938.

Net incomes of railways reporting yesterday were:

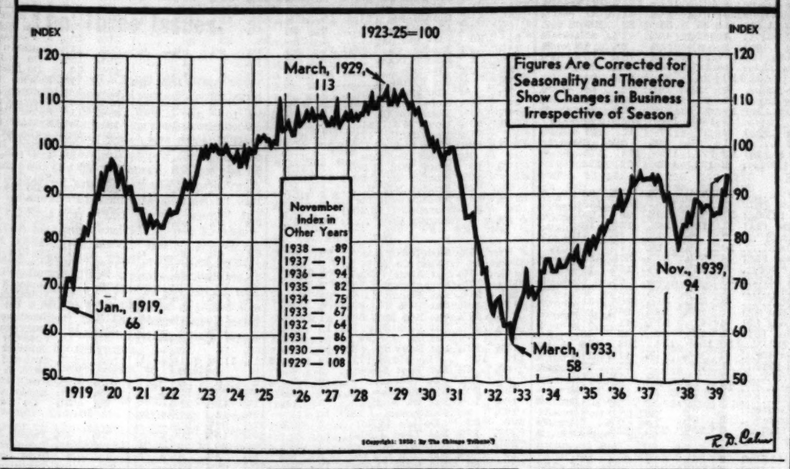
MACHINE FIRM MAKES FOURTH EXPANSION IN LAST SIX YEARS

The Clearing Machine corporation, heavy machine maker at 6499 West 65th street, in the Clearing industrial district, yesterday contracted for the company's fourth plant addition in six years. It will adjoin the present building and add approximately 10,000 square feet of floor space. General expansion of company business was the principal reason given by R. W. Glasner, president, for the new addition.

Originally formed in 1933 the company has grown into a million dollar organization in six years, he said. The larger units made by the company are used in the production of automobile tops, box car ends, and deep steel tubs.

The International Machine Tool company of Indianapolis recently became a subsidiary of the Clearing Machine corporation thru purchase of all of the tool company's common stock.

Department Store Sales in the United States as Reported by the Federal Reserve Board



Assert Illinois Actuary Got Company Fees

Washington, D. C. Dec. 22 (AP)—Testimony by a Securities and Exchange investigator that check stubs and an aduit showed a reinsurance company had made payments totaling $1,500 to an actuary of the Illinois state insurance department was denied by a company official today at a monopoly committee hearing.

Herbert Shimp, head of the American Conservation company, the Chicago reinsurance organization, told the committee that "not a dollar of this money" ever went to Ray R. Haffner. A. J. Leary, the securities investigator, had identified Haffner as the Illinois insurance department actuary.

When Gerhard Gessell, counsel for the monopoly committee inquired how Haffner's name happened to appear on check stubs and in the aduit, Shimp replied that it "must be a mistake of the auditors."

Report $50,000 Paid to Smith.

Testimony and committee records indicated that "special commissions" amounting to more than $50,000 had been paid to Raymond T. Smith, vice president of Alfred M. Best & Co. Shimp testified that the payments were in connection with two reorganizations—reinsurance of the Security Life Insurance Company of America, Chicago, by the Central Life Insurance Company of Illinois, and reinsurance of the Chicago National Life Insurance company by the Pacific States Life Insurance Company of California.

Gessell demanded to know what services Smith had performed to warrant giving him a share in the reinsurance commissions.

"He introduced me to some officers of one of the companies," Shimp replied.

PALMER ASKS REPORT

Ernest Palmer, director of the Illinois state department of insurance, said yesterday that he had asked Gerhard Gesell, counsel for the monopoly committee, to send the department a transcript of the testimony involving the Illinois Bankers Life Assurance company. The testimony was given at the committee's hearings in Washington during the last few days.

Palmer said the department had investigated the company in 1933, and that the information obtained at that time "showed some variance" from the testimony given this week. He added that an investigation will be made if the testimony appears to warrant it.

Regarding the testimony that Ray R. Haffner had received $1,500 from the American Conservation company, Palmer said, "I have complete confidence in Haffner's integrity."

Haffner Returns Tuesday.

He said the matter will be discussed with Haffner, the department's chief actuary, when the latter returns from a Christmas vacation next Tuesday. Haffner has been with the department since 1930, Palmer said.

Raymond T. Smith, vice president of Alfred M. Best & Co., said that the "special commissions" Herbert Shimp told the committee were paid to him in connection with a reinsurance contract were in payment for negotiations for contracts between the Security Life Insurance company and the Central Life Insurance Company of Illinois, and also between the latter company and the American Conservation company.

The negotiations, Smith said, required nearly two years, and out of the approximately $14,000 he received as compensation for conducting them he had to pay heavy expenses due to the intricacy of the work and the length of time involved.

101 Year Old Coal and Iron Company Is Dissolved

Youngstown, O., Dec. 22 (AP).—Brier Hill Iron and Coal company, 101 years old and once Youngstown's largest business, has passed out of existence. Stockholders arranged for dissolution of the company and distribution of assets valued at $13 per share. There are 5,000 shares.

Ben Hur Life Assurance to Absorb National Union

Crawfordsville, Ind., Dec. 22 (AP).—John C. Snyder, president of the Ben Hur Life Assurance association, announced today National Union Assurance society of Toledo, O., has merged with the Ben Hur organization.

DOUGLAS NEGOTIATES FOR 40 MILLION DOLLAR BRITISH PLANE ORDER

Santa Monica, Cal., Dec. 22 (AP).—Officials of the Douglas Aircraft company said today discussions have been started with the British air ministry on a possible $40,000,000 order for a new type of 400-mile-an-hour light attack bombers.

None of the new ships, developed by Douglas, has been built. They are an improved model of the DB-7 bombers which Douglas is making for France.

Douglas is working on an order for 270 similar attack bombers placed by France several months ago and is making delivery on the first 100 planes ordered before the war. The order totals some $27,000,000.

The new British bombers would be slightly smaller than 20 planes Douglas is delivering to Canada, but would be twice as fast.

PRICE OF SILVER REACTS AFTER 3 DAY ADVANCE

After three successive advances the price of foreign silver declined abruptly at New York yesterday. Handy & Harmon, leading bullion dealers, reduced the quotation 1⅛ cents to 35⅝ cents an ounce. The preceding day's price of 36½ cents was the highest since Oct. 24.

Slowing up of buying by Indian speculators was described by New York dealers as the reason for the price decline.

The decline in the silver price at New York closely followed a lowering of the quotation for bar silver at London. Bar silver there sank to the equivalent of 42.28 cents an ounce from 42.39 cents on Thursday.

Yesterday's price at New York represented a premium of ⅜ cent over the treasury department's price of 35 cents an ounce for foreign silver.

The treasury department, meanwhile, isued a reminder to holders of silver mined domestically before July 2 that it must be presented to the mints before midnight, Dec. 31, to obtain federal subsidies. If the metal is not presented, a deed covering its transfer must be submitted.

STORES' SALES RUN 6 PER CENT ABOVE YEAR AGO

Department store sales in the week ended Dec. 16 were 6 per cent larger than in the corresponding 1938 week, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. Sales in the seventh federal reserve [Chicago] district topped 1938 by 7.9 per cent, as did sales in Chicago proper.

The largest percentage increase for any reserve district was reported from the Cleveland area, where sales rose 10 per cent. The smallest gain was 3 per cent in the San Francisco district. Within the seventh district, Indianapolis led all other large cities with an increase of 13.7 per cent.

Sales in the nation in the four weeks ended Dec. 16 were 3 per cent ahead of 1938. Chicago district sales for the period gained 4 per cent, and sales in the city 5.6 per cent.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported in its weekly trade review that a sharp spurt in gift buying carried retail sales in several industrial centers to all-time highs last week. Wholesale trade, the review said, was in a seasonal lull.

CLAIM ON BANK'S STOCKHOLDERS IS UPHELD BY COURT

The Illinois Appellate court yesterday upheld a decision of the Superior court ordering stockholders of the defunct Chicago Bank of Commerce to pay claims of approximately $3,000,000. The higher court issued its ruling in an appeal taken by 31 stockholders. They argued that because the par value of the stock had been written off 50 per cent before the bank closed in 1932, they were liable to only half the amount.

In a decision written by Justice John M. O'Connor, the Appellate court found the claim of the stockholders' group was without merit and that the bank's stockholders had been paid $2,400,000 when the par value of the stock was reduced. The holdings of the 31 stockholders represented $299,200 par value.

Stockholders who followed the original order of Judge James F. Fardy have paid about $700,000 on their assessments. This has assisted the receiver in making repayments totaling 52 per cent to creditors.

Bonus or Pay Boosts Given by More Firms

Reflecting the upward movement of business this year, several companies announced yesterday that they are raising wages of employés and numerous others announced special Christmas bonuses or payments under profit sharing plans.

T. C. Dennehy Jr., announces Sprague-Warner bonus in stock.

Wages of about 50,000 New England textile workers will be raised 7 to 10 per cent. American Woolen company alone will raise the wages of 28,000 persons employed in Lawrence, Maynard, and Plymouth, Mass.; Dover, N. H., and Skowhegan, Me. Numerous other mills in the Lawrence, Mass,. textile center are raising the wages of their workers.

The increases followed conferences between company executives and officials of the Textile Workers' Union of America [C. I. O.].

Millions More in Wages.

It is estimated that the increases will total from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 annually. The increases are effective Feb. 5 at the start of the spring manufacturing season.

The Calumet & Hecla Consolidated Copper company, whose mines are in the Lake Superior district of Michigan, announced a 10 per cent wage increase for its 1,500 employés. In addition it will pay a bonus of undisclosed amount.

A 6 per cent wage increase affecting 18,000 employés of the American Viscose corporation at five plants was announced, effective Jan. 1.

Christmas bonus checks are being distributed this week to all employés of the Kroger company, grocery chain, according to S. P. Evans, branch manager of the Chicago district. Payments will total about $350,000 to all employés not participating in the regular profit sharing plan. About 1,725 employés of the Chicago branch will receive checks.

Sprague-Warner Pays Bonus.

More than 600 employés of Sprague-Warner & Co. yesterday received Christmas bonuses in the form of stock certificates. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., president, said the certificates will represent a real portion of ownership in the company.

M. J. Spiegel Jr., president of Spiegel, Inc., Chicago mail order chain, announced that the company will continue its guaranteed wage plan in 1940. About 3,500 employés of the company's 5,000 total are affected. Spiegel also announced that about $145,000 is being set aside for the wage earners under the company's profit sharing plan. About half of the amount was distributed to workers yesterday, checks amounting to not less than a week's income figured on a 40 hour basis.

LaSalle Extension University, Chicago, announced a bonus for each employé amounting to a week's salary. More than 500 will share.

Bank of America Bonus.

One of the largest distributions made in the country was the $1,200,000 paid in Christmas bonuses to the 8,900 employés of Bank of America, with headquarters in San Francisco. L. M. Giannini said payments approximated 90 per cent of one month's salary.

The Ford Roofing Products company, with headquarters in Chicago, will resume cash bonuses to its 400 employés.

Bunte Brothers, Chicago candy manufacturer, announced that it will distribute bonuses totaling $35,000 among its 1,000 employés in service a year or longer.

Bond Stores, Inc. will distribute bonuses totaling $375,000 among its 5,443 employés, including 1,300 union craftsmen in the Rochester, N. Y., and New Brunswick, N. J., plants.

Commodity Markets Close Today for Long Holiday

New York commodity markets, including the cotton exchange, and the Chicago and New Orleans cotton markets will close today for the Christmas holidays and will not reopen until Tuesday. Principal securities markets, the Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Live Stock market, and banks, will be open today, but will close Monday, Christmas day.

ACTIVE TRADE INDICATED FOR FIRST QUARTER

Midwest's Shippers Predict Gain.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Indications that the present good business in the Chicago area will be continued in the first quarter of 1940 were found yesterday in the quarterly estimate of the midwest shippers' advisory board on freight car requirements by shippers. Members of the board estimated that they will need 12.9 per cent more freight cars to handle their products than in the first quarter of 1939.

The shippers predict that they will require 781,713 cars, whereas in the first quarter of last year they actually loaded 692,308 cars. The estimate made in September for the fourth quarter of this year—which has a few days yet to run—was a gain of 16 per cent.

Only Three Groups Lower.

In only three groups of the products for which forecasts are made are lower totals of car requirements expected. These are certain fresh fruits [an unimportant item], cement, and automobiles, and trucks [largely for agricultural needs].

The quarterly forecasts of the shippers' advisory boards, whose members are drawn from various types of industry, are rated as among the most reliable of the business barometers. The forecasts usually come exceedingly close to the actual loadings. Where substantial variations occur they usually are the result of a condition impossible to forecast, such as warm weather which reduces the need for coal.

In the fourth quarter of 1938 the forecast was for the use of 762,000 cars whereas the number of cars actually loaded totaled 766,942 cars. The forecast for the third quarter of 1938 was 721,747 and 692,308 were used. For the third quarter of this year the forecast was for 683,769 cars and the total loaded was 684,251.

Big Gain in Steel.

Reflecting the high rate at which the steel industry has been operating in the Chicago area it is estimated that there will be a 60 per cent gain in the number of cars needed. The forecast is for 74,560 cars against 46,600 actually loaded with iron and steel products in the first quarter of last year.

Agricultural implements show a 20 per cent gain with a forecast of 20,280 cars, against 16,900 actually loaded in 1939.

Coal and coke, which depend to a large extent on industry, are expected to show a 10 per cent gain.

Comparative Figures.

The following table gives actual loadings in the first quarter of 1939, the estimated loadings in the first quarter of 1940, and the percentage of increase or decline:

Indict Electric Firms on Price Fixing Charges

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 22 (AP).—The federal government's drive based on the contention that monopolistic practices exist in the building industry struck at the electrical supply business today.

The three largest corporations in the United States engaged in distribution and sale of electrical supplies, 10 Detroit wholesale houses, and 19 individuals were indicted by a special grand jury. The charge was conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws thru control of prices for electrical equipment.

Major Concerns Named.

The national corporations indicted were General Electric Supply company, Schenectady, N. Y., distributing agency for General Electric company; Westinghouse Electric Supply company, distributor for Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, East Pittsburgh, Pa., and Graybar Electric company, New York, independent distributing agency.

Among the individuals indicted were the Detroit district managers of the three companies.

Allen A. Dobey of New York, special assistant to the attorney general, who presented evidence to the grand jury, said that those indicted would be permitted to appear in early January.

Charge Threats to Control Prices.

The indictment states that threats of intimidation were resorted to when manufacturers and jobbers charged less for electrical products than was charged by the defendants in the alleged combine. Independent manufacturers, it was charged, were threatened with reprisals if they sold to jobbers who did not adhere to a certain price structure.

The national supply companies were indicted, Dobey said, because of connection with the acts of local representatives which the government holds were illegal.

The action today was the second antitrust indictment to be presented by the grand jury within a week. The first was the naming of 48 defendants in an alleged conspiracy to control the tile industry in the Detroit area.

Dobey said the individuals and firms indicted today sell not less than 75 per cent of the electrical supplies purchased in the Detroit area by large industrial concerns, electrical contractors, and government agencies.

Indict More In California.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 22 (AP).—A federal grand jury investigating the northern California building trades industry returned an indictment today against 38 individuals, one labor union, and one association in the plasterers' branch of the business.

Earlier this week the jury indicted individuals, associations and unions in the electrical and hardwood flooring classifications of the industry. Today's indictment, similar to the others, alleged an unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce in plaster and gypsum.

San Francisco union, No. 66, of the Plasterers and Cement Finishers, and the Master Plasterers' association of San Francisco were named in the indictment.

2 BIG CHICAGO WHOLESALERS PLAN TO MERGE

Announcement May Be Made Soon.

A transaction thru which Chicago's oldest wholesale grocery house, Durand-McNeil-Horner company, will be merged with Sprague, Warner & Co., was reported nearing conclusion last night.

Harry Kunin [top] and Maxwell Kunin Officers of Sprague, Warner.

Officials would not comment on the report, but it was learned from sources close to both companies that an announcement would be made soon.

Sprague, Warner & Co., like Durand-McNeil-Horner, is an old Chicago institution. It was founded 71 years ago.

Durand-McNeil-Horner was established 97 years ago—1842—as Henry Horner & Co. In September, 1926, Maurice L. Horner Jr., grandson of the founder, became president of the company after Fred Letts resigned. Horner was known then as the city's youngest grocery company executive.

Second Merger in Year.

The merger would be the second in about a year involving Sprague, Warner & Co. On Dec. 14, 1938, announcement was made that the company and the grocery firm of Samuel Kunin & Sons, Inc., had merged. The final contracts for that transaction were signed by Col. A. A. Sprague, large stockholder and former head of Sprague, Warner, and by Harry Kunin, who had been operating head of Kunin & Sons. Stockholders approved the deal on Jan. 4, 1939.

The new firm created by that transaction retained the name of Sprague, Warner & Co. It had total assets of more than $5,000,000, and an annual sales volume estimated at the time at $20,000,000. Kunin & Sons, Inc., was much smaller than the Sprague, Warner firm, but had been growing rapidly.

Founded 21 Years Ago.

The former Kunin company was founded 21 years ago by Samuel Kunin, who still held the office of president at the time of the 1938 merger. However, its active management was in the hands of his sons, Harry and Maxwell.

Thomas C. Dennehy Jr. became president of Sprague, Warner after the Kunin organization was absorbed. Dennehy is a son-in-law of Ezra J. Warner Jr., former Sprague, Warner president who died in 1933. Harry Kunin became secretary and treasurer, and Maxwell Kunin and A. A. Sprague Jr. became vice presidents. William D. Dean, who had been president of Sprague, Warner since 1933, retired.

Col. Sprague held no office in the consolidated company, but an arrangement was made by which he was to act in an advisory capacity when needed. The company was founded by an uncle of Col. Sprague in 1862.

SOUTH. PACIFIC GETS 2 MILLION DOLLAR TRAINS

Two new streamlined trains, each costing about 1 million dollars, are being turned over to the Southern Pacific company, it was disclosed yesterday. The two trains were built in the Chicago shops of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. They will be placed in regular service on the San Francisco-Los Angeles run of the Southern Pacific about Jan. 5. The first train will arrive in California on Dec. 29 and the second about Jan. 5.

The two new trains will replace present streamlined trains, which will be installed elsewhere in the service. Built of high tensile steel framing, with stainless steel exterior side sheets, the twins will be pulled by 5,000 horsepower streamlined steam locomotives.

One of the features of the new trains will be a three car articulated dining unit. A kitchen car in the center will serve both a full length diner and a coffee shop car.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Saturday, Dec. 23, 1939.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DIVIDEND PROFITS.

Bourjois, Inc., paid $1 a share on its common stock Dec. 8. At the time the dividend was declared I thought I would buy the stock and cut in on the dividend. Would I have benefited by buying the stock on Nov. 24 and selling it after the record date, Dec. 4? Or would the price have dropped by as much as the $1 paid?—C. L.

Answer: The notion of taking a quick profit on a dividend payment seems attractive, but is usually unsound. It is contrary to good investment policy.

The stock market ordinarily anticipates a dividend declaration and the price of a stock often reflects a dividend action long before it is taken by the board of directors. Larger, special, or extra dividends also are forecast by higher earnings, sales, billings, or rising activity in the industry of which the company is a part.

Of course, increases in dividends are not always anticipated, and when they are actually announced may cause a rise in the price of the stock after the declaration.

In the case of Bourjois, Inc., the increased dividend could not have been foreseen easily. The company had issued no interim reports. In 1938 the company earned 75 cents a common share and paid 40 cents a share in dividends. Because no earnings statements for 1939 were available it could not be determined whether the $1 dividend this year was prompted by sharply improved earnings or whether it was being drawn from previously earned surplus.

It is apparent, however, that professional traders in the market foresaw the declaration of a larger dividend. Their intimate knowledge of the market, personal information, shrewd analysis, or a hunch may have contributed to this foresight.

Bourjois common stock responded to this anticipatory buying. On Nov. 20 [after several days of inactivity] the stock spurted $1 to close at 5½. This was four days before the directors declared the $1 dividend. On Nov. 24, the day of the announcement, the stock closed at the year's high of 6⅝. In five days, therefore, the price of the stock had increased almost 50 per cent.

After that the price declined. The stock sold without the dividend at $4 on Dec. 1. Purchasers of the stock on Dec. 1 and thereafter did not participate in the dividend. The $4 price was just ½ point above the year's low.

If 100 shares of the common stock were bought Nov. 24 the cost would have been $662.50, plus at least $10 in brokers' commissions. If they were sold on Dec. 4 at $4 a share the gross proceeds of the sale would have been $400. From this would have been deducted at least $8 for commissions and 4 cents a share for federal and 3 cents for New York state transfer taxes.

The loss on the transaction would have been $287.50. On Dec. 8 total dividends of $100 would have been received on the shares held on the record date. The net loss would have been $187.50.

Plan National Motor Club Service at Chicago Session

Preliminary plans for a national motor club service were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the American Finance conference, which has its headquarters at Chicago. Fred V. Chew, executive vice president of the conference, national trade association for automobile sales finance companies, said under the proposal the 1,500 offices of sales finance companies would become the local representatives of the national organization and provide a complete motoring service.

New Cuban Trade Treaty Becomes Effective Today

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22 [Special].—The supplementary trade agreement between the United States and Cuba will become effective tomorrow, the state department announced today. No order has yet been issued reinstating the sugar quotas on imports into the United States.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York Dec. 22 (AP).—Quiet buying in aircrafts and specialties today helped the stock market keep its balance.

Selective issues edged forward at the start, slipped later and then came back at the finish. Gains ranged from fractions to around a point for favorites, but small minus signs were plentiful and a large assortment ended at Thursday's final levels.

Pre-Christmas apathy was the rule thruout most of the session. Transfers of 719,520 shares compared with 743,620 yesterday.

Business news for the most part was heartening, but tax selling continued as a recovery handicap and many traders kept commitments light pending conclusion of these offerings at the end of next week. Reinvestment demand, brokers said, again proved a stabilizing influence. European markets were firmer.

On the up side were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Lockheed, Eastern Airlines, Loew's, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Western Union, du Pont, Union Carbide and American Can.

Both United States Steel and Bethlehem were a shade lower, as were American Telephone, Great Northern preferred, Anaconda, Chesapeake & Ohio and American Waterworks.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 22 (AP).—Buying in the bond market today on breadth today, giving the corporate section a moderate advance. United States government and many foreign loans also moved up in quiet dealings.

Dealers suggested the rise reflected a traders' demand based on expectations of a year-end pickup in investment inquiry for corporate liens in general.

Leading the advance were Porto Rican American Tobacco stamped 6s at 63, up 3, and unstamped 6s at 63¼, up 2¼; Pacific Gas 3⅜s at 112, up ⅜; Central Railroad of New Jersey 5s of '57 at 17¼, up 1⅜; Consolidation Coal 5s at 60, up 1; Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 105½, up ⅜.

Several treasury issues edged up 1-32d to 5-32ds. The new 2¼s of '51-'53 made their initial appearance and were traded at 102.21.

Transactions totaled $7,618,500, face value.

Chicago Stocks.

Price gains outnumbered losses at the close of trading yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Transactions totaled 27,000 shares.

Chicago corporation, most active issue, eased ⅛ point. Commonwealth Edison gained ⅛.

Bank Stocks.

Several leading issues declined in bank stock trading yesterday. Northern Trust lost 5 points to 570, ex dividend $4.50 a share. First National eased 2 points to a bid of 225 ex dividend $2. Continental Illinois was half a point lower at 94 bid.
